What Is Value Of Government House.

The action of the Alberta Legislature in voting to do away with Government House at Edmonton, the official residence of the Lieutenant Governor, is one that seems to have received a great deal of sympathetic support here. It is argued that even in British Columbia, Government House does not mean anything to the people of British Columbia except a place for the socially elect to foregather. Now and then there is an official reception, which is supposed to be for everyone who wishes to attend, but it is noticeable that very few people of those who have to labor with their hands ever take advantage of it. The place is for the business and professional groups and of those mostly the ones of a particular social set make a practice of attending. Officers of the army and navy go, but none of the rank and file. Yet the place is kept up from the taxes, which everybody pays. True the cost is not very heavy but the principle of paying it is undemocratic. While everyone cannot expect to get an invitation to a ball at Government House, there does not seem to be any reason why the people at large should pay for an institution which caters only to a select few. That seems to be the view of the farmers in Alberta and it is the view of a great many people in British Columbia.

Rights Of Railway And Of People.

The settlement of the Peace River railway controversy seems to be dependent on the two railways at present in a position to serve that part of the country. It is a new country but there is already considerable tonnage offering so that a railway is not starting right at the bottom as is usually the case. The result is that each of the railways would like to get control and the C.P.R., being first in the field, has to some extent the whip hand. The advantage the Canadian National has is the fact that it is the government line and is supposed to have all the government backing. Of course that is all supposition, as the C.P.R. interests are always represented in any government.

The Canadian National has the natural outlet for the district. It has the shortest route to the ocean which is what should count. There does not seem to be any good reason why the country should be held up because the railway heads cannot agree on a policy. The needs of the country should be the first thing to be considered. If the C.P.R. and the C.N.R. cannot agree it will be for W. L. Mackenzie King to carry on and build the railway without their help and then give it to Sir Henry to operate.

Difficulty Is With Senate.

The difficulty in taking independent action seems to be with the Senate. That body is pretty well controlled by the C.P.R. If the C.P.R. does not agree with the policy carried out, it means that the Senate will turn it down. The Senate is at present a Tory organization and is used largely to further the interests of the party. Pretty soon, if the Senators continue to die as they have been doing of late, the august body will become Liberal and it is to be presumed it will be a Liberal machine. The composition of the body does not make for the best interests of the country.

Tariff Being Debated At Ottawa.

The debate on the budget has brought out a number of points in connection with the tariff, but this is an unending subject that can be expected to be before Parliament every year in some form or other. The farmers of the prairies want low tariffs beause all they have to sell is wheat and a few other food products. The manufacturing districts favor high tariffs because they believe it helps them to keep their factories going. Fruit growers always want a duty on imported fruit to protect them against competition from without. The whole thing is selfish and has nothing to do with the best interests of the country generally.

When an election comes up, the tariff will be discussed once more from A to Z and we shall be none the wiser. There are really no new arguments. All are selfish and the party that can persuade the people that they are to gain by the tariff or lose by it, will win or lose.

"Worth $100 to Me Relieved Eczema and Piles"

Mrs. Peter A. Palmer, Saltburn, Sask., writes:

"Dr. Chase's Ointment has completely relieved me of eczema and piles. I also used this Ointment for my baby, who broke out in eczema. A few applications were all that was necessary in her case. Dr. Chase's Ointment has been worth a hundred dollars to me,—before using it I had spent a great deal more than that in unsuccessful treatment from doctors. We have also used Dr. Chase's other medicines, the Nerve Food having restored my health after suffering from severe nerve trouble when a girl."

CHATS ABOUT LONDON PEOPLE

Mail Letter From World's Capital Tells of Doings Across the Atlantic

(By Sylvia Mayfair)

LONDON, April 4.—(By Canadian Press)—The Throne Room at Buckingham Palace where the Prince of Wales held his first levee—his father, King George not being well enough to appear—is flanked on one side by some small windows, hardly noticeable by those in the Throne Room itself.

