8. Cards of Thanks

In loving memory of a dear son and brother Lawrence Jonasson.
Silent thoughts and memories dear
Treasured more each passing year,
With memories sweet and tender
In silence we remember;
As it dawns another year.
Always lovingly remembered by Dad, Mom and sister Lorraine. (50)

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	Double	2 ♠	3 ♡
Pass	4 ♡	Pass	Pass
Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠

A reluctance to use up the only high card in his hand proved fatal to East's cause in today's hand.

West managed to scrape together a one spade opening, and North had a very sound take-out double. East's raise to two spades was a mildly preemptive effort. We approve heartily of South's three heart bid, for altho a superficial analyst might comment on the fact that he has only two kings, what is more to the point is that he might not have had that much, and unless he shows some signs of life partner will be placed under considerable pressure on his next bid. North's raise to four hearts was routine.

West opened the king of spades on which East contributed the six. In response to his partner's signal, West continued with another spade forcing the dummy to ruff. South cashed the ace and king of hearts and, tho the suit did not break, he had no trouble establishing dummy's clubs for enough diamond discards to restrict his losses to one spade, one heart and one club.

When East permitted the king of spades to hold at trick one, the defense was damaged beyond all repair. It would have done West no good to shift to a diamond at this point for, even tho East's jack of diamonds forces out declarer's king, West can never lead the suit again safely. South will have plenty of time to establish the clubs, while North still retains the ace of diamonds.

Observe what happens, however, if East overtakes West's king of spades in order to make a play for his partner. His shift, of course, is to the deuce of diamonds. If South puts in the eight, West's nine will force the ace and now, when he gets in with the ace of clubs, he is in position to continue the attack against declarer's king of diamonds. South can draw two rounds of trumps but, when he tries to run the clubs, East ruffs in on the third round in time to cash the setting trick in diamonds.
