Who wouldn't spend five minutes in figuring out the hardest puzzle if they were sure that they would receive $135 for it? Mr. W. B. Cornish, of the post office staff, however, was not sure of his reward when he concentrated his brain to the task of solving a picture riddle which appeared in the Vancouver Daily Sun advertising columns.

The Montelius Piano House, of Vancouver, was advertising prizes for the solution of a complex picture puzzle. Mr. Cornish sent in the correct answer and yesterday received by mail the sum of $135.

He is today receiving the congratulations of his many friends, who hope that his ingenuity may again bring him the reward that he deserves.
