John Gerber of Houston, Tex., is the nonplaying captain of the United States team currently battling for the World's bridge championship in New York. His selection to head our forces is not only popular but well deserved. He has been one of the nation's top players for many years and was a member of the American team that finished second to Italy in last year's International matches.

Gerber helped gain a substantial swing for his team in today's hand taken from a recent national event. Seated East, he elected to pass in second position and listen to a round of bidding. With all his values concentrated in the minor suits, the prospects for outbidding the opponents were not bright, and he decided his best chance was to launch a surprise attack later on.

South opened in the third seat with four hearts and when the bidding reverted to Gerber he chose to call four no trump. Since he had passed originally it was more or less indicated that he was employing the bid in the sense that has come to be known as the "unusual no trump," which requests partner to bid his best minor. West bid five diamonds and North competed to five hearts. West doubled and this became the final contract.

The ace of diamonds was opened and, the Gerber held the remaining honors in the suit, he made no effort to signal a come on but played instead the discouraging five. It was clear to him that unless West held the ace of clubs there was not much hope for the defense, for the spade suit was readily establishable for discards. It was of vital necessity therefore to cash tricks at once before declarer obtained the lead.

West accordingly shifted to the ace of clubs on which Gerber signaled with the ten. Another club was cashed by the defenders for down one.

At the other table, Gerber's teammates reached the same contract of five hearts doubled, with the North-South cards. West led the ace of diamonds, but his partner followed enthusiastically with the king. West should have ignored the signal and shifted to the ace of clubs inasmuch as his partner had opened the bidding with one diamond and there was a grave risk that South would ruff the second round. However, West was confused by East's violent come on and continued with a second round of diamonds. Declarer ruffed, drew trumps and discarded his clubs on dummy's spades to score an overtrick. The total swing to Gerber's team on the hand was 850 points.

Powers' story unchanged after week's interrogation

NEW YORK (AP) — Spy pilot Francis Gary Powers, in nearly a week of interrogation, has told government intelligence officials substantially the same story he gave at his trial in the Soviet Union, the New York Times says.

In a Washington dispatch by Tom Wicker, The Times said U.S. intelligence officials have gained little additional knowledge on just how the U-2 pilot was brought down over Soviet territory on his spy flight.

Powers, exchanged a week ago for Soviet spy Col. Rudolf Abel, has been under intensive questioning at an undisclosed site virtually since his return. He met with his wife and parents only briefly.

What the government would most like to know is whether the Russians really shot down Powers' plane while it was flying at 68,000 feet over Russian territory, as he testified at his trial.

If so, the Russians have more effective anti - aircraft weapons than was believed.

Fisheries patrol boat slated for west coast

OTTAWA (CP)—A $774,000 fisheries patrol craft for the west coast will be built this year by Victoria Machinery Depot at Victoria, it was announced today.

The 95-foot vessel, designed to withstand heavy seas, will be used for search and rescue operations as well as normal fisheries patrol duties.

It will have four engines and twin screws capable of operating at 14 knots with a cruising range of 1,200 miles.

Trawlers land 70,000 pounds of bottom fish

Three beam trawlers landed a total of 70,000 pounds of bottom fish from Area 5 at Prince Rupert during the week ending February 10, the Department of Fisheries reported today.

The landing included 39,000 pounds of grey cod at 2½ to 6 cents a pound; 8,000 pounds of sole at 3½ to 5 cents and 23,000 pounds of scrap fish at 2 cents per pound.

Herring landing amounting to 6,567 tons were landed by 50 herring seiners, which were operating in Areas 4 and 5.

Clam landings of 90,000 pounds were worth 2½ to 3½ cents per pound. In addition, 4,000 pounds of shrimp were taken from Area 4.
