CHAPLIN'S LATEST THE PILGRIM HERE

Big Crowd Amused Last Night by Latest Comedy Scream

"The Pilgrim," a comedy classic in which Charles Chaplin rises to even greater heights of subtlety than he has ever before attained, was seen last night at the Westholme Theatre. It threatens to rival in point of popularity his unforgetable feature, "The Kid."

A four-reel feature production, rich in true humor, it provides entertainment that appeals to all classes of theatre-goers and again reveals Chaplin as the greatest living pantominist.

Thrills, humor and pathos permeate every foot of this film that at once convulses and intrigues the onlooker.

The story is that of an escaped convict who wends his way to Texas after donning the clothes he has stolen from a minister. At the small town where he leaves his train he is mistaken by the congregation of the church for the young minister who had been assigned there.

Thus is "The Pilgrim" unwittingly forced into the pulpit and taken into the home of church leaders. The complications that follow are screamingly funny. There is a precious situation concerning a plum pudding and a derby hat, while Charlie's pantomimic rendering of the story of David and Goliath from the pulpit, without the aid of subtitles, is a bit of incomparable acting.

AMERICAN BEAUTY ON KEEPING BEAUTIFUL

During the making of "The Beautiful Liar" at the Ambassador studios, Miss MacDonald, while busy on the set, was approached by one of the self-appointed walking delegates for the blue law movement. He had forced his way into the studios and insisted on talking to the star, saying that he was a magazine writer and wanted to interview her.

"How do you account for having been able to maintain for your entire film career the sobriquet of 'The American Beauty'?" asked the blue-law writer."

"Why, I go to picture shows on Sunday, don't object to harmless amusement, don't make myself a pest and don't try to preach blue laws," was Miss MacDonald's crushing reply.

SOUTH SEA DERELICT BECOMES RESPECTABLE

Harry Carey Plays Big Role in Man to Man at Westholme Tomorrow

"Man to Man," the big picture starring Harry Carey at the Westholme tomorrow, recounts the struggles of a young man who fights his way from the degradation of a South Sea derelict back to respectability in his home country—the cattle lands of the West. It is a story which might have been written for Carey. It provided him with the he-man of a role which he has made famous on the screen.

Unusual for a "Western" picture, "Man to Man" also includes a sequence of scenes laid in the South Seas. It was a novelty for Carey to play the role of a South Sea beachcomber, but his remarkable work in the tramp roles in "Overland Red" and "Sundown Slim," two of his former impersonations, helped him wonderfully in portraying a Tahiti derelict.

TOO MANY DADDIES HAS BABY ACTOR IN MEIGHAN PICTURE

Alfred Green, who directed Thomas Meighan in the Paramount picture, "The Bachelor Daddy," had his troubles, due to the presence of five children in the cast, Mr. Meighen, being supposedly the proxy daddy of five children in this new story, which will be screened at the Westholme Theatre at the week end.

One of the children had to be a mere baby and for the scenes it was necessary for the child to recognize Mr. Meighan as his daddy. Mr. Green tried little Bobby Jackson, brother of Charlotte Jackson, the principal child actress in the cast, but Bobby was teething and wouldn't recognize anybody but his mother.

So Bruce Guerin, a bright youngster, was found and told that Mr. Meighan was his daddy. This suited him fine, but Bruce was no respecter of persons. No sooner had he left the scene then he began to pick up daddies all over the studio. He met Waldemar Young, scenarist and shouted:

"There's my daddy."

Next he chose Walter Hiers, the heavyweight comedian. T. Roy Barnes was then picked out by the youngster. After looking over several others, he pointed to Oscar, the colored bootblack at the studio and in all seriousness said:

"No, that's my daddy."

"We'd better get the boy back near Meighan before he gets too many daddies around here," said Green, and forthwith an order was issued for little Bruce to be kept near the star.

EAGLE PARTY WAS DELIGHTED

scenery by daylight. They were keenly delighted with it all and said there was nothing in the world to compare with it, and it alone would have been worth the whole trip. Six stops were made in the Skeena River valley. The first was at Bulkley Lake where several members of the party enjoyed an early morning swim. At Bulkley Gate, the saw the wonderful canyon formation and at Kitwanga Conductor W. D. Moxley piloted them through the Indian village. The Seven Sisters and O.K. mountains and the Kitselas Canyon also proved very interesting.

Buffalo Steak

While coming west yesterday, the excursionists were treated to buffalo steak which was sent from Wainwright, Alta. B. C. fruit was also served.

The party was loud in its praises of the service given by the Canadian National Railways which handled the excursion from Montreal to Prince Rupert and expressed appreciation in the ceremony which took place on the special train on Saturday when C. K. Howard, general tourist agent, Montreal, who accompanied the party across Canada, was presented with a solid gold Gruen Verithin 20-jewel watch suitably engraved.

The special train on which the Eagle party made its trip across Canada consisted of four Pullman compartment cars, C.N.R. parlor observation, dining and special baggage cars. The train was equipped with radio outfit in charge of J. P. McQuade, C.N.R. electrician. C. L. Gillespie, private secretary to Mr. Howard, was also at the disposal of the party in a clerical capacity through the trip. R. F. McNaughton, district passenger agent, accompanied the party from Smithers west.

Jasper Lodge Dedicated

At Jasper Park, the C.N.R. lodge was dedicated by the party, Ex-U. S. Congressman Edward M. Bassett, of New York City, making the dedicatory speech. At the request of Capt. Foreshaw, hotel manager, a pine tree was also planted in front of the hotel which will be known as the Brooklyn Daily Eagle tree. William C. Atwater, of New York City, officiated, assisted by Miss Freda Scharman of Brooklyn, the "baby of the party." Miss Helen Lyon Powell of New York City, recited Kilmer's poem "To a Tree."

After leaving Prince Rupert Rupert yesterday morning, the party visited Ketchikan and was due in Wrangell early this morning. At Juneau they will transfer to the steamer Alameda and, after visiting other coast points, are due on July 10 at Mount McKinley National Park which they will dedicate also making the first trip over the new Central Alaska Railway. President Harding will be in Central Alaska at the same time as the party it is expected. The party will come out of Central Alaska by rail and will sail for Seattle from Skagway on Juy 20, returning to Brooklyn by way of the Union Pacific from Seattle.

C. K. Howard, C.N.R. general tourist agent, Montreal to Prince Rupert, returned East last night. The special train was also despatched east. Several of the cars will meet the excursionists at Seattle on the return to Brooklyn.

Yes Betty
I can meet you at 10 o'clock!
"Since I started using Sunlight Soap I find I can get my clothes beautifully washed with my washing machine in fifteen or twenty minutes. Isn't that wonderful!? And my clothes are such a beautiful color too.
How do I use Sunlight? I pare half a cake or so of Sunlight in very thin slices, into the hot water in the washing machine, stir it up into a lovely rich suds, then pop in the clothes, and let Sunlight and the machine do the work! Then the rinsing and the clothes line. Really Betty—washing clothes with Sunlight is good fun—it's all over in less than an hour."

Sunlight's unusual value comes from the skilful blend of pure, rich cocoanut and palm oils. These are the best soap making ingredients that the world produces.
