Boxer dies

NEW YORK (AP)—Tommy Pacheco, 20-yearold Puerto Rican who suffered a head injury in a boxing match last Monday, died early today.

Benny Gordon stopped Pacheco 11 seconds before the end of a scheduled 10-rounder. He underwent surgery for removal of a blood clot on his brain and never regained consciousness.

It was Pacheco's 13th professional fight. He didn't absorb a hard blow until the 10th round. Gordon let loose a series of lefts and rights to the head and Pacheco collapsed over the ring ropes.

BLACKWOOD on BRIDGE

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

When you discover a line of play which appears to be capable of success, it is wise to refrain from accepting it immediately—at least to the exclusion of all other possibilities.

Don't forget that there are two hostile enemies on your right and left who will be doing everything they can to foul up your plans. Maybe there is a second line of play that is even better than the first.

Or perhaps the first plan needs to be amended or (as in today's deal) timed differently.

Mr. Dale led the trey of hearts and his partner won with the ace and returned the suit. He won the second heart with the king and led his last one, which Mr. Abel ruffed.

Mr. Abel

Mr. Abel led a low spade to dummy's queen and Mrs. Keen showed out, discarding a diamond.

Now, on the surface, the problem did not seem too difficult. Mr. Abel could finesse dummy's ten of spades without risk, win six tricks in the suit and lose none.

He had three easy diamond winners. And, since Mrs. Keen had opened the bidding, she surely had the ace of clubs so that the king of that suit would furnish a tenth trick. All very neat, but see what happened.

At trick five Mr. Abel came to his hand with the ace of diamonds. There would be no bobble for Mr. Champion to criticize this time, he told himself.

He led a small spade and finessed dummy's 10. He cashed the king of spades. Now he led a club toward his king. But here the roof fell in.

Mrs. Keen won with the ace and returned a heart. Mr. Abel saw, too late, that no matter what he did, Mr. Dale would win the setting trick with the jack of trumps.

He should have avoided this disaster. The general plan was all right, but he could have timed it differently.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 ♥	1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	4 ♠	All Pass

Opening lead: Trey of hearts.

The time to lead a club toward his king was at trick five—while the king and 10 of spades were still on the board.

If Mrs. Keen took the ace of clubs and returned a heart, her side would gain nothing. Mr. Abel would ruff in his hand and Mr. Dale would be powerless. If he overruffed, he would in turn be overruffed by dummy.

If he discarded, then Mr. Abel would win the trick and continue with his original plan. He would finesse the 10 of spades, cash the king, return to his hand via the ace of diamonds.

Then he could cash the ace of spades and spread the hand for four-odd.

BEDFORD, England (CP)—Residents complain that the first smokeless zone in this Midland town is being spoiled by garden bonfires. The health department says it can regulate only smoke coming from chimneys.

Ferry sets records

SIDNEY, B.C. (CP)—The British Columbia government opened its swift ferry service between Vancouver Island and the mainland today with a record-breaking pre-inaugural run and a minor mishap in which the ferry hit a floating log and buckled a plate.

The $3,000,000 ferry MV Sidney took one hour and 28 minutes in a pre-inauguural run from Tsawwassen, south of Vancouver, to nearby Swartz Bay, the Vancouver Island terminal.

KAMLOOPS (CP)—A three-year-old Brocklehurst boy died Thursday when he and three companions were buried alive beneath three feet of sand following a cave-in at an excavation for his new home.
