AT FIFTH ANNUAL CYO CONCERTS

125 artists, 900 spectators celebrate St. Patrick's Day

By GRACE BROWN
Daily News Social Editor

That glorious day for the wearin' of the green . . . the Sivinteenth of Ireland was celebrated in "grand style" by more than 125 talented artists and 900 spectators Monday and Tuesday night in the Annunciation school auditorium when the Catholic Youth Organization presented its Fifth Annual St. Patrick's Day concerts.

Uproarious laughter and good fun filled the hall, enhanced by clay pipes, shillelaghs, green ties, shamrocks and ribbons.

You don't have to be Irish ot enjoy the rousing rollicking jigs, the swinging Irish airs and the peppy ad libbing of clever emcee Len Harrington.

It was a family show of humor and comical entertainment, leaving everyone with a "song in your heart".

TOP TALENT

From the tiniest performers to the adult play actors in farces, skits and comedies it was top-notch talent throughout the two and a half-hour show.

School choristers, under the direction of teacher Patrick Kelly, opened the program with traditional songs in an Irish Medley.

"The Little Chip" was a cute recitation by petite Kathleen Fortune, frocked in fluffy white, to receive a big hand.

Under the baton of little Penny Montesano, tiny school youngsters presented "The Children's Marching Song". Added laughs were given the emcee, who mimicked the drummer.

TOES A-TAPPING

Setting toes a-tapping were green - costumed "Irish Jig" dancers Carol Montesano, Mary Contafio, Mary Burns, Nalda Ferraro, and Roberta Rossi.

The one-act comedy farce, "My Spare Lady," written and directed by Mr. Harrington, billed Irene Bellamy, Ray Windle, Don Scott, Stan Valpy, John Olson and the producer. It was comedy at its funniest.

Shane Deinstadt, another tiny school performer, recited "Mr. Nobody", as the emcee encouraged nonsensical fun.

Lovely Irish melodies were pleasantly sung by a trio of high school students, Marlyn Brown, Maureen Lyons and Daryl LaCroix, accompanied by classmate Anna Juby at the piano.

More jig swinging was exhibited by Lidia Pucci, Mary Contafio, Nalda Ferraro, Dianne Swanson, Carol Montesano and Rose Low.

SHOW STOPPER

The pantomime "The Lighthouse Keeper's Daughter", was the show-stopper, as Ray Prystay narrated and Joe Arseneau, Steve Comadina, Walter Oskey, Barry Blyth and Bob Oskey, enacted the farce to delight the audience.

An exhibition of the Irish Jig was perfectly danced by John Arduini, accompanied by violinist Walter Dorash, to receive one of the biggest hands of the night.

Biggest group was Michael Column's accordion band, featuring more than 20 artists, and guests stars, Casey Willson, Judy Fossum, Alberta Cameron, Margaret Toth, Shirley Snellman, Maureen Hampton, John Menard and the maestro.

Others in the band were Christian Berg, Leslie Hampton, Robert Gordon, Marcello Bussanich, Robert Bussanich, Robert Hill, Andrea Hansen, Eileen Rensvold, Margaret Lester, Wendy Christensen, Tove Selfjord, Dorothy Ballanger, Donna Giske, Lynne McIntyre, Julia Snellman, Hans Stegleder and Angelo Pomponi.

Lending rhythm to the enjoyable performance was Percy Curle on the string bass.

The singing trio aided the emcee, who announced he had "an ex-curler's voice", in a community sing of "Galway Bay", "My Wild Irish Rose" and "When Irish Eyes are Smiling".

FITTING FINALE

"Mrs. O'Leary's Cow", provided a fitting finale for the "lepping" leprechauns and "flitting" fairies, a one-act comedy, directed by Joseph Arduini. Stars were Margret Saunders, Olga Zabudney, John LaPorte, Anne Huestis, Jeannette Cloutier, Wilma Barrie and Bob Oskey, who rung down the curtain in "fine style".

Concert pianist was Miss Olive Strand.

CYO president John LaPorte and CYO chaplain, Rev. James Tracey, thanked the performers and each person who had contributed to the "tremendous success" of the two shows.

On behalf of the CYO Mr. LaPorte presented Mr. Harrington and Mr. Arduini with gifts.

"It was another great day for the Irish in Prince Rupert and plans are bigger and better for March 17, 1960", John LaPorte said.
