After the monthly Parent-Teacher association meeting in the school on Friday evening films were shown and much appreciated. There was one of a boys military school, the "Story of Kitimat" and another about Barbara Ann Scott.

Our curate, Rev. R. A. Ferguson took the morning service in St. Luke's church here on Sunday morning. Now that our congregation is increasing we will be needing more pews, as the benches are not very comfortable.

✣ ✣ ✣

Instead of Post Office Accounting Offices balancing their books and sending in reports four times a month, it is now only required to do this three times a month. I appreciate this change very much.

BLACKWOOD on BRIDGE

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

You may have run across the fact that the defense is not always perfect. To play a winning game, as declarer, you must be alert to take advantage of defensive imperfections when they occur.

This is something that Mr. Abel failed to do in today's deal.

On the bidding, it appeared that a heart or a club lead would be the best shot. But for some reason known only to himself, Mr. Muzzy elected to open the seven of diamonds.

Mr. New won with the ace and stolidly returned the suit. This was about the worst start the defenders could have got off to, but Mr. Abel still managed to lose his contract.

At the second trick he overtook his queen of diamonds with dummy's king. He didn't think diamonds would go around a third time, particularly since Mr. Muzzy had unaccountably played the deuce on the second trick. However, no better play occurred to him, so he led dummy's jack of diamonds and got rid of one of his clubs.

Mr. Abel

Pleased that everybody had followed suit, he now switched to a trump. But Mr. Muzzy proved to have two sure trump winners and these, with the ace of diamonds and a club trick were enough to break the contract.

Mr. Abel should have led the last diamond from the board at trick four and discarded his last club. This play could not lose and, in this case, would have gained a trick. It was a safety play against the possibility that Mr. Muzzy had started with all four of the outstanding trumps.

The effect of it was to deposit a loser on a loser. When Mr. Muzzy ruffed the fourth diamond he was using up one of his sure trump winners—and on the trick Mr. Abel would get rid of his last club.

This was a case where good defense would have put the contract down two. The opening diamond lead gave Mr. Abel a chance to pick up one of these losers.

Mr. New's failure to cash the ace of clubs at trick two gave him the opportunity to pick up the second loser and actually make his contract. Since he muffed these chances, his play was worse than that of the defenders.
