BLACKWOOD on BRIDGE

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

Patience is quite a virtue at the bridge table, especially on defense. A combination of patience and counting brought about the defeat of today's three no-trump contract.

Mr. Dale led the eight of spades in response to his partner's overcall and the deuce was played from the board. It was up to Mr. Masters to make the killing play right here. The careless player or the player who tries to win by brute force would win with the king and return a spade. But not Mr. Masters. He prefers the delicate touch—and this was much more effective than the heavy-handed style in this particular deal.

He did not put up the king of spades, but he did play the nine in an effort to show that he was interested in continuation of the suit.

Mr. Abel

Mr. Masters counted the hand in this fashion. Dummy had 13 high card points and he had 10. Mr. Abel's two no trump call promised from 13 to 15 points. If Mr. Abel had the maximum of 15, then Mr. Dale could hardly have an entry and it was extremely unlikely that the contract could be defeated.

However, if Mr. Abel had a minimum 13-point hand, Mr. Dale could have an entry. Mr. Masters ducked the first spade, hoping this would leave a spade if the occasion arose.

Mr. Abel won the first trick with the jack of spades and counted up his winners. Four in diamonds, two in spades and two in hearts added up to eight. Obviously he had to get a club trick.

So at trick two he slyly led the eight of clubs, hoping to slip this one by Mr. Dale. But Mr. Dale was not dozing. He stepped in with the king and return his last spade.

When dummy played low this time, Mr. Masters won the king and led another spade, clearing the suit. Mr. Abel still had to develop a club winner and the next time clubs were led, Mr. Masters won with the ace and cashed two good spades to break the contract.

Title bouts offered Archie Moore

NEW YORK (AP)—Offers for two championship fights have been extended to veteran lightheavyweight Archie Moore.

Jack Fugazy, managing director of Feature Sports Inc., said he had wired separate offers to Jack Kearns, Moore's manager, for the aged scrapper to meet the winner of the Ingemar Johansson-Floyd Patterson heavyweight title bout this September and also German lightheavy contender Eric Schoppner. The Moore-Schoppner bout would be held early this summer.

The National Boxing Association recently relieved Moore of his title because he did not defend it within the required six months period. Archie is still the recognized champion in New York State.
