GREETINGS - - -

THERE is always a significance beyond the surface meaning of words that have long served a people. And how true this is of our traditional Christmas greeting—an old, old phrase that in fair times and bad has continued to symbolize the regard of men for one another.

Hallowed by centuries of use, that greeting conveys a belief in the inherent good will of mankind; a love of peace and the family fireside; respect for the rights of others; trust in the beneficence of the Almighty, and faith in the virtues of friendship and charity.

It is in this spirit of the meaning behind the words that The Daily News extends to you the greeting that will live forever . . .

Santa This Year Bound Northwest

He's Got a Lot of Christmas up Alaska Way and New Highway A Factor

EDMONTON, Dec. 24 (P) — The northern postman has had an exceptionally heavy Christmas load to deliver this year to the far reaches of the chilly northwest.

Presence of U.S. Army engineers and civilian road gangs in Northern Bitiss Columbia and the Yukon with the building of the Alaska highway, has increased mail volume to the Yukon between 50 and 75 per cent, post office officials said. The Christmas load is unprecedented.

But no matter how big the flow, the roadbuilders and residents of the north are getting quick delivery because the northern mailman has gone modern with the advent of almost daily plane flights northwards. The speed of the northern mail delivery this Christmas contrasts sharply with the "old days" when parcels and letters had to be mailed in the fall and depended on dog teams for arrival at their northern destination.

The Post Office wickets will be open from 8 a.m. to 12 noon on Christmas Day, it is announced. The lobby will be open from 6 a.m. until 6 p.m.
