"DRAPING OF CHARTER"

Schedule for six months outlined to Rebekahs

Plans for the first half of 1960 were discussed Wednesday night when the Centennial Rebekah lodge No. 40 held its regular meeting in the Valhalla hall.

Mrs. W. D. McDade, vice-grand outlined a full and interesting schedule to include initiation of new members on the anniversary of Schyler Colfax, founder of Rebekahs, a "Mother and Daughter" social and the "Memorial Day" service to be held in June.

Plans were also discussed for the lodge's next meeting February 10 when members of Oddfellows and Rebekahs will unite to entertain friends at a social evening at 9 p.m. in honor of the birth of Thomas Wildey, founder of Oddfellowship.

Following a recent illness, Mrs. H. V. Tattersall was welcomed back in her chair as chaplain and she read the service for "The Draping of the Charter" held in memory of Mrs. Mary A Simpson who died in hospital last Friday.

Mrs. Simpson was a charter member of the Centennial lodge at its institution in 1919 and was a degree captain for many years.

"Nearer My God to Thee" was played during the ceremony while Mrs. Norman Moorehouse, past deputy president sang "There Is No Light There."

A social hour and refreshments served by hostesses Mrs. John Adams and Mrs. R. N. Boychuk concluded the session.

CONFIDENTIALLY YOURS
—by Byrne Hope Sanders

MONTREAL, Jan. 28th—How's your resolution casualty list? One reason New Year's resolutions fall by the wayside is that we sometimes aim too high. I discovered this last year when I resolved to end up '59 with money in the bank. It was a while before I caught on to saving what I could afford to save regularly at the BANK OF MONTREAL. Now I plan my savings like a day's shopping . . . try to make sure I can save comfortably, in easy stages so I won't give up half way through the year. The best plan is to have a B of M Personal Chequing Account for paying household bills. Keep it as your spending account separate from your Savings Account. Your local B of M manager will be glad to show you how a Personal Chequing Account works.

MOTHER, THEY'RE GOOD! . . . Yes, youngsters love wild-cherry flavoured Vita-Pops like candy . . . and new Wampole VITA-POPS are so good for them. They taste like candy yet they're really vitamins. You see, Vita-Pops contain precious vitamins A, C, D and B 12, the vitamins so essential for sound growth and good health. That's why wise mothers agree that one of the smartest things you can do to safeguard your youngsters' good health is to give them Vita-Pops—just one a day for each child will do the trick. I recommend you buy a 5 weeks' supply of Vita-Pops at $2.50 . . . or a 15 weeks' supply at only $5.95.

SKATING, SKIING, SLEDDING . . . these are the 'Big' Three' sports in wintertime, and they all produce the same result—enormous appetites! Best way I know to satisfy an active, hungry family is to be generous with nutritious BLUE BONNET MARGARINE. Add a pat of it to all your vegetables. Use it as a table spread and in sandwiches. Baking, too, is better when you use Blue Bonnet. That's because it's made from the finest ingredients . . . pure vegetable oils and pasteurized skim milk, with Vitamins A and D added. Get Blue Bonnet today—everything tastes better with Blue Bonnet on it!

ALWAYS HANDY ON MY KITCHEN SHELF . . . several of the bright, white tins of AYLMER FANCY PEAS —ASSORTED SIZES. Yes, I always keep a goodly supply on hand . . . they're delicious no matter how you serve them . . . piping hot with butter, or in stews or casserole dishes. You can count on Aylmer Peas to be sweet, tender and tasty because they're grown on selected Canadian farms, then harvested at flavour peak and rushed to nearby canneries, where they are sealed and cooked, often within the hour. Next time you shop, look for the bright, white tins labelled Aylmer Fancy Peas—Assorted Sizes!

MEMO TO LOVING MOTHERS . . . wives, sisters, aunts and daughters! When you prepare breakfasts for your dear ones—do remember the extra energy values provided by RED RIVER CEREAL. It's as nourishing as it's delicious—with a nutty, wholesome blend of cracked wheat, rye and flax. Easy to prepare; cooks in a few minutes and costs so little, too. One of the fine things about Red River is that while everyone enjoys it, it has special benefits for all. Here's why. Red River builds strong bodies for youngsters and active workers; yet guards regularity for older folks and sedentary workers. So serve the best hot breakfast there is . . . Red River!

