B.C. ROUNDUP

Fort Nelson hotel fire kills one

FORT NELSON, B.C. (CP) —RCMP here said Sunday night that hte death toll in the Fort Nelson hotel fire would not exceed the one body found Sunday morning.

The man was not identified. His charred body was found in the ruins of the hotel, which was burned to the ground Saturday night.

"We went through it pretty thoroughly," an RCMP spokesman said. "I think that's the only body there is."

He said origin of the fire was not yet determined.

The hotel, a landmark in this Alaska Highway community 800 miles northwest of Edmonton, had 82 rooms in the main structure and annex. Police found the man's body in the wreckage of a 20-room annex recently completed.

Firemen managed to save a medical clinic adjacent to the hotel.

Gene Pickett of Edmonton, owner of the building, said damage would be at least $500,000.

BETTER HAULS

Alaska Salmon pack still ahead of 1959

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP)—Heavy red salmon runs in Bristol Bay have managed to push the canned salmon pack up this year over the comparable period for 1959, the Alaska Fish and Game Department reported Friday.

The canned salmon pack for the period ended July 10 was 976,856 cases. This represented a 409,214 case increase over the period of 567,642 cases for the period ended July 12, 1959.

However, the department totals include a 636,376 case pack up to last Sunday in the rich Bristol Bay fishery.

The central district, including Copper River, Cook Inlet, Kodiak, Chignik and South Peninsula areas, also enjoyed better hauls than last year to boost the pack figure.

The district pack through Sunday was 216,077 as compared to 138,888 cases for the same period last year.

In Southeastern Alaska the season lagged badly with a pack of only 87,113 as compared to 135,558 for the period ended July 12 last year. However, the southern portion of the district has not yet been opened.

Here is the way the salmon have been packed so far this year with the July 12, 1959 figures in parenthesis: Southeastern Alaska 87,113 (135,558); Central Alaska 216,077 (138,888); Western Alaska 671,766 (203,196).

The catch was predominately reds in the Central and Western districts and pinks and chums in the Southeast.

Herter, aides switch to get-tough policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, under heavy Soviet pounding, has largely abandoned its post-summit policy of seeking businesslike negotiations with Moscow and is switching to a get-tough strategy of its own.

Evidence of this change is becoming apparent. It will be fully developed at the United Nations next week when the U.S. and Russia join battle over charges and counter charges of threats to world peace.

State Secretary Christian A. Herter and his aides are reported to be preparing a massive verbal assault on Soviet Premier Khrushchev's activities since the abortive summit conference at Paris two months ago.

President Eisenhower is described by officials here as fed up with Khrushchev's incessant campaign of accusations against the U.S.

Two moves by the state department Thursday reflected the developing new tough line. The department announced a note to Moscow calling off indefinitely negotiations scheduled for next Monday on an air transport agreement between the two countries.

At the same time the department issued a new warning to Khrushchev to keep his hands off Latin American countries, particularly Cuba. It denounced him for claiming that the 137-year-old Monro Doctrine of "America for Americans" is out of date and for trying to scuttle the U.S.-Cuban treaty covering the American naval base at Guantanamo, Cuba.
