Community Interest of Whole North.

There is a community interest in this north country. We have many interests in common, although on minor questions we may be divided. We are pretty well cut off from the south by a gap of unsettled country, and as a result we look rather east and west for our affiliations. The railway binds us.

It is interesting to the people of Prince Rupert to know that the daily messages to them through this paper are read also by the people of the whole northern and central part of the province. It helps to make us feel that we have common interests. The mining camps of Anyox, Alice Arm and Stewart are very near to us, in sentiment if not in physical location. The pulp and paper towns of Swanson Bay and Ocean Falls are not far away. The new fruit and mining town of Terrace is where Prince Rupert people spend their holidays. The other communities along the line right to Prince George are kept closely in touch with this city through the medium of this paper. There is no other medium except the occasional travel back and forth.

In the interior there are some excellent weekly papers that deal more particularly with the farming and mining interests of the interior. Prince Rupert is to a large extent left out of their calculations. It remains for The Daily News, while bringing them the latest telegraphic despatches of the world, to also bring to the people of the interior and the coast towns that personal touch of community interest which is so important, especially in securing for the north its proper share of recognition. We try to send a daily message which will be of interest to them. It is the only means by which we can keep in close touch with each other and at the same time keep in touch with the outside world.

Amusement Is Not a Crime.

It would be well for the Quebec Legislature to preserve a proper balance when it comes to the question of how and whence to obtain revenue, says the Financial Times.

A disposition has been shown to pile taxation on to the movie picture houses and other places of entertainment and means of public amusement.

In a general way the government seems to proceed on the assumption that the movie houses are making money out of the public without giving anything material in return—that amusement houses are not essential to the prosperity of the community anyway, that people could spend their money and time better than by attending these places, and if they cannot be prevented should at least be made to pay taxes to the government.

Either the government argues this way or it simply sees, or thinks it sees, a source from which revenue can be most easily derived, and so proceeds to derive it. With the latest addition the tax has become so heavy that the houses can no longer pay it and will either have to band together and get redress or go out of business.

Town Would Be Dead Without Pictures.

In our more youthful days there were comparatively few amusements. Those who were fortunate enough to be employed worked all day, ate their meals, went to bed, and in the intervals Satan found some mischief for them to do. Inferior as may be many of the modern picture house amusements, they are not only cheaper in the end but very much better than the absence of amusement.

Who can dispute, for instance, that a town without a picture show would be intolerable? Let anyone think of his town or city as it was in the days before the movies came along and hung out their electric lights, opened the doors and kept them open, and wakened the old place up, and if he can sigh for the days gone by we will understand what a nice cheerful, lively neighbor he must be.

The amusement house fills a real want in the lives of the people. Take the amusement away—that is, tax it out of existence—and there will be discontent and an increased police force. Those who were responsible for the conduct of the world war and learned the effect of organized amusements and entertainment upon the spirits and accomplishments of the soldiers, would need no persuasion on this point.

Our army of unemployed is just now rather numerous and is being added to each day. Better far that these should be able to drop in at times and get some cheer from a picture performance than that they should walk the streets or sit around the parks till they felt like outcasts and presently acted as such.

CRIPPLED WITH RHEUMATISM

Then She Took "FRUIT-A-TIVES" And Has Been Well Ever Since

MADAM SLOAT

PERTH JUNCTION, N.B., Jan. 22nd, 1920

"For many years, I was a great sufferer from Indigestion, Constipation and Rheumatism. My Stomach was weak and gave me constant distress, while Rheumatism in my joints made me almost a cripple. was treated by two different doctors but their medicine did me no good.

Then I tried "Fruit-a-tives" and at once that fruit medicine helped me. Soon the Constipation and Indigestion were relieved and the Rheumatism began to go away, and in a few months entirely disappeared. For twelve years now, my health has been first class, and I attribute it to the use of "Fruit-a-tives" which I take regularly".

POLITICS IN STORES UNDER LIQUOR BOARD ARE STRICTLY BANNED

VICTORIA, Oct. 1.—Orders have been issued to all employees of the Provincial Liquor Board that politics are strictly under the ban both during the forthcoming federal election and at any other time. They must take no part beyond voting at either Dominion, provincial or civic elections.

AGE OF FISH BY ITS SCALES

Experts Able to Tell Exactly by Use of Microscope.

Ketchikan, Oct. 1.—That the life of a fish is determined by the rings on its scales was shown by Dr. C. H. Gilbert, the greatest authority on fish in the United States, by a demonstration made in the J. R. Heckman and Company store.

By means of a microscope, fine rings, starting from the time the fish is hatched, show the number of days, months, and years spent in fresh water. When the fish finds its way into salt water these rings become much coarser. By the addition of the fine and coarse lines the length of life of the fish is determined.

Cutthroat Trout.

Recently a catch of cutthroat trout was made at Shrimp Bay, so large that one was saved by the J. R. Heckman Company for Dr. Gilbert to examine on his return from Kodiak, where he has been on a trip of inspection to the Yes Bay cannery.

By putting one of the scales under the microscope, Dr. Gilbert showed that it was six years old. The life of the cutthroat is eleven or twelve years, while the cohoe's life is only three and a half years.

Not a Theory.

'This is no theory,' Dr. Gilbert declared, "but has been proven by experiments many times."

Dr. Gilbert told an interesting experiment made by him at his home in Santa Cruz, California. He took some pure rainbow trout to a place five miles away, and wading out into the surf, threw them into the salt water.

The next morning, on going to his hatchery to get some more fry, he found that 75 per cent. had returned to the place from which they had been taken. The fish were identified by a wire which he had attached to the fins.

Dr. Gilbert is at the head of the Bureau of Fisheries of Stanford University.

Aunt Jemima's Helpful Hints

Aunt Jemima will answer any questions sent in by readers of The Daily News.

Bride—If the cockroach continues to trouble you, give it a gargle of turpentine three times a day, until it sicken and pines away.

Dear Aunt Jemima—I am in love with a boy who works in an office, but am worried about his health. He always showed me a good time and bought me a dandy diamond ring, but now he has gone away, leaving a note saying he had to leave for his health. O, what shall I do?

Your loving friend,
MILDRED FLOSSY.

Ans.—Aunt Jemima believes the young man is suffering from weakness in the spinal column of his ledger.

Mrs. McFudge writes:—"We have an old uncle who said he was going to leave us all his money, but he is getting married to a show girl in Chicago. He got acquainted with her in a Yankee matrimonial paper and she is coming here to marry him. What shall we do?"

Aunt Jemima's advice is that you write to the young woman, telling her how glad you are she is coming to marry and take care of the old gentleman after he lost all his money. Maybe the girl will change her mind about coming from Chicago.
