Fruit Trees Loaded Down Plums Like Swarms of Bees at Terrace Says Dr. Grant

"I never go to Terrace without feeling the possibilities of wonderful development that are in store for the valley," said Dr. H. R. Grant in addressing the Rotary Club yesterday afternoon. "I am told that the mining prospects are very good, that the petroleum prospects are at least fifty-fifty; but of the basic industry, farming and fruit-growing, I know that the prospects are wonderful. There has not been much done yet and very few of the people there understand much about orcharding, but in spite of that the trees are loaded down with fruit, and clusters of plums are there like swarms of bees on the boughs. The bush fruits are astonishing, and I am getting photographs made that will show people everywhere what can be done."

Dr. Grant has recently returned from spending five weeks on his fruit plot at Terrace and he said that the oftener he went the better he liked the place. If more people went they would realize the possibilities and it would work out well for both the district and the visitors.

Happier Than Rupert.

The speaker said he thought the people of Terrace were happier than those in Prince Rupert. He never heard there comments on the possibility of a bad winter. They all had sufficient spuds, cabbages and carrots and other necessities and with a few groceries they could all pull through. They had the spirit of happiness within themselves.

The Okanagan valley had realized its possibilities in fruit growing, and the Kootenay, which was formerly devoted to mining, had turned to orcharding and agriculture and had made good. This district also would develop equally as well. The place was admirably suited to those who were tired of the whirl of city life and had in itself an element of strength which was most attractive.

Close Neighbors.

Terrace was close to Prince Rupert, Dr. Grant stated, and complaint was made sometimes that the shippers there were not treated in the best possible way. One man had framed in his home a check for five cents which he received in payment for a shipment of vegetables. There ought to be some humanity even in business, he thought. In future the people here would not have to send away for their produce as much as in the past. He suggested that local businessmen and Terrace growers get together and talk matters over with a view to closer relationships.

The speaker commented on the fact that many of the berries shipped last season went to Edmonton and other eastern points instead of coming here. Getting together would be good for both Terrace and Prince Rupert.

"I have lived in the south and in the north," said the Doctor, "and I know that the north is fuller of inspiration and idealism than the south. To any man there is no greater inspiration than to take part in the development of our inheritance and I believe that no district in the north has in itself more possibilities than has the Terrace Valley. If youth could see as age sees, there would be no depression in Northern British Columbia but every man would be buckling to and developing this greatest portion of Canada."

Country Humor.

"Pretty hot, farmer," remarked a vacationist to an old fellow on a blazing day in July.

"Yes," was the reply. "If it wasn't fer one thing I'd say we wuz goin' to have a thaw."

"And what't that?"

"Thar ain't nothin' froze, by gosh."—Boston Transcript.

BEARS BROKE INTO HOUSES

Two Raids Made By Bruin on Dawson-Whitehorse Winter Trail.

DAWSON, Aug. 26.—A letter received here from Jack Gray, who is in charge of the Dawson-Whitehorse winter trail roadhouses, including the Braeburn and the Nordenskiold, on the southern end of the route, states that bear recently broke into the two houses and did much damage. Both houses had been barricaded against the bears for the summer by placing heavy board coverings over each window. The bears succeeded in ripping the boards from the windows, and breaking through them.

At Braeburn, one persistent member of the bruin family went through a small window and, once in, he proceeded to smash things generally. He broke all the panes of glass in the house from the inside, smashed up the furniture, tore open the supplies which had been left, and made the place look like a bomb had exploded there.

"The Inside of the Cup" Big Feature at Westholme Theatre Tonight.

To those who have never seen the interior of a big department store in New York, several scenes of "The Inside of the Cup," the new picture which will be shown at the Westholme Theatre tonight, will be of more than average interest.

In the film version of Winston Churchill's story Kate Marcy, one of the principal characters, is a salesgirl in a metropolitan store. Although innocent of crime, she is accused of the theft of a handbag and discharged. She sinks into the depths and is later reclaimed and finds happiness in the love of the son of the man who had been the cause of her undoing.

To make this scene perfect in every detail Director Capellani arranged with the head of a great uptown department store in New York for the use of his basement after business hours. Great electric lights were installed and the entire company brought to the store where, in the presence of a picked audience, the various scenes leading up to Kate's degradation were filmed.

"The Inside of the Cup" is a powerful Paramount picture, said to be one of the best produced in many months. The roles are in competent hands, the leading man being William P. Carleton and the leading woman Edith Hallor.
