Provincial Issues Discussed by Hon. T. D. Pattullo at Annual Liberal Meeting Last Night

"Five more years for you, Duff," was a cry from the back of the hall last night as Hon. T. D. Pattullo rose to speak to the Liberals assembled in the old Carleton Cafe, Third Ave., for their annual meeting last night. Mr. Pattullo was given a rousing reception and so was Fred Stork who also addressed the meeting. Both spoke optimistically of the future prospects of the city, the country and the party. Mr. Pattullo asked for a high grade of Canadianism, for there was no better country on earth than Canada and the people were imbued with a high moral purpose. He asked that all get away from the spirit of pessimism.

"There are no pessimists in heaven," declared Mr. Pattullo, therefore they must all go to hell." He urged that the resources of the country be put to the greatest possible use in order to serve the whole people.

In opening his address, the minister of lands urged that Liberalism should stand for the good of the country. Partizan politics did not amount to much unless it stood for the good of the country first of all. There had recently been injected into the provincial field, he said, what was known as the provincial party. They were sowing the seeds of misinformation and the people were in a receptive mood to believe anything. The new party said the old parties were corrupt and incompetent, and if this was true he agreed that the sooner they were gone the better. He did not think they were, however.

Thorough Investigation

In regard to the charges made against the government in connection with the P.G.E., there would be a thorough investigation and he was not worrying as to the outcome. He thought it would be a good thing to settle the minds of the people by granting this investigation.

Taking up the matter of taxation, Mr. Pattullo objected to the statements that the government had been extravagant. He said that the people who were criticizing were unable to point out where reductions should be made. One of the planks of the provincial party was to give a business administration which was another way of saying "put the others out and put us in," for every party claimed to advocate business administration. Presuming that the members of the present government were honest, they ought to be in a better position to administer affairs in a businesslike manner than they were when first elected.

Burned Midnight Oil

Mr. Pattullo asked where would the critics of the government cut down the expenses? Would they close down the P.G.E.? He did not think any administration would dare do it. The University took half a million dollars a year, and would they close it? Admitting that it was started too early in the history of the province, now that it was an established institution he did not think any government would dare propose closing it. It was all right to talk economy but they should show where to economize. The members of the Oliver government had burned the midnight oil trying to find out where they could cut down on expenditures.

The present government was not responsible for the P.G.E. or for the University. Both were inherited legacies, but they were responsible for the expenditures of the mothers' pensions. Some people thought they were going too fast in this regard, but "we are not going to revoke the mothers' pensions. What is the provincial party going to do about it?" inquired the minister, amid applause.

Mr. Pattullo said the population of the province had trebled in twenty years and the province had to expand. Capital had to be invested. The province was paying its way on current account, but it was necessary to borrow on capital account for developing the country. It was not enough for the opponents of the government to say "put me in and I will reduce taxes." What people wanted to know was where the taxes were to be reduced. The administration was playing an important part in developing the country. In the development of agriculture, in mining and in timber they had done much. It was impossible to spend money on developing the country and reduce taxes at the same time.

Better Than Doles

The speaker reviewed the history of the early days of the administration when the men were returning from the war and money had to be spent on establishing industries and soldier settlement. Even if there had been losses on some of these, were they not much better than the Old Country system of granting doles. The Labor government in England were realizing that and doles there would cease. All government spent money at that time owing to the pressure brought to bear on them. He believed this government had carried out a sane and prudent policy and when election time came they would be asked to continue the good work.

RESIDENTS OF SEAL COVE WANT SIDEWALK

City Council Receives Petition Asking For Repair of Connection From Sixth Ave.

A petition signed by W. G. Oakley and 78 others asking that a new sidewalk be built from the terminus of Sixth Avenue East to Eighth Avenue at Seal Cove was presented to the city council last night and referred to the board of works and finance committee.

The petition pointed out that the present walk giving the desired connection was out of repair and dangerous. Admitting that the walk asked for would pass over private property, the residents stated that it would afford the only direct access from many residences to the sawmill and cold storage plant. It was estimated that 30 residents were using the present broken down walk and in the summer the number would be larger. Should the sawmill operate, it would still further be used. It was also a favorite route for holiday walkers.

Woodcock Dairies Ltd. Make Application to Council — Milk Depot and Farm Produce Mart Proposed

The Woodcock Dairies Ltd. had an application before the city council last night for a five-year lease of the old city market building on Fraser Street. In view of the fact that several thousand dollars would have to be spent in repairing the building, a year's free rent was asked. The application stated that it was the intention to use the building as a milk depot and a market place for all varieties of farm produce. The letter was referred to the board of works and finance committee.