Nobody, indeed, seems to have noticed that when the Prince of Wales, looking very resplendent, though rather shy, in his uniform of a Colonel of the Welsh Guards, was receiving 900 diplomats, officers and ministers, his mother, Queen Mary, was watching him through one of the windows. No women are ever present at a levee, and her actual presence therefore was not possible. Wales evidently fulfilled his first monarchial duties to perfection for his mother beamed approvingly throughout.

By the way, one the eve of leaving England for the Mediterranean in the sumptuous Royal Yacht, the King and Queen suddenly realised that if they went ashore at any of the small Italian ports that they hope to call at, neither of them would be able to speak French or Italian very fluently. The Queen used to be the linguist of the family but has not practised for years.

So Lady Joan Verney, a lady-in-waiting, is going with them to pilot them through any expedition they may venture on.

Princely Parties

Entertaining is going to be on a princely and extravagant scale this summer. Lady Gunard who entertained at dinner for the great Ancaster ball on Wednesday night had ordered a kind of aquarium dinner table decoration. Rare and beautiful species of fish loaned from the London Zoological Society swam about in crystal tanks and bowls which had been sunk into the table and illuminated. Real seaweed and fungi grew in the bowls.

Lord and Lady Granard are back at their lovely house in Halkin Street, Mayfair. The Earl's famous Napoleon dinner service, in which every fork and spoon bears inset a rare jewel, will be in constant use and the Granard menage is one of those where all the servants wear silk knee breeches and powder their hair.

Tetrazzini Sings

Tetrazzini is the most unconventional of divas, and when she was dining in the Savoy restaurant the night after she had broadcast by radio to the world, about 1,500 diners were suddenly thrilled to hear somebody singing.

Signor Moschetto, who used to play at Monte Carlo, thought he would pay the Prima Donna a compliment by playing her favorite aria, Donizetti's "O luce di quest," but it was too much for Tetrazzini, who, accompanied as usual with the famous ostrich fan—surely the biggest ever—began singing.

This is not the first time she has sung in the Savoy Restaurant. She sang one Christmas night three years ago, but this last event was quite unexpected and unconventional.

Theatre Box Passes

The new London theatres that are now being built have no boxes. Managers say that the day of the box is over, and are surprised that it has taken the public so long to see what uncomfortable parts of the theatre they are. The young Princes hardly ever use a box but much prefer being on the front row of the stalls. It has been noticed that the Prince of Wales whenever he visits the theatre is almost invariably to be found in the front row of the stalls right at the left hand side, and he generally slips in just after the curtain has risen.

Big hats are returning to favor so rapidly that the London General Omnibus Company are trying to re-arrange the seating of their buses. It is no longer possible for two women wearing the new cart-wheel headgear, to sit side by side in comfort on the seats at their present size.

A Saville Row tailor gave a show for men two mornings ago, but men mannequins are not quite used to this sort of thing. Cocktails, of course.

The Duchess of York is going to publish her diary of her African tour on her return.

London women are re-stringing their ropes of pearls and wearing them as bracelets. A contrast is provided by the wearing of cubes of jade strung tightly around the wrist between the row of pearls.

The Man in the Moon SAYS:-

Some ideas are sound and nothing more.

Everything comes to him who waits. Whiskers will come if he does not shave, dunners will come if he does not pay, hunger will come if he will not work.

The jay walker is a nuisance but the jay talker should be slain.

Who was Cain's wife? The missing link.

Suppose the world had been created by Parliament it would not have been half finished yet and then the Senate would likely have vetoed half our luxuries.

If Alberta gets rid of its Government House what will the Four Hundred do for a meeting place?

Next thing we shall expect to hear about is that the Government House at Victoria is to be used for a hotel and that the Lieut.-Governor will move into a two-roomed aaprtment.

Manitoba has had snow, rain, hail, frost, fog, blizzards and floods and now it is suggested that the only thing needed to round out the list would be an earthquake.

Following the winning of the world hockey championship by Victoria it is mentioned that while the east may have the culture, the west is developing the speed and stamina. I should say so. Look at our girls!

Mothers and primary school teachers spend a lot of time teaching children to talk and as they grow older one of the big jobs is to shut them up.

There must be an election just round the corner because all the political parties are assuring everybody that they still retain the confidence of the great majority of the people of Canada.
