BLACKWOOD on BRIDGE

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

When Mr. Dale jump-raised his partner's spades to three, he figured he had the required seven playing tricks. He did. And it comes out the same whether you use the point count or just plain judgment, as Mr. Dale does.

The ace-king of diamonds and the ace of hearts were good for three tricks. The jack of hearts, plus the chance of bringing in a long suit winner in one of the red suits, was easily good for another trick. Of course the ace of spades was a trick and, with a singleton club in the hand, two clubs could probably be ruffed for a total of seven playing tricks.

When Mr. Champion learned that his partner had that many winners for a spade contract, he became interested in a slam. After checking on controls he put the hand in six spades.

Mr. Champion

The opening lead was the king of hearts, which was taken with dummy's ace. Mr. Champion studied his chances carefully and as usual selected the best percentage play. He decided that unless the outstanding trumps were divided 3-2, his chances were very slim.

He didn't go for the finesse of the jack of spades. As you see, that would have lost and the defenders could have cashed a heart trick to set the contract.

Instead, he cashed the ace and king of spades. Actually, the odds were not too far from even that he would drop the queen in two leads. But when the queen failed to appear, he still had a play to fall back on for 12 tricks.

He cashed the four rounds of diamonds, in the hope that the defender holding the queen of spades would have to follow suit to at least three rounds of diamonds. He was fortunate to get this distribution and on the fourth diamond he discarded his last heart as Mrs. Keen ruffed with the high trump. He ruffed the heart return and was able to claim the rest of the tricks on a cross-ruff.

Flying leap fails to save fleeing bookie

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—Ralph Romeo, bad back and all, took a flying leap out a third-storey window when detectives on a book-making raid battered down his door.

Romeo, 43, was trying for the rooftop of a building next door, a flight of four feet. He made it.

But once there he couldn't find a way downstairs. Detectives extended a plank over to him and Romeo sheepishly walked back.

"You have to make a living somehow," said Romeo. "I can't do other kinds of work with my bum back."

Regulations may increase fish sales

OTTAWA (CP)—Representatives of the federal fisheries department and the fishing industry said Monday new voluntary regulations for the packing of fresh, frozen and prepared fish likely will make Canadians more fish-conscious.

Under the regulations, effective April 1, approved fish plants will be able to mark their products "Canada-inspected" or "packed under government supervision."

H. V. Dempsey, director of inspection and consumer service of the fisheries department, told the annual meeting of the Fisheries Council of Canada he hopes the program will mean higher returns for fishermen and the fish-processing industry.

H. D. Pyke, president of the council, said the program—requested by the industry—should "improve the quality of fish for the consumer and result in benefit to the industry as a whole."

Mr. Dempsey said a heavy responsibility will be on federal inspectors to see that quality is kept at a uniformly high level.

Clean Up Clutter'd Car Now

By Martha Johnson
Dodge Safety Consultant

THE FAMILY CAR needs a "housecleaning" this time of the year.

Get rid of the debris under the seat, in the trunk and on the rear window ledge.

Clean out that small library stuffed under the sun visor—receipts, bills, trading stamps...

And have you looked in the glove compartment lately? Discard those old emery boards, crumpled letters and torn, out-of-date road maps. Replace these "treasures" with necessary and useful articles—cleaning fluid and a clean rag or paper towel for the windows, a windshield scraper, flashlight, sunglasses and your automobile registration.

In the trunk, throw out emergency gasoline containers unless they are an approved metal type, painted red with a tight-fitting cap, the youngsters' torn boots, broken sled and sweep out the pine needles from last Winter's Christmas tree.

Put in gloves and a piece of carpet for changing tires and making small repairs, tire jack, a bag of salt or sand for traction on slick surfaces, tools for changing tires. Borrow an idea from experienced truck drivers, and include one of those reflectors he sets out when he is stopped by the side of the road.

You will be surprised, in most cases there is lots of room for all the important items—plus six passengers.

LOWEST DEPTH

LONDON (AP) — Soviet oceanic scientists Tuesday claimed they had reached the lowest depths ever recorded. A Moscow broadcast said scientists aboard the research vessel Vityaz, investigating the Marianas trench in the western Pacific, recorded a depth of 36,173 feet. The previous deepest ocean sounding, 35,958 feet, was reported by the Vityaz in August, 1957 in the same area.

WOMEN VOTERS TURN TABLES

FULTON, Kan. (AP)—The men of Fulton thought the "Ladies Citizens" ticket was the funniest joke in town—until Tuesday.

That's when women won control of the town government.

The voters turned out in record numbers (total vote: 88) and elected 72-year-old Mabel Austin mayor. Three other Ladies Citizens' candidates were elected to the five-member city council.

"They, the men were joking and kidding us about it when we first started talking about running for office," Miss Austin said Tuesday night.

"We just wanted to show the men we could do it."

Miss Austin, a retired employee of the U.S. internal revenue service, defeated Mayor Howard Post, a grocer, 46 votes to 35.
