Punch Imlach wins award as personality

TORONTO (CP)—Punch Imlach, manager-coach of Toronto Maple Leafs, was announced as the top personality in hockey in a poll of fans conducted by Hockey News.

Toe Blake, coach of Montreal Canadiens, who lead the Leafs 3-1 in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup finals, won the coach of the year award for the second consecutive season.

Rudy Pastor, owner and president of Buffalo Bisons in the American Hockey League, was named executive of the year and Andy Bathgate, highscoring right winger of New York Rangers of the NHL topped the poll as player of the year.

TOTEM RULE

25-year-old rookie who came to Totems through the Detroit Red Wing organization from the International League, wound up as the leading point getter in the playoffs with seven goals and 11 assists.

Boileau led goal-getters with 10 and was second in points with 17 and MacFarland, with six goals and 10 assists, was just a point behind Marc.

The Seattle dressing room was a scene of noisy celebrations long after the Sunday night game ended as the playersw hooped it up, dunking the team trainer in the showers and congratulating each other.

"I was surprised that we took both games in Calgary," Allen said above the din, "but the boys played real well through the series. They played well all season for that matter. Remember, we won 40 games."

Stampeders dressed quickly and left for their hotel, where Kyle told reporters there will be some changes made before next season.

"We never played one good game in this series," he said. "Some of our guys let down. They had their bags packed and they didn't care. I'm not going to stand for that."

Celgar catering contract let

VANCOUVER— Celgar Limited has announced the award of the contract for catering services for the construction camp at its pulp mill and new sawmill site near Castlegar, B.C. to Canus Services Ltd., of Vancouver. A total of 11 tenders were submitted.

Catering services will commence around June 1, and depending upon the number of construction workers employed on the the site, the number engaged in catering will vary from 25—150.

BLACKWOOD on BRIDGE

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

When you are the opening leader you cannot always be sure whether trumps represent your best opening or not. But when it does appear probable that your best action is to attack declarer's trumps, you must act without delay. You will seldom get a second chance to make your decision.

One tempo lost usually means a trick lost and that is often the game-going or slam-going trick for declarer.

Mr. Abel had little to go on in selecting his opening lead in today's hand. For no particular reason he finally chose the six of clubs.

Mr. Champion won this trick with the jack and looked the situation over. If he had cashed another club at this point or relinquished the lead to Miss Brash in either of the two plain suits, the optimistic contract could have been made. Miss Brash would have had time to ruff two of her losing clubs on the board.

Mr. Champion

But Mr. Champion made the right decision as usual. At trick two he switched to a trump. Miss Brash won in her hand and had no better play than to lead the last club off the board. Mr. Champion won and led back another trump. After this exchange there was no way for Miss Brash to avoid the loss of another club trick and the ace of hearts.

Mr. Champion's decision to shift to a trump at trick two was rather an easy one to make. Naturally he criticized his partner for not opening a trump, pointing out that such an opening would have enabled the defenders to lead all three trumps off the board, thus winning, eventually, four club tricks and the ace of hearts for a two-trick set.

Admittedly, the trump opening was not too clearly indicated in this deal although it is usually a pretty good shot when the bidding goes as it did today. Your left hand opponent, offering only a single raise of his partner's one-bid in a major suit, doesn't sound very strong. Often such a raise is based on ruffing values and not too much in high cards. And when that is the case, the sooner you lead trumps the better.