HE'S A PET OF A PUP . . . and he'll always be the perfect pet if you make sure to give him the nourishment he needs . . . in DR. BALLARD'S CHAMPION DOG FOOD . . . Regular, Liver or Chicken. Dogs love all three flavours and all three contain the essential food values in the right proportions, including ample quantities of protein. In fact, it has been proved in actual analysis that Dr. Ballard's gives your dog up to 94% more nourishment than many of the so-called "bargain" brands selling at only a few cents less. No wonder your pet thrives, looks handsomer, is healthier, when you feed him Dr. Ballard's Champion Dog Food!

"WONDERFUL WOMAN"—That's what he'll be thinking as he sees you whipping up the scrumptious food for your party. Secret of many successes are the AYLMER Olives—Plain Queen, Stuffed Queen, or Manzanilla. Each type has the Aylmer sunshine-fresh flavour that's so popular, crisp and delicate to taste. I find that in these days of diet-conscious guests—most popular items on the relish tray are the Aylmer Olives. One of the famed group of Aylmer Pickles—Aylmer Wafer, Aylmer Sweet Mixed, and Aylmer Green Tomato Pickles. It's wonderful to have a variety of them always on hand!

ANY TIME YOU FEEL LIKE HAVING real party-like desserts I recommend this wonderfully easy way. It's with NESTLE'S PURE THICK CREAM, the rich country cream that stays fresh indefinitely, right on your cupboard shelf. Surprise everyone with an elegant parfait.

To the contents of 1 tin Nestle's Cream add 3 teaspoons of sugar and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Alternate this with layers of ice cream and fresh or frozen fruit in tall dessert glasses.

And this rich cream is extra-special over fresh apple pie. Wonderful for dressing up jelly desserts. Perfect for luscious filling and topping for your homemade shortcakes. In fact, I know once you have handy tins of fine quality Nestle's Pure Thick Cream in the house you'll never be without it.

"AFTER A BAD FALL ON AN ICY SIDEWALK, I suffered a great deal from rheumatic pain for eight years. Then, I am thankful to say, I decided to try TEMPLETON'S 'TRC's' and have had complete relief ever since." This word from a Saskatchewan woman reflects the testimony of many thousands who have known the long drawn-out agony of arthritic, neuritic or rheumatic pain—and have then found relief in 'TRC's.' If you are suffering yourself, or know of someone who is—do pass on word of the wonderful release from pain which is achieved through taking TRC's. They have helped so many men and women over so many years—they may be your answer too. Get them from your druggist.

Queen's nurse prepares for birth of royal child

LONDON (AP)—Queen Elizabeth doesn't mind whether her new baby is a prince or a princess.

Sister Helen Rowe, the little white-haired nurse who will assist at the birth, said today that the Queen told her as much in a recent letter.

And Sister Rowe, who has delivered hundreds of babies, said she would treat the royal birth the same as any of the others, adding:

"Her Majesty says she and Prince Philip will be happy with either a boy or a girl."

The Queen's third child is due any time now and today Sister Rowe is "awaiting a phone call to command my attendance at Buckingham Palace."

FOURTH ROYAL CHILD

Sister Rowe, who is in her early 60s, attended the Queen when both Prince Charles and Princess Anne were born. The new baby will be her fourth royal delivery—for she also attended the Duchess of Kent at the birth of Prince Michael.

"The Queen writes to me from time to time giving me a progress report on her children," Sister Rowe said.

When Sister Rowe goes to the palace she will have a room near the Queen's. By her bed will be a bell with which the Queen can summon her at any time.

Sister Rowe has made other people's babies her whole life, and spoke little about herself.

"I have delivered hundreds of babies, so many I can't remember exactly.

"And I don't intend to retire—ever. I like my job too much."

. . . Queen looking well.

Mrs. Ann Reid of Vancouver leaves tomorrow night aboard the Canadian Prince for her home following an extended holiday in the city as guest of her son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Donald Oakley.

