BLACKWOOD on BRIDGE

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

"The fellow who consistently complains that every break goes against him probably isn't playing good bridge," remarked Mr. Champion. "One mark of a good player is the ability to overcome bad breaks and to make contracts even when every finesse is wrong."

This comment stemmed from the fact that Mr. Abel had gone down one at his contract of six hearts. Mrs. Keen opened a trump and Mr. Abel won and took a second round of trumps. He then cashed the king of diamonds, led a low diamond and finessed dummy's jack, Mr. Champion winning with the queen.

The diamond return was taken by dummy's ace and Mr. Abel then tried the spade finesse. When that lost, the contract was defeated.

Mr. Abel

"Sorry, partner," he said, "but I'd want to be in the same contract again on those cards. If either finesse works or if the diamonds break 3-3, I can make it. The odds in favor of one of those things must be overwhelming."

"That's beside the point," said Mr. Champion. "Six hearts was ice-cold all the time. You overlooked the winning play because it required laying down an ace from the ace-queen, something most people hate to do.

"But if it makes your contract, how can you hate it?"

Mr. Champion's argument was that you have to be good enough to recognize the need for an unusual play.

You usually avoid leading away from a doubleton ace-queen but that procedure would have brought home this slam. You win the opening lead in your own hand to preserve dummy's high heart entries.

Do not take a second round of trumps immediately as dummy's trumps represent vital entries. At trick two cash the ace of spades and follow with the queen.

Opening lead: Five of hearts.

Now, if the spades are divided no worse than 4-2, there are enough entries on the board to set up the fifth spade on which a diamond discard from the closed hand can be made. If it should turn out that spades are divided 5-1, the diamond finesse can still be tried as a last resort.
