BLACKWOOD on BRIDGE

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

Have you ever noticed how the Mr. Meek in your game hates to cash his last trump when there is still a finesse to take on a hand? He has a horror of losing complete control and suffering the humiliation of having an entire side suit run against him.

Actually, this danger is often an illusion. There are many contracts which can be made, without risk, by the simple expedient of cashing all of the trumps.

I am not referring to the cases where you cash trumps for the purpose of executing a squeeze or with the hope that an opponent will make an error in discarding. The situation I mean is the one illustrated in today's deal—getting an exact count on the defender's hands.

Mr. Meek

The ace and king of spades won the first two tricks as Mr. Meek muttered something about his partner's optimistic bidding. He likes his contracts to be laydowns.

At trick three another spade was led. Mrs. Keen ruffed and Mr. Meek over-ruffed. He led a trump and Mr. Abel took the ace and returned a trump. Dummy's queen won and Mrs. Keen discarded a club. Mr. Meek led another trump to his king and Mrs. Keen dropped another club.

At this point Mr. Meek had one trump left and he held on to it grimly. He tried to break the diamond suit but on the third round Mr. Abel showed out, discarding a spade. Next he cashed dummy's king of clubs and led another club toward his ace-jack. Mrs. Keen played the six on the second club lead.

Mr. Meek had counted the hand as well as he could. He knew Mrs. Keen had started with exactly two spades, two hearts and four diamonds. Therefore, she originally had five clubs. Now she had one left. But was it the queen or not? There was no way to tell. Mr. Meek elected to finesse the jack and down he went.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	1 ♠	2 ♦	Pass
2 ♥	2 ♠	4 ♥	All Pass

Opening lead: King of spades.

Suppose he had cashed his last trump and discarded a club from dummy, before starting the diamonds. Mrs. Keen's only safe discard would have been a club, making a total of three club discards. Later, after the play of three rounds of diamonds, she would have played the eight of clubs on the king and the ten of clubs on the second lead of that suit.

She would then have played five clubs and she was known to have started with exactly that number. Unless it was a faulty deck, she couldn't have any more and so the play of the ace was bound to drop the queen.

Kelowna bags overtime goals to edge Trail

KELOWNA (CP) — Kelowna Packers came through with two fast goals in overtime play here Monday night to down Trail Smoke Eaters 6-4 in the opening game of the best-of-seven B.C. Savage Cup series.

The Smokies took a 1-0 first-period lead but the Packers tied it by the end of the second. The tight third period was goal for goal.

Burly Russ Kowalchuk led the Kelowna attack with two goals and one assist. Singles came from veteran Jim Middleton, Warren Hicks, Andy McCallum and Jack Taggart.

Pinoke McIntyre, Laurie Bursaw, George Ferguson and Don Fletcher scored for Trail.
