World News Briefs

WASHINGTON (AP)—Investigators for the House of Representatives Monday released testimony of a former Czech military attache that his country's embassy here and United Nations delegation in New York have been loaded with Communist spies.

Lt.-Col. Frantisek Tisler, the military and air attache who defected to the United States last summer, said his official position was a cover for his main job of heading Czechoslovakia's military intelligence operation in the United States.

✣ ✣ ✣

NEW YORK (AP)—A Boeing 707 transcontinental airliner with 109 persons aboard skidded safely into Idlewild airport amid smoke and flames Monday after a landing gear collapsed as it hit the runway. There were no injuries.

LONDON (Reuters)—The Commonwealth prime ministers turned their attention today to next week's East-West summit conference, shelving at least temporarily the explosive issue of South Africa's racial policies.

Prime Minister Macmillan was expected to inform his 10 colleagues of the contents of a letter from Nikita Khrushchev delivered to him Monday. Handed over by Soviet Ambassador A. A. Soldatov, it was understood to deal with the East-West summit meeting opening in Paris next Monday.

OTTAWA (CP)—The government has ordered enforcement officers to bear down heavily on Canadians who draw unemployment insurace benefits to which they are not entitled, it is learned.

The most flagrant offenders are those who do not report in full the money they make in casual jobs while drawing unemployment insurance, and those who illegally acquire insurance payment stamps for their books. The most difficult case, however, is that of the woman who draws insurance benefits after she quits work to marry, and though she says she is available for employment makes such a poor appearance when being interviewed by prospective employers that no one will hire her.

✣ ✣ ✣

LONDON (CP)—Queen Elizabeth invited 8,000 guests to Buckingham Palace Monday. Canadian guests included Prime Minister Diefenbaker and his wife; Mrs. Frank Ross, wife of the lieutenant-governor of British Columbia; Maj.-Gen. E. G. Plow, Nova Scotia's lieutenant-governor, and his wife; the Hon. Leonard O'Brien, lieutenant-governor of New Brunswick, and his wife; Vincent Massey, former governor-general of Canada.

After Princess Margaret's wedding Friday, and all the parties connected with it, you'd have thought the Queen would be ready to drop. "Your Majesty," sympathized one of the guests, "you must be exhausted." "Not a bit," replied the Queen with a smile, "but I must say my feet hurt."

✣ ✣ ✣

OTTAWA (CP)—The CBC's television coverage of Princess Margaret's wedding cost less than $30,000, Marcel Lambert (PC-Edmonton West), parliamentary secretary to Revenue Minister Nowlan, told the Commons Monday. Mr. Nowlan said Royal Air Force—not Royal Canadian Air Force planes flew the recordings and the cost was shared by the CBC with others wanting the special service.

BLACKWOOD on BRIDGE

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

Of course, Mr. Champion knows the importance of the time element in relation to the throw-in play. Before surrendering the lead, he knows it is best to strip from the opponents' hands all cards which they could lead back without damage to their side.

Applying this principle to today's hand, he noted how desirable it would be to have Mr. Meek lead a spade or a club. He was able to arrange this in the following manner:

On the opening lead of the king of diamonds Mr. Abel properly played the jack. Mr. Champion ducked but won the diamond continuation with the ace.

Clearly Mr. Meek could now be thrown in with a third round of diamonds, but before doing that Mr. Champion wisely led out three rounds of hearts, stripping the hand on his left of that suit. On the third heart lead Mr. Meek dropped the deuce of spades.

Mr. Champion

At this point there were eight tricks in sight—one spade, four hearts, a diamond and two clubs. Four his ninth trick Mr. Champion could finesse the queen of spades or the jack of clubs. He did neither.

Also, he carefully avoided cashing his fourth heart winner at this stage because he could not spare a discard from his hand in view of the line of play he had in mind.

He led a diamond, graciously presenting the lead to Mr. Meek.

"Too bad," said Mr. Muzzy, who was kibitzing. "Pulled the wrong card, didn't you?"

"I never pull the wrong card," snapped Mr. Champion modestly. "I merely need a little help from my opponents to make this hand and this is the way to get it."

He was right. Mr. Meek won the diamond lead and cashed two more tricks in the suit. Mr. Champion discarded two spades from dummy and the four of spades and four of clubs from his own hand.

Opening lead: King of diamonds

Mr. Meek had two choices for his next lead, both of them revolting. He could lead a spade into the ace-queen or he could lead away from his queen of clubs into the king-jack.

He chose the latter and Mr. Champion won three club tricks, the ace of spades and dummy's fourth heart for his contract.
