The Institute of Journalists has abandoned its proposed meeting in Canada this year, so much time having been lost in arranging the details that it is now felt impossible to proceed further.

PORCHER ISLAND MAILS

Editor Prince Rupert News:

Sir,—Publicity and truth are often found to be a remedy for many troubles, and although the correct authorities will be notified, it is too funny and ridiculous to let this tit bit escape notice.

On the islands and mainland points people have been petitioning for a mail service, and a better mail service. Now our good and most kindly government have opened up their hearts and done (something). The islands are to have a better service at last. But how about the following and no doubt there are many similar instances where those bright sparks who illuminate the postal service, and radiate their wonderful intelligence show their keen sagacity.

On Saturday March 22 a letter was posted at Refuge Bay addressed to Skidegate. On that date at 10 p.m. the ss. Prince John left Prince Rupert with mail for Refuge Bay, Skidegate and other island points, going direct from here to Skidegate, and yet the postal officials placed this letter in the mail sack for Prince Rupert. The mail boat is due out again from Prince Rupert today April 7th, which takes said letter over the same route twice. All because the postal official at Refuge Bay claims to have received no instructions. Is this not annoying and ridiculous? Does it look like an improved service? Not only will it hinder business development, but its a loss of time and money to all.

OCEAN FALLS CO. HAD NO RIGHT TO ISSUE DEBENTURES

The tremendous nature of this contention, if upheld by the courts, consists in the fact that the original board of directors arranged a first issue of debentures to raise a sum of $2,000,000 and later on arranged a second debenture issue of $1,500,000. To secure the debenture holders the directors on January 8, 1910, gave a debenture holders' trust deed, covering the entire assets of the company. It is by virtue of this debenture holders' trust deed that Mr. Archer B. Martin, receiver for the debenture holders, has authorized the sale of the company's assets by auction on Monday morning next. These assets include over 80,000 acres of timber leases, the townsite at Ocean Falls with hotel, buildings, lumber mill, pulp mill, water power, a retail lumber yard at Prince Rupert, and three vessels engaged in the company's work.

NEW FILMS AT THE EMPRESS.

Four new photoplays will be shown at the Empress tonight of a more than usually excellent description. With the exception of one domestic comedy called "The Gossip," they are all dramas of stirring romance and adventure and cannot fail to be enjoyed by old and young alike. Their titles give some indication of what they are and what may be expected, beginning with "How Betty Captured the Outlaw," "Told in California," which state is still a country of thrilling romance, and "Buckskin Jack, the Earl of Glenmore." There is also a reel depicting the gorgeous scenery of Yellowstone Park and a fine program of incidental music to be given under the baton of Musical Director Williams.

LOCAL NEWS ITEMS.

Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Whiteford came in by the train on Sunday evening and are staying with Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Mobley. Mr. Whiteford, who is in partnership with Mr. Mobley in the salt mine proposition at mile 45, is here to discuss matters in connection with the development of the same. The bed of salt which was struck a short time ago gives every indication of turning out quite up to the high expectations of the owners, as it has been bored to a considerable depth without reaching the bottom of it.

Frank Ennis, a workman employed at the Grand Trunk shops, was sent to the hospital this morning. While at work a week ago he suffered a sever sprain to his side. The pain came on again yesterday and he deemed it advisable to go to the hospital this morning.

A SPLENDID ATTRACTION.

Tonight and tomorrow night will be red letter nights at the popular Westholme Theatre. First of all there will be shown an extra fine British Gazette showing King George leaving Sandringham Palace, the charity ball at the Savoy Hotel, London; the President of the French republic at Paris, and many other interesting Old Country scenes.

The piece de resistance will be a magnificent three reel Imp de luxe feature entitled "Leah the Forsaken." Nothing finer than this splendid picture play has ever been seen in Prince Rupert and no one should miss this rare treat.

A special feature of the performance will be the incidental music played during these pictures by the Westholme orchestra, an organization of which Prince Rupert feels justly proud. Among the numbers played will be the famous "Merchant of Venice" incidental music, a grand selection from Thais by Massanet and the wonderful Egyptian ballet by Luigini. Such music is very seldom heard outside of the very large cities such as London, Berlin and New York.

MORGAN'S OPERATIONS THROWN INTO SHADE

England's Great Sea Monopolist Is the Controller of an Immense Fleet.

London, April 16.—Sir Owen Philipps is today the greatest monopolist of the sea the world has ever known. Beside him, in this branch of commerce, J. P. Morgan is merely a two-cent proposition. By his recent purchase of the Nelson line the English knight has secured the control of a fleet of mail merchant steamers far greater than that owned by any company in the world. Hundreds of vessels, thousands of employees and millions of dollars invested in steamers are at his disposal. It is Philipps first—the rest nowhere.

When Morgan pulled off his trans-Atlantic steamship combine all the world talked about it. Philipps has been doing this sort of thing for the last six years, but he has done it in the same nonchalant, quiet sort of way in which he takes his luncheon. Company after company has been absorbed until today, under the direct control of this one man, there are more vessels and greater tonnage than are owned by any American, German or French combine. The trade of Africa and South America is almost entirely in his hands.

On Last Night's Train.
