Coping with a seven card trump holding presents a severe mental hazard to a great many players. When the opposition holds six trumps, maintaining control of the hand is apt to be a very tenuous proposition. Even an experienced declarer may stumble and fall, as will be seen in today's hand.

The bidding meets with our approval. South's sequence of calls describes a powerful hand with two good five card suits. North was eventually obliged to admit a reluctant preference for spades, and it turned out that this was the only game contract that had a legitimate play.

West opened the three of diamonds and East's king went to the ace. Declarer immediately ruffed the three of clubs in dummy in order to dispose of a possible loser in that suit. The eight of spades was led next and passed into West's queen. A low diamond brought forth the jack from East and a trump from declarer. The king of spades drove out the ace but another diamond reduced declarer to a single trump. He now played the jack of spades but, when East showed out, West still had a spade left to regain the lead subsequently and cash the setting trick with the queen of diamonds.

Rather than trying to pull trumps with only a bare majority, declarer should have planned to cash as many of his side tricks as possible, and then put dummy's trumps to good use by ruffing out the excess clubs.

After winning the diamond opening, South can lead a heart over to the king and then return to his ace. Then come three high clubs to which everyone follows. Next the trey of clubs is trumped with the eight of spades. If anyone overruffs, declarer need not be concerned, for he is now assured of 10 tricks. When the eight of spades holds, a diamond is trumped in the closed hand and the last club is led toward dummy's nine of spades. On this line of play the defenders will be restricted to the ace and queen of trumps.

Man burns bank notes

LONDON (AP)—Charlie Bradby has burned his last million.

For three years Charlie, a stoker at London's Battersea power station, has been feeding cancelled Bank of England notes to the huge coal furnaces.

During that time 43-year-old Charlie, who used to be a plumber, reckons he has watched well over £1,000,000,000 curl up in smoke.

"The first day the bank boys came here they brought £9,000,-000 all with holes punched in them to cancel them.

"We all just about fainted. The foreman had to shout at us to get a move on. It nearly broke my heart but later we just took it all for granted."

Now the bank has acquired its own money burner and Charlie is taking the news like a man.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A presidential advisory panel has recommended giving government more power to deal with national emergency labor strikes.

For one thing, the president would have the authority to halt such strikes for an 80-day cooling-off period without obtaining court injunctions. Fact - finding groups appointed by the president would be empowered to suggest settlement terms.

Contract signed

H. U. Allen, a representative of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America (CLC), announced Tuesday that the contract had come into effect.

India grows stronger

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — India is growing stronger to face the possibility of war with Communist China over their border dispute, Prime Minister Nehru said.

He made the comment to Parliament as his government issued the text of a 3,000 - word note to China dated April 30 and saying India is not prepared to negotiate any settlement of the long - standing border quarrel while China occupies parts of Indian territory.
