West recovered from a mild mental lapse during the bidding and by a daring bit of defence defeated a slam contract in today's hand taken from an important tournament.

North opened with one diamond and East overcalled with one spade. South bid two hearts and West injected himself into the proceedings with a snooping bid of two spades. North raised his partner freely to three hearts and East competed by bidding three spades. When South temporized with a bid of four diamonds, West elected to pass. He was convinced that no real risk was involved, for it seemed apparent that the opposition was heavily loaded in the red suits and that some highly enterprising contract would eventually be reached.

When North returned to four hearts, South considered it an opportune time to ask for aces and West, under the mistaken impression that East would be on lead against an eventual heart contract, bid five diamonds to designate his void. North passed. East bid five spades and South, cognizant of the impending ruff, abandoned the higher ranking heart contract in favor of six diamonds. North, however, persisted to six hearts, for with West on lead he reasoned rather loosely that the diamond ruff was not immediately available. West doubled and all hands passed.

West was willing to speculate on East's possession of the king of clubs as part of the values for his overcall and led the deuce of clubs. East played the queen, and surprise at winning the trick did not prevent him from returning a diamond.

SEATTLE (AP) — There was a light in the eye of Seattle Totem coach Keith Allen Tuesday, occasioned by the return to the hockey wars of veteran Rudy Filion. Filion, a Western Hockey League standout for 14 years, had indicated he would retire this year. But, Tuesday, Filion returned to the fold.
