WORK ON WOODBINE

Operations on Well Known Stewart Property to Start About June 1

Work on the Woodbine property adjoining the Premier holdings in the Portland Canal area, will be under way about June 1, according to Hugh McGuire, who is directing the affairs of the company.

At the meetings of the company to be held May 20 it is expected that changes will be made in the new directorate, which will include the appointment of prominent Winnipeg and Vancouver men to the board. Considerable interest in the meeting has been shown by shareholders in various parts of Canada, as well as in Great Britain, and it is believed that this meeting will be the signal for the season's campaign at the Woodbine.

Mr. McGuire states that the ore bodies revealed by the recent diamond drilling campaign will be opened up and the drift, seven feet in width, from the portal of the main tunnel will be continued. Work will be conducted under expert supervision and every attention paid to the development of the property which is now reported by mining experts to be similar to Premier at the same stage of development. Large bodies of gold ore have been shown, as well as values in silver, lead and zinc.

Painful Boils One After The Other Broke Out On Arms

Miss K. Rudd, 1100 Victoria Drive, Vancouver, B.C., writes:—"About a year ago I was troubled with boils. They broke out on my arms, and no sooner was one healed than another would come to take its place. I suffered great pain with them, and tried different medicines and ointments, but they did me no good.

"I was advised to take

and, my, what relief I got; soon my skin was as clear as before."

HINTS FOR GARDENERS

SEED

In gardening a fresh and reliable supply of seed each year is even more important than with ordinary field crops because in the case of vegetables and flowers a very much larger variety of plants are grown. Before one is tempted to depend absolutely on seed saved from ones own garden last year it should be remembered that much of this seed is probably a mixture of several shades, varieties and different qualities of plants. The bees, which mix the pollen, are no respecters of colors and when they get through with sweet peas, for instance, they have probably mixed things up so much that weakly colored flowers are sure to result from the seed used. Then, again, the seed in this case is often saved from the later flowers and naturally will produce later flowering plants. The bed, too, has been spoiled by allowing the production of seed pods which as soon as they start to form stop all bloom.

With vegetables, early and late maturing plants, as well as weak and strong ones, are so mixed up that the seed produced is liable to be disappointing. On commercial seed farms not only are the flowers and vegetables grown in large solid blocks so that there is less chance of mixing, but in the case of high class flowers particularly blooms are screened to keep out the bees and the pollen is mixed by hand so that true varieties or certain desired crosses are obtained.

With vegetables, also, there is no attempt made to produce a crop of food for the table, but seed only, and that seed is selected from the earliest and most vigorous sorts so that early and vigorous crops are the results of using that seed.

FLOWER PLANTING

One should order the flower seeds early and particularly those rare and popular varieties which are sold out quickly. It is well to check over the list before handing it to the person who is going down town to make the purchase. First of all, get those seeds that must be started indoors. Select your standard varieties first, that is those flowers which have given satisfaction in the past. But also add a few new ones and novelties for the sake of gaining experience and adding interest. Remember too that varieties are constantly being improved and that flowers and vegetables which were standard a few years ago may have been discarded for something very much better today. Your order should be balanced so that your garden will give the maximum satisfaction. One must have flowers for cutting, bedding, edging, background and fragrance. There must be early, medium and late bloomers so that there will be flowers all season. One must have a variety of color. In planting some attention must be paid to the latter point so that there will be no clashing of shades.

A hastily planted garden where the vegetable rows are crooked or where yellow and pink come into violent opposition may often result in neighborly ill feeling and will certainly not improve the first morning view when one is apt to be more critical than at other times.
