NEW DOUBLE-PLAY

.958 in 119 games, followed closely by the rooky Phil Rizzuto of the Yanks with .957 for 128 games. Rizzuto stood out with 109 double-plays on his card, among the 196 the champions executed.

Outstanding among the performances of the outfielders during the campaign was the work of Mike Kreevich of the White Sox who played in 77 consecutive games in the outfield from April 30 through August 10 without an error. Bolstered on the wings of this stretch, Kreevich was the leading regular in the league with a percentage of .994 for 113 games. Bob Johnson of the Athletics trailed him by four points in 122 games, followed in turn by Barney McCosky of Detroit and Roger Cramer of Washington with figures of .985 and .984 respectively.

Sam Chapman of Philadelphia, fielding .967 in 141 games, had the most chances with 452. The DiMaggio brothers, Joe and Dominic, stood next in line in total chances, the younger brother in Boston taking 417 chances, and Joe 410 for the world champions. Sam Chapman of the "A's" and George Case of Washington had the most assists in the circuit with 21 each, while Geoffrey Heath of Cleveland had 20.

An unusual fielding feat cropped up among the pitchers when Johnny Babich of the Athletics tied the major league record for most put-outs by a pitcher in a game with five on May 30. This was last accomplished in the majors by Joe Wood of the champion Boston Red Sox in 1912.

Errorless Pitchers

Twenty-five pitchers in the league played errorless ball in 1941, which was exactly the same number as in 1940. Eldon Auker ranked at the top by virtue of handling the most chances—57 in 34 games. Auker fielded only .981 in 1940, making 4 errors in 51 chances in 38 games.

Ranking second to Auker in 1941 was his team-mate Denny Galehouse, who handled 50 chances without a miss. Galehouse was a 1.000 fielding pitcher in 1940, with 33 chances in 25 games. Marius Russo of the Yanks, who fielded 1.000 while accepting 48 chances in 30 games in 1940, slipped to .933 in 1941 with 7 errors in 60 chances in 28 games.

SPORT CHAT

Official batting records of the National League for 1941 show that 281 players took part in championship games. Of this number, 81 engaged in 75 games or more, 135 took part in 10 to 74 games, and 65 appeared in fewer than 10 games. Harold P. Reiser, Brooklyn, leads the batters with a percentage of .343; scored most runs 117, hit for most total bases, 299, made most three-base hits 17, and with John R. Mize of St. Louis, tied for most two-base hits with 39. John J. Rucker, New York, went to bat most times, 622. Stanley C. Hack, Chicago, for the second consecutive year made the most base hits 186, and secured the most singles, 141. Adolph Camilli, Brooklyn, batted out most home runs, 34. Martin Marion, St. Louis, made most sacrifice hits, 28. Dan Murtaugh, Philadelphia, stole most bases, 18. Only two players took part in all their clubs' games—Frank A. McCormick, Cincinnati, with 154, and Martin Marion, St. Louis, 155. McCormick, with 154 games played in 1941, brought his consecutive - game streak to 616.

Melvin T. Ott, New York, by making 27 home runs, brought his lifetime total to 415. He has piled up more home runs than any other National League player for all time. Harold P. Reiser, Brooklyn, had the longest streak for the season just closed, 18 games, during which time he made 26 hits in 75 games at bat for a mark of .347. He began it on June 19 against Chicago and was stopped July 10 by Cincinnati.

St. Louis had the longest winning streak, 11 games, which began May 21, against Brooklyn, and ended with the second game of May 30, against Cincinnati. Philadelphia had the longest losing streak, 9 games, from July 2 against Brooklyn, until St. Louis was beaten July 14.

The shortest nine-inning game played was between Cincinnati and Boston at Boston July 11 which took 1 hour and 19 minutes. The longest nine-inning game consumed 3 hours between St. Louis and Cincinnati at Cincinnati April 17. Boston at Brooklyn in first game of a double-header September 1 took 4 hours and 17 minutes to play 15 innings.

For the first time since becoming a member of the National League back in 1890, Brooklyn won 100 games to give the club its sixth championship. When Phil Cavarretta, Stanley Hack and William Nicholson of Chicago, hit consecutive home runs against Lonnie Warneke of St. Louis on August 11 at St. Louis, they tied a record held by many clubs.

Basketball Buzz

Owing to other activities of those who would be playing, regular basketball league play has been suspended for the time being. However, the Ketchikan - Prince Rupert High School series to be played on Friday and Saturday evenings of this week will give the local fans something to look forward to.

The Kayhi Polar Bears, coming here this week to play the local high school basketeers, were runners-up for the Alaska championship last year, losing only to Juneau High in the finals. Last year the local high school squad invaded the Alaska town for a two-game series and were pawed to defeat by the Polar Bears by overwhelming scores in both games.

All in all, this year's Prince Rupert High School's basketball team, both first and second string, is the first in years, and Ketchikan should have quite a time stopping them next week.

Mrs. C. Strand was a passenger on the Prince Rupert Saturday night for a trip to Vancouver.
