Opening lead: King of ♦

When a contract appears on the surface to be foolproof it pays to take just a minute's time out to inquire, "What accident can possibly befall me?"

In today's hand South became the declarer at a contract of four spades. West's overcall was somewhat attenuated, but he can be forgiven because of the conditions of vulnerability. North's bid of one no trump was probably better than raising the clubs despite the fact that he had but a single stopper in hearts. However, when partner showed the major suit he abandoned further no trump ideas.

The king of diamonds was opened and taken with the ace. A low spade lead brought forth the queen. Another trump lead corroborated the fact that West held four trumps. It will be seen that declarer could not draw all the trumps because he needed a heart trick for game, and if trumps were extracted the enemy could run the diamond suit when they got in with the ace of hearts. So declarer led a heart to the king and was somewhat disappointed when East won the trick. East could read that his partner was void of clubs, since he himself held five, the dummy four and declarer had bid the suit. West ruffed the club return and after cashing the diamond followed up with the jack of hearts. There was no way for declarer to avoid the loss of another heart trick and he was down one. Was South guilty of an indiscretion? Could he reasonably have avoided the accident?

The answer is yes. It was quite evident that the hand could not be lost unless the enemy got in a club ruff. The only one that could possibly ruff was West. The hand should therefore be played in such a manner that East could not conveniently obtain the lead. The hearts should have been attacked from dummy. When the three of hearts is led from dummy, if East ducks, the 10th trick is home, and trumps may be drawn. If East rushes in with the ace, he can give his partner a club ruff, and then the diamond is the only other trick the opposition can take.

True enough, it was to be expected that West held the ace of hearts but, if he had it, he could win the trick, yet have no way of obtaining the club ruff, and the contract would be assured. That East had the ace may be regarded as an accident, but the injury could have been avoided.

Light battle call

VANCOUVER (CP) — Colored tree lights, as much a part of Christmas as snow, mistletoe and plum pudding, will be the focal point of a multi - million dollar battle between Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd. and importers of Japanese lights.
