THE PRESS AND THE PEOPLE.

> In no city in Canada, or perhaps in the world, has the local press come in for more severe criticism than in this very city! of Prince Rupert. In other words, in no city in Canada, or perhaps in the world, has THE ANNOYANCE OF higher compliment been paid to the power of the press than! right here in Prince Rupert. Intensely applicable to the press life of Prince Rupert are the words of the Denver Post on the place of the press in public life:

"No city is saner, stronger, cleaner than its press. The safety of the commonwealth lies in printers' ink. News is the voice of God. It cannot be aborted or tampered with. The press belongs to the people and an editor is no more proprietor of the property of which he is steward than a judge is owner of the court over which hel presides, or a chief of police proprietor of the force which he supervises. We cannot please all men always. . Thumb prints and personal opinion are individual and unique. No two persons since the sun first glorified this sphere ever completely agreed on everything. How then can we hope for general approbation and support on all issues and at all times? We have made enemies. And when we cease to arouse opposition we will cease to be a force-a real force-in this community."

A SUCCESSFUL LABOR DAY.

Anxious expressions during the rain showers of Saturday and Sunday passed completely away when Monday, the long looked THE PROSPECTOR for holiday, dawned with per- AND THE HEN. fect serenity, a real Prince Rupert day of ideal conditions. Sunshine blazed down and the picnic parties, out bright and early, prepared for the gayest of good times. For the best part of the day the city was practically deserted, so many of the people had taken advantage of the picnics planned. The Methodist Church Men's Own went to Porcher Island and the St. Andrew's Society to Tugwell Island, while of smaller picnics there were scores. Hunting parties, too, set out for the bush, prepared for the opening of the deer season. Prince Rupert made holiday under the most pleasureable
