Opening lead: Seven of ♦

Declarer failed to pay adequate heed to the warning inherent in his opponent's opening lead today and took no steps to protect himself.

The bidding requires little comment, though perhaps a word should be said concerning South's four heart bid. He feared that if his partner had only one club stopper and lacked the ace of hearts, there might not be enough time in which to develop nine tricks at three no trump.

West led the seven of diamonds despite declarer's bid of that suit, which gave it all the earmarks of a singleton. Dummy played low, and East's eight forced declarer's king. Trumps were attacked immediately and, East lost no time in taking the ace and returning the queen of diamonds. South was quite convinced from the demeanor of the adversaries that his ace was going to be ruffed; so with an air of resignation and in the spirit of "what difference does it make?" he covered, and West put a little trump to good use. He then got out with a club, forcing dummy's ace. The remaining trumps were drawn, and while declarer was able to discard the losing club on a high spade, when the suit did not break, he was left with two losing diamonds and had to submit to a one trick set.

South had managed his assets rather incautiously. Careful play of the diamond suit would have permitted fulfilment of the contract even against the bad break. When the queen of diamonds came back, declarer should have refused to cover, and West would have taken some useless discard. Now when East continues with a low diamond, South need not put up his ace but, he plays low and West is permitted to ruff away a loser rather than a winner. Declarer wins the return, draws trumps, discards a club, and gives up in all one heart, one diamond, and a diamond ruff.

BATHURST, N.B. (CP) — Thomas Fraser, fly-fishing in a beaver pond near here, felt a tremendous tug on the line and after a 20-minute struggle hauled in a 25-pound beaver. He released the hook from the neck of the frightened animal which scurried away.
