"THIS FREEDOM"

An adaptation of A. S. M. Hutchinson's famous novel. The most discussed story of today. A human melodrama based upon women's rights and freedom. A photo-drama that proves that the hand that rocks the cradle cannot conduct big business at the same time. What does it profit a woman if she gains the highest business success and loses her home and the love of her children. Magnificent scenes laid in England. Old Bailey court trial. Fewlass Llewellyn, Clive Brook, Fay Compton, Adeline Hayden-Coffin and strong cast.

SRIGLEY CASE IS BEING TRIED AT ASSIZES TODAY BEFORE JUDGE GREGORY.

president of the Massett Timber Co.

Brought True Bill

A true bill having been returned against Srigley by the Grand Jury, the case opened on resumption of court at 10.30 this morning. The taking of crown evidence was concluded shortly before one o'clock and adjournment was made until 2 o'clock this afternoon, when taking of defence evidence commenced. The case will go to the jury late this afternoon, it is expected.

Mr. Justice Gregory presiding, the counsel for the crown is David Whiteside who is assisted by Milton Gonzales. L. W. Patmore, who is conducting the defence, is assisted by his partner W. O. Fulton.

The charge against Charles Srigley is that he did at Buckley Bay on November 22, 1923, unlawfully and fraudulently convert to his own use the sum of $91 rightfully belonging to the Massett Timber Co. thereby committing theft.

Jury Empanelled

The following jury was empannelled to hear the case: C. H. Thomas (foreman), A. R. Phillips, James Sturgeon, F. St. Amour, George Smith, W. L. Sandison, J. G. Veireck, Henry Smith, Olier Besner, Murdoch McLean, Frank Morris and S. A. Bird.

Roi S. Barnes, P. Laporte, Margaret Cornish, Thomas Priest, W. H. W. Murray and Harry Astoria were challenged by the crown counsel.

Outlines Case

Mr. Whiteside briefly reviewed the case for the crown which was that Srigley had fraudulently converted the sum of $91. This was the difference between cash sales slips for the date in question totalling $222.50 and returns made to the office as shown on an adding machine strip which totalled $131.50.

Mr. Patmore asked that all witnesses be excluded and this request was granted by Mr. Justice Gregory after Mr. Patmore had stated that such action would be in the best interests of justice.

The evidence of Mr. Cuddy, the auditor, was largely similar to that given by him in the preliminary trial. The sum of $91 had never been accounted for to the best of his knowledge. Mr. Srigley had been taken into conference on the matter but said he could not understand it. On other days about that time the sales slips and the adding machine strips had agreed. On the day in question there was a general disagreement. There were some items on the adding machine strip which were not accounted for on the sales slips and vice versa.

Cross Examined

Under cross examination by Mr. Patmore, Mr. Cuddy said it had not been customary for the general office to check over the sales slips with Mr. Srigley's cash book returns. He was apparently trusted. Defence counsel then attempted, by examination of the witness, to establish that clerks had made mistakes as to the dates put on their cash sale slips. Witness was under the impression that Mr. Srigley checked his cash every day. He admitted, however, that if such had not been the case it would be possible that there might be an average of $91 which later it would be difficult to place. Witness stated that he had found two occasions of Mr. Srigley being over in his cash—$20 and $10 respectively. Returns for these had been made and put in as merchandise.

Higher-ups

Reference was then made to conversations with accused after the shortage had been found and it was here that the suggestion was made that accused might be shielding one higher up.

Jack Macdonald, formerly accountant at Buckley Bay, and J. M. Grosart, former manager, gave evidence of a similar nature to that given at the preliminary trial.

The case is proceeding this afternoon.

SCHOONER SCANDIA COMES INTO PORT WITH RADIOPHONE

The halibut schooner Scandia arrived this morning from the northern banks with 60,000 lbs. o fhalibut which she sold here for Ketchikan delivery. She is the first boat to use a radiophone on the fishing banks. Her aerial was very conspicuous on the waterfront.

The set is being used entirely for amusement in the evenings by the crew. Concerts and lectures have been easily picked up in the evening broadcasted from Calgary, San Francisco and Oakland. For some reason the Scandia has yet been unable to pick up any broadcast from Seattle.

Capt. Hvatum is operating the set and says that while it is easy to pick up broadcasts at night he has not yet been able to hear anything on the set in the day time.

The set installed has no sending apparatus and as there is no broadcast from Prince Rupert it is of no use commercially.

Prosperous advertising means regular continuous advertising.
