Blackwood on BRIDGE

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

Mr. Dale was a little short for his jump to two no trump in today's deal. According to the textbooks, he just didn't have the cards for it. But the books make no allowance for the fact that sometimes your opponents are going to be Mr. Muzzy and Mr. New, neither of whom is known for the excellence of his defensive play.

Mr. New's usual role is that of a kibitzer. He is always amazed at how much more difficult it is to do the right thing when he can see only his own hand and the dummy. Today he made the fatal mistake of basing his defense on the belief that Mr. Dale had made an error—which is exactly what the old master wanted him to believe.

Here is what happened. The opening lead was the six of hearts, Mr. New put up the king and Mr. Dale won with the ace. Counting up his winners, the old boy saw that he fell far short of the desired nine. Looking the situation over, he thought perhaps he might inveigle the enemy into helping him.

Mr. Dale

At trick two he laid down his king of diamonds. He was not surprised when it held the trick. Obviously, the defender holding the ace of diamonds was trying to hold off until the ace of clubs (the only entry to dummy) was played. This set-up was perfect for Mr. Dale's plan. He could see no reason why the enemy would not think it wise to hold off again.

Accordingly, he led the jack of diamonds. Mr. Muzzy's nine fell and a small card was played from the board.

This is where Mr. New figured that Mr. Dale had erred. He knew that there were no more diamonds in the closed hand. He also knew the diamonds were solid except for the ace. Why, then, hadn't Mr. Dale overtaken the jack with dummy's queen and continued the suit. He must be slipping . . . so Mr. New laid off a second time.

Triumphantly, Mr. Dale now abandoned diamonds and banged down the ace and another club. Mr. New could take his king of clubs any time he chose but it was too late to do anything about defeating the contract. Mr. Dale had arranged to take four clubs, two diamonds, two hearts and a spade.

Title fight almost set

NEW YORK (AP)—The Ingemar Johansson-Floyd Patterson return bout for the world heavyweight boxing championship was practically a reality today.

It appeared most stumbling blocks had been cleared and that the new promoters, Feature Sports Incorporated, had only to sit out the required waiting period for a licence to stage the bout.

Johansson, who lifted the crown from Patterson last year, and his adviser, Edwin Ahlquist, headed home for Sweden Tuesday night in a happy frame of mind.

"I'm confident the contract will be signed when I return to the United States later this monh," Johansson said. "Everything looks fine for the fight in June."

The site for the 15-rounder has not been set.

Boiler explodes

VICTORIA—An explosion ripped open a large boiler aboard the destroyer HMCS Ottawa in nearby Esquimalt Harbor late Tuesday night.

There were no reports of injuries and the extent of damage was not immediately known.

A spokesman for Pacific Command navy headquarters at Esquimalt said the explosion occurred in a boiler room which supplies the heating system aboard ship.
