Orders new hearing

VANCOUVER (CP)—The British Columbia Supreme Court Friday ordered the B.C. labor relations board to conduct a new hearing of a union application for certification as bargaining agents for seamen on Black Ball Ferries Limited.

Mr. Justice (Harry) Sullivan quashed the board's ruling against the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers (CLC).

BLACKWOOD on BRIDGE

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

After winning the opening diamond lead with the queen in today's hand, Mr. Muzzy promptly led a small club and put in dummy's ten. He was elated when the ten held the trick. "Just throw the play over here, partner," he said proudly.

Mr. Heinsite was not amused. Sometimes it appears that he hates to see even his own partner make a winning play, as that leaves him nothing to criticize after the hand.

At trick three Mr. Muzzy cashed the ace of clubs. He led a third club and lost to the jack. He won the diamond return and fired a fourth club to drive out the king.

On regaining the lead he cashed his last club and his remaining high cards to stagger in with nine tricks.

Mr. Heinsite

"Well, how did I look on that one?" he asked, smiling.

"In a word, terrible," replied Mr. Heinsite.

"What do you mean? I made it, didn't I?"

"You should have safety-played the clubs," said Mr. Heinsite. "Suppose Abel's singleton had been the pack. Then you wouldn't have won three clubs. You couldn't have won more than two."

"How many tricks would I have made in all, playing this hand your way?" Mr. Muzzy asked.

Mr. Heinsite ignored this because he thought that nine tricks would be the probable result with either method of play.

"The standard safety play with this combination of cards," he continued, "is to cash the ace of clubs first, then go to your hand and lead a small one toward the ten.

"That way you win three clubs against any division of the suit, provided it's not worse than 4-1. This is the standard safety play with this combination of cards."

"You already said that," commented Mr. Muzzy.

"All right," barked Mr. Heinsite. "The point is, do you understand it?"

"Yes, I've got it now," Mr. Muzzy replied.

And on the very next hand (see tomorrow's column) Mr. Muzzy provided additional proof of Mr. Heinsite's favorite saying: "A little learning is a dangerous thing."
