INDIANS SAVED FROM HUNGER

Dr. F. L. Forbes Reports a Big Catch Along Upper Yukon and Tributaries.

JUNEAU, — "Fish, along the Yukon and its tributaries, will be both abundant and cheap this year, and the Indians will have a prosperous season," according to Dr. F. L. Forbes, superintendent of the Bureau of Education in the Upper Yukon district, who is in Juneau visiting his daughter, Miss Ethel Forbes.

"The catch, by the middle of July was as large as that of the whole season last year and the big run is expected in August and September," Dr. Forbes explained.

"The shortage of fish last year was serious, not only because it left the Indians poor, but because it extended to the spawning grounds and the catch four years from now will thus be correspondingly small.

"The financial depression among the natives resulting from the poor fishing season last year was saved by the muskrat catch this spring. The merchants, who had carried the natives on credit for as much as $30,000 during the winter, bought quantities of the skins. In Fort Yukon, the natives sold 75,000 for $1.50 and $2.00.

"After Christmas, with the shortage of fish and an abundance of Indians would be destitute for food. However, because of the deep snow the moose and caribou were unable to range in the hills or run in the lower lands and killing moose was like going into a slaughter house to kill beef. If it had not been for the illicit slaughter of moose, the people, whites as well as natives, would have been short of proper food.

Dr. Forbes, whose territory covers the Yukon and its tributaries from Eagle to the upper mouth of the Innoko, 2,500 miles of navigable streams, has spent the last two years in the interior. Last year he covered the schools of the territory three times travelling 7,000 miles. Of course, 1,700 miles were made by dog team.

Dr. Forbes will leave next week for Seattle, where he will confer with W. T. Lopp, chief of this division for the Bureau of Education.

IS A SUMMER COTTAGE A PRIVATE DWELLING?

Upon Decision Hangs a Magistrate's Judgment in Liquor Case.

ST. THOMAS, August 17.—The point of law whether a cottage at a summer resort may be regarded as a private dwelling within the meaning of the Ontario Temperance Act has been raised in one of the most curious liquor cases that has come up in the County Court for some time. Last week License Commissioner Ross confiscated five cases of whiskey consigned to William O'Connor, a Hamilton man spending the summer at Port Stanley. During the night the whiskey was stolen from the express office.

O'Connor appeared before County Police Magistrate Hunt charged with getting liquor for the purpose of sale. After hearing the evidence the Squire stated that in his opinion the defendant was within his rights in getting the liquor, providing it was to be taken to a private dwelling, but his worship had grave doubts about the summer cottage being a private dwelling. He therefore reserved judgment for one week in order to inquire further into the matter.

O'Connor admitted in court that he shared the cottage with his brother-in-law, and the Squire expressed an opinon that this would make the cottage other than a private dwelling.

At the same time that O'Connor's whiskey was seized, Inspector Ross also confiscated ten cases consigned to the brother-in-law, and they also have disappeared from the express office.

O'Connor, through his counsel, contends that the liquor was not in his possession and had not been taken from the express office, therefore he is not guilty of violation of the O.T.A. If the case is decided in his favor it is reported that O'Connor has threatened suit against the express company and also against Inspector Ross.

ANOTHER CROWD HEARS LECTURE

Lieut. Helmsing of Navy League Gets Another Good Reception.

Another excellent turnout greeted Lieut. Helmsing in his lecture on the "Blockade of Zeebrugge Canal" which he delivered at the Westholme Theatre last night after the first show. Although this was the second time the lecture had been given here it was just as enthusiastically received as at first.

Lieut. Helmsing is a fluent speaker and his lantern slides made the whole address most interesting and enlightennig, bringing forth the conduct and effect of this naval coup plainly before all. The officer mentioned Lieut. Alex Young, son of Judge and Mrs. F. McB. Young, of this city, who also went through the engagement. The speaker was introduced by J. F. McGuire, chairman of the local branch of the Navy League.

Lieut. Helmsing expects to return south by the Prince Rupert Thursday night.

DEALS WITH THE STEAMER SITUATION

Any juggling with the steamship service of Alaska, declares the Valdez Miner, would be a disastrous blow to the Territory, and would probably give our people the worst times they have ever experienced. It may be true, admits the coast paper, that the steamship companies charge huge freight rates, but they are in line with other charges. Up to two years ago our people had little to complain of in their treatment by the steamship lines. Fares were cheap, freight rates were reasonable, and we had good service. When one considers that twelve ships of over two thousand tons each are plying to Alaskan waters with a population of but about 30,000 persons to serve, it must be seen that charges must be high if we are to have the boats. It is unfair to charge the steamship companies with extortion in the face of present high prices.

W. G. Pinder of Queen Charlotte City is a visitor in the city, having arrived on the Grand Trunk steamer Prince John last evening.
