MONEY READY FOR SMELTER

Commissioner of Natural Resources Visits Smithers and is Banqueted.

Under the auspices of the Omineca branch of the British Columbia Chamber of Mines, a dinner was held in Smithers on Wednesday in honor of C. Price-Green, commissioner of natural resources of the Canadian National Railways. The commissioner was on a visit to the district from his headquarters in Montreal for the purpose of getting first-hand information on recent mining developments.

The gathering was presided over by L. S. McGill, the president of the branch chamber of mines, who, before calling on Mr. Price-Green for the main address asked R. C. W. Lett who was accompanying the commissioner through the district to speak. Mr. Lett, in a brief address, outlined the work being done by the Canadian National Railways to further the mining industry in the district. Douglas Lay, resident mining engineer for the North-Eastern district, spoke of recent mining developments in the district and of the work of his department. The visitors were welcomed to the district and thanked for the great interest shown in speeches by several prominent local men, including Chas. Reid, president of the Smithers district Board of Trade. The viewpoint of the prospector was put forward by Peter Schufer, Jas. Wright and Wm. Sweeney.

Appeal for Optimism

In the address of the evening Mr. Price-Green made an appeal for optimism on the part of all Canadians in regard to the possibilities and the future of the country. He gave facts and figures to show that our progress was by no means disappointing and that hope for further and greater progress in the near future was well founded. He assured all of the great interest taken and the close watch kept in regard to mining development in this district. He spoke of the hopes entertained by officials of the Canadian National Railways that the time was now almost ripe for consideration of the establishment of a new smelter to serve this part of the Province of British Columbia. The capital for such an undertaking was already in sight and would be readily forthcoming when the development of mining warranted.

Visited Topley

After the dinner was concluded Mr. Price-Green, accompanied by Mr. Lett and Mr. Lay, left for Topley to examine the discoveries made near there by Frank Taylor this summer. After making the examination and gathering data he took the train back to his headquarters in Montreal. He expects to make a further trip to the district in October of this year.
