Opening lead: Ten of ♠

The loser-on-loser play is part of the standard technique of any good declarer. However, the substitution of one loser for another is a device frequently overlooked by even the better dummy players. Declarer's establishment of his side suit in today's hand could have been facilitated had he been alert enough to trade one of his club losers for a spade loser.

The bidding proceeded smoothly. North's two diamond rebid is proper on this minimum holding. After South showed his second suit North gave a preference for hearts. Since a satisfactory fit had been established and South had the equivalent of an opening bid, he proceeded to game in hearts.

West opened the ten of spades. This was won in dummy and declarer forthwith set about to establish the club suit. He cashed the king and ace and then ruffed a third round with dummy's ten. East, however, overruffed with the jack and returned a low spade to partner's king. West won and played a fourth round of clubs and East was able to overruff dummy again for the third defensive trick with a diamond trick still to be reaped by East.

South should have recognized that he was subject to an overruff and on the third club, instead of trumping, should have discarded dummy's jack of spades. West could then continue with the fourth club and permit East to overruff dummy. But East would be giving up his natural trump trick and declarer, by transferring one club ruff to the spade suit, would confine his losers to one club, one diamond, and one overruff.

Volcano erupts

HILO, Hawaii (AP)—Lava spurted up 15 to 100 feet Monday from Kilauea volcano. It was the third eruption in three days.

Farmers of Pahoa, a village of 1,100 on the slopes of Kilauea, were ready to evacuate if lava threatens. Three other small farming villages were evacuated as the result of other recent eruptions and a series of earthquakes.

LITERARY FIND

LIVERPOOL, England (Reuters)—Professor Ken Muir of Liverpool University has found 20 unpublished poems which he believes were written by Sir Thomas Wyatt, who died in 1542. They were among 50 manuscripts he discovered while conducting examinations at Trinity College, Dublin.

The final date for the return of Tenant and Residents Elector Declaration form is 5 p.m. September 30, Assistant City Clerk David Wilson announced today. All those persons who wish to vote at the next civic election must hand in their forms by this date or their names will not be included in the list, he said.
