NEGLECT OF EVEN ONLY A LITTLE BURN IS DANGEROUS; BEST WAY TO TREAT BURNS

It very frequently happens that the shock resulting from burns proves as serious or even more serious than the burn itself, and physicians who are called in such emergencies devote their energies and skill to assisting the victim in recovering from the shock.
A coal may burn deeply through the flesh and muscles and yet not cause as great a shock as a burn that extends over a larger area, but merely burns the skin and does not injure the flesh and muscles.

burn. Rags and oils and flour and such things are all right to stop the pain, but the chances are they may not be entirely germ free. Keep boric acid in the house for just an emergency and in case of burns dust this over the injured place.
When blisters occur they should be opened, but care should be taken in pricking them. A damping needle is all right, but it should be cleansed from all possible germs first by holding in a blaze. Whether dressing your own burns or those of another, wash your hands thoroughly and clean the nails, as this will frequently prevent germs that are always more or less on the hands from getting into the burn.
After pricking the blister mop the water in it with absorbent cotton and powder with the boric acid powder.

In case of a serious burn, make no attempt to dress it yourself, but call in a doctor. And even in a burn on the face, if apparently slight, it is safer to call in a physician because he will know how to dress the injuries to avoid the least chance of disfigurement.
If you attempt to dress face burns you might stop the pain, but at the same time you would not heal the burn properly and a scar would result that would disfigure you for the remainder of your days.
Nothing that can possibly be contaminated should go near a

IS SUNBURN A SIGN OF HEALTH?

The sun-burned face is regarded as an indication of health, says The Lancet, and there are some persons who feel that the money spent upon a holiday has been well spent if they come back sun-burnt.

This view is in general justifiable, since the sun-burnt face implies that the individual has been exposed to a fresh, healthy, and open environment—to surroundings, that is to say, which have reacted upon him in a way which routine fails to do. It is true that nowadays the mere pigmentation effect of the sun upon the skin can be readily imitated by employing the chemical or ultra-violet rays of the electric light, and in particular the rays of the quartz mercury lamp; and so, if all the result required of a holiday was merely a sun-burnt face, this could be done in the space of minutes instead of an expensive holiday at the seaside extended over weeks. It follows that mere sunburn is not, strictly speaking, an index of acquired health.

No amount of ultra-violet ray treatment, however, can produce the decided general improvement in health and tone which a change of air and scenery does. The truth is that the sun's rays are only one contributory factor to the restoration of health, and therefore the sun-burnt face is merely evidence that the opportunity of an outdoor life has been seized. But the outdoor life means constant fresh air and exercise, in the wake of which follow healthy functional activity, good nutrition, and a general equilibrium of the system, all of which means that the machine is going smoothly, and that the life processes are not hampered by excess or by shortage.

These conditions apart, it is probable that the bronzing produced by exposure to the sun is to some extent an indication of vigor and a satisfactory state of the blood, since the haemoglobin of the blood supplies the pigment to a sun-burnt skin and in this way serves to protect the tissues. If this protection is not afforded blistering or sun eczema may result.

In a word, sunburn is merely a protective effort of the body. The active light rays of the sun, again, undoubtedly give a healthy stimulus to the respiratory process, since under their influence it has been proved that the quantity of oxygen absorbed is greater, while an increasing output of carbonic acid follows.

It is interesting to recall in this connection the experiment which showed the apparent anomaly that animals deprived of nourishment die sooner in the chemically active rays of the sun than when they are exposed to the inactive rays. The inactivity of the vital processes in these cases being augmented, the store of energy was soon used up.

Exposure to sunlight, again, increases the number of blood cells, but the absence of light diminishes the number. A face burnt brown by the sun would seem, regarded in this way, to be a sensible object of a holiday, not, however, because the face is so bronzed, but because the circumstances which conspired to produce the brown complexion have other factors favorable to an all-round healthy state.

NOTICE

Public notice is hereby given that under the first part of Chapter 78 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1906 known as "The Companies Act," letters patent have been issued under the seal of the Secretary of State of Canada, bearing date the 18th day of June, 1912, incorporating Richmond

(a) To acquire by purchase, lease, exchange or otherwise, and to use, hold and improve lands, tenements, hereditaments, incorporeal and interest therein and generally to carry on business of a land company and real estate agency with the power of renting, exchanging, selling and otherwise dealing with real estate and any interest or right therein.
(b) To develop, improve and lay out any such property in building lots, streets, lanes, squares or otherwise, and to construct, make, construct, build and maintain roads, bridges and other internal communications, houses, masonry, and other buildings necessary or expedient in an occupation or improvement of any such property.

(c) To make advances by way of loans to purchasers or lessees of any part of the company's real estate for building purposes and other improvements to be carried out by or otherwise in the construction and maintenance of roads, streets, waterworks, sewers and other works of improvement, calculated to render the company's property more accessible or to enhance its value.
(d) To take and hold mortgages, hypothecs, liens and charges and to secure the payment of the purchase price of any property sold by the company or any money due to the company from purchasers or advanced by the company to purchasers for building purposes or other improvements.

