Snagboat May Not Operate This Season

It is reported here that, in order to curtail expenses, the new snagboat Essington, built at the local dry dock recently, may not be placed in operation at all this summer on the Skeena or Naas Rivers.

If the government takes this course, it will be the first season in many years that a snagboat has not been operated on these rivers. Any such proposal will meet with criticism since this necessary work will not be carried out on the rivers and failure to operate the boat will remove employment for several men.