First-nighters glued to seats by thriller

By DICK AYRES
Editor of The Daily News

Persons with a heart condition, poor nerves or a history of emotional instability should stay away from the Prince Rupert Little Theatre's production of "The Mousetrap."

The two hours of suspense will kill 'em.

That scream at the end of the first act when Molly Ralston finds a still-warm corpse on her living room rug, aged me 10 years.

It took three cups of black coffee before I could sit down and write this review after last night's performance in the Civic Centre, for which about 125 first-nighters braved a 40-mile-per-hour rain storm.

The action of Agatha Christie's two-act mystery is crowded into an afternoon and evening in the lives of eight persons, trapped by a blizzard in a guest house newly opened by Giles Ralston and his young wife Molly. Before the first act is over, the telephone lines have been cut and an objectionable widow named Mrs. Boyle has been bumped off.

Detective Sgt. Trotter is faced with six juicy suspects.

The murderer can be either Molly or her husband, neither of whom can account for their actions or any one of the following house guests.

(1) Christopher Wren, a "fairy"-like architect whose "breakdown" is one of the play's highlights; (2) the phoney foreigner Mr. Paravicini, a smooth trouble-maker; (3) a Colonel Blimp-type Major Metcalf who looks so innocent he could be guilty; or (4) Miss Caswell, a mannish, outspoken gal who knows more than she wishes to tell.

CAN'T TELL

I can't tell you who the murderer is. You'll just have to go tonight or tomorrow night to find out for yourselves.

The play, with its well-sustained pace, atmosphere of suspense and truly believable acting, was a credit to the actors and the direction of Madame Eva Kirkwood-Hackett.

Top marks go to first-time performer Bill Kinloch, who turned in a magnificent job as Christopher Wren, the effeminate, mixed up young man with a poisonous turn of mind. He didn't overact or let down all night.

Marion Thomas as Miss Caswell and Janelle Hayden as Molly Ralston shared runner-up honors. Mrs. Thomas as the brutally-frank and confident mystery woman from abroad was able to become frightened and diffident when trapped. Miss Hayden was very much the bride of one year, suddenly confronted with the fact that she knew nothing about Giles.

Veteran actors Robin Bird who played Major Metcalf and Owen Erwin who was Paravicini had "easy roles." Backed by a great deal of experience they turned in the flawless performances expected of them.

Rosemary Gilbert as Mrs. Boyle was excellent. She was rude, insulting and demanding. She was everything the part called for. She deserved to be murdered.

Bill Goldie was at home in his role of a relentless, frustrated police officer.

Gordon Nore as Giles Ralston, was a convincing though noisy husband to Molly. From the front row he appeared a bit too noisy.

Congratulations go to stage manager Harold Thomas and he crew for a most authentic set. Since the blizzard plays such an important part in the play more snow should fall for longer periods at the beginning. The audience is looking at the window, hearing about the snow for a long time. More snow on the coats of those coming in from outdoors is also needed.

Apart from that it was wonderful.

If my nerves weren't shot I'd go see it again.

Cathedral service to mark "National Health Week"

City residents in medical professions will assist in the Sunday night service at St. Andrew's Anglican Cathedral to mark Canada's 16th annual "National Health Week."

Sponsored by the Health League of Canada, a national citizens committee of the World Health organization, in cooperation with departments of health and education throughout the dominion, the Canada Health Week is being held from January 31 to February 6.

At the Cathedral service Sunday at 7:30 p.m. W. B. Withers, sanitary inspector of Skeena Health Unit will speak on community health; Mrs. Helena Edmeston, director of nursing at Miller Bay Indian hospital will speak on the work of the hospital while Dr. R. M. D. Waddell and Dr. G. E. Mostad will read the lessons.

"Purpose of the week is to make Canadians aware of the achievements of medical science in the areas of prevention and cure, and to point up the ways in which each Canadian can utilize these developments to have good health," the Health League of Canada said in a release today.

It was announced that one of the important suggestions of the Health League this year is that service clubs, boards of trade, home and school associations and other voluntary groups establish standing committees on health in order to apply locally the established principles of preventive medicine.