(e) To act as an agency or association for and on behalf of others who entrust the company with money, principal and also the payment of the interest, or principal of any money entrusted with the company for investment, and for the purpose of loaning the company against the same any guarantee or obligation or any advance made by the company and to receive and hold the same in trust for the company or security which is conveyed, pledged, mortgaged or assigned to or warehoused in connection with such advance or investment, and to guarantee any investment made by the company as agent or otherwise.

(f) To act as agents, or attorneys, for the management of estates, for the sale of property, the investment, handling, paying, transmission and collection of moneys, rents, interests, dividends, mortgages, bonds, debentures and other securities and to carry out the investigation, valuation, sales, exchanges, leases, subdivisions and the like.
(g) To construct, build, repair, alter and improve buildings and structures and to deal in any building requisites.

(h) To construct, acquire and operate works for the production of power or force and in such power or force for any use or purpose for which the same may be adapted, subject to Provincial and municipal authorities.
(i) To acquire letters patent of invention, patent rights, processes, concessions, licenses, trade marks, copyrights or any other privileges of like nature connected with any business conducted for the purposes of the company, and to turn the same to account by manufacturing or working the same or granting licenses in respect thereof or otherwise.

(j) To purchase or otherwise acquire, or undertake all or any part of the business, property, assets or liabilities of any person, partnership or company carrying on business with objects similar in whole or in part to those of the company or possessed of property suitable and proper for the purposes of the company.
(k) To apply paid up shares, bonds or debentures in payment either in whole or in part of any property real or personal, rights, claims, privileges, concessions or other advantages which the company may lawfully acquire and also in payment of payment or exchange for the shares, bonds, debentures or other securities of any other company doing a business similar in whole or in part or incidental to the business of this company.

(l) To purchase, acquire, hold and own shares of the capital stock, bonds or other securities of any other company, corporation or individual carrying on or engaged in any business which the company is empowered to carry on or engaged in, and to acquire, hold or otherwise dispose of such shares, bonds or other securities, notwithstanding the provisions of section 44 of the Companies Act.
(m) To enter into any arrangement for sharing of profits, union of interests, cooperation, joint adventures, reciprocal concessions or otherwise with any person, partnership or company carrying on or engaged in or about to carry on any business or transaction which this company is authorized to carry on or to amalgamate with such company.

(n) To raise and assist in raising for and to aid by way of bonus, loan, promise, endorsement, the guarantee of bonds, debentures or other securities, or otherwise of any other company or corporation, and to guarantee the performance of contracts of any such persons with whom the company may have business relations.
(o) To distribute among the shareholders of the company in kind, any property or assets of the company, and in particular any shares, debentures or securities of any other company or companies which may have been taken or taken up either in whole or in part of the property, assets or liabilities of this company.

(p) To sell, lease, exchange or otherwise dispose of, in whole or in part, the property, rights, or undertakings of the company for such consideration as may be agreed upon and in particular for shares, debentures or securities of any other company having objects altogether or in part similar to those of this company.
(q) To enter into any arrangement with any governments or authorities, supreme, municipal, local or otherwise, that may seem conducive to the company's objects or any of them and to obtain from any such government or authority any rights, privileges and concessions which it may be desirable to obtain and to carry out, exercise and comply with or sell and dispose of any such arrangements, rights, privileges and concessions.

(r) To remunerate any person, firm or company for services rendered to be rendered in placing or assisting to place or guaranteeing the placing of any of the shares of the company's capital or any bond or other securities of the company in or about the formation, promotion, organization or incorporation of the company or the conduct of its business with the approval of the shareholders of the company.
(s) To pay all or any costs, charges or expenses preliminary or incidental to or incurred in connection with the promotion, organization, formation, establishment, registration and incorporation of the company with the approval of the shareholders of the company.

(t) To do all such other acts and things as are incidental or conducive to the attainment of the above objects or any of them and to carry on any business whether manufacturing or otherwise permanent to the purposes and objects of the company, and which may seem to the company capable of being conveniently carried on by the company, or calculated directly or indirectly to enhance the value of or render profitable any of its properties or rights.
(u) To do all or any of the matters hereinbefore mentioned or restricted by reference to or inference from the terms of any other paragraph.

(v) The powers in each paragraph to be in a wide limited or restricted by reference to or inference from the terms of any other paragraph.
The operations of the company to be carried on throughout the Dominion of Canada and elsewhere by the name of "Prince Rupert Town Properties, Limited," with a capital stock of fifty thousand pounds sterling, divided into 50,000 shares of one pound sterling each, and the chief place of business of the said company to be at the City of Prince Rupert, in the Province of British Columbia.
Dated at the office of the Secretary of State of Canada this 18th day of June, 1912.
