Cornering Cabs Abroad

In Europe as at Home, a Well-Directed Taxi Can Be A Traveler's Best Friend

In Paris or Brussels or London, the shortest distance between two points is often a taxi ride. The service is door-to-door; the timing is go-as-you-please, and to a just-arrived visitor, the experience lacks the confusion involved in sharing a bus with fifty French-speaking folk who all seem to know where they're going.

Many visitors to Europe take more taxis in the course of a two weeks' vacation than they do in a year back home, according to Mlle. Sabena, director of Women's Services for SABENA Belgian World Airlines. Though it helps, you don't have to know the language to travel in one successfully.

FARE FACTS

In Europe as in America, city taxis are metered. And it is customary to add a 10% to 15% tip. It's a simple computation except, perhaps, in the case of British pounds, shillings and pence; the rule there: a nine pence tip for each two-shillings-sixpence run up on the meter; one shilling-sixpence (about twenty cents) for a seven-shilling ($1) ride.

When the sun goes down, most cab fares go up. This is true, for example, in Finland; in France, where the 'witching is eleven p.m.; in Amsterdam, where you pay more between one-thirty and five in the morning; in Rome, where the cabby is entitled to an extra 150 lira after ten.

Further fare notes include an additional twenty-five lira each for more than two people per cab in Rome; a legal round-trip charge for a one-way ride to any airport in Spain. When in Brussels, remember the smaller the cab, the lower the fare.

One word about the meterless "cars for hire" that bloom late in some nightclub neighborhoods: this sort of convenient luxury generally comes high. If you decide to take one, settle on price before you climb aboard. If there's any discussion at the end of the trip, call in the doorman.

African leader still escorted

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters) — Self - styled President Moise Tshombe of The Congo's Katanga province, smiling and appearing in good health, was brought to Leopoldville today by river steamship from Coquilhatville where he was interned four weeks ago.

No soldiers guarded him as he stepped from the boat at Leopoldville port. But he and his foreign minister, Evariste Kimba, had an escort of 200 troops for the drive to a para-commando camp six miles outside Leopoldville.

Col. Michael Kiembe, chief of staff of the Leopoldville forces, and security chief Victor Ndeka were at the dock to greet Tshombe as he walked down the gangplank.

WASHINGTON — A $906,000,000 program for expanded studies of the ocean's mysteries was proposed today by the U.S. Navy.

In outlining its proposed 10-year program, the navy recommended spending $245,000,000 for military oceanography — studies of detection factors such as underwater acoustics and magnetic action.

The second largest proposal was $229,000,000 for research and survey ships.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	1 ♠	4 ♥	Pass
5 ♥	Pass	6 ♥	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠

Today's hand well illustrates a point which we stress with alacrity, namely, that aces and kings do not always play the leading roles in the slam drama. The singleton, which is the keynote of just as many slams, is perhaps as often entitled to top billing. For example, if North's spades and clubs were interchanged there would be no slam.

We lend no approval to North's bid of four hearts because there is no occasion to crowd the bidding with hands of this type. The splendid trump support, the singleton of the adverse suit, and the good side suit are all factors which should make North bullish about the hand, and he should allow himself plenty of bidding space to describe these various features.

In any event, the recommended bid is a one round force of two diamonds. South will then show his second suit, and North may then follow with a jump in hearts, fixing that suit as trump. South should make an effort toward slam by bidding five diamonds. This should be interpreted as a cue bid rather than an attempt to play the minor suit, since North has raised hearts so violently. At this point North holds the key to the success of the slam in the form of the singleton and should bid six hearts.

On the actual bidding, when North leaped to four hearts South was willing to take his chances on a slam if North could protect against the loss of two spades. What was the logical way to find out? It was pointless to show one of the aces, because it was perfectly evident that North would be able to do no more than return to five hearts. Since there was not time to show both aces South concluded he would imply that he had them both, in this sequence, by bidding five hearts. This in plain language was intended to say: "Partner, everything is under control but the spade suit, which the enemy has bid. If you can take care of it, please bid a slam." North decoded the message properly and contracted for six hearts. To summarize: A bid beyond game to five in a major, when nothing has previously been said about a suit, should be taken as a request to partner to bid a slam if he has only one loser in the adverse suit.

Floating island found in Arctic

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—Scientists under contract to the US. Navy have discovered a floating ice island in the Arctic Ocean and established a research camp on it, the Anchorage Daily Times says.

The newspaper described the discovery as a major stride in U.S. efforts to open up the Arctic regions. It said Russia has maintained camps in the Arctic ice, for many years and is considered far ahead in this field.
