Aged Woman Survives Heavy Ordeal

HAMBURG, Ia. (AP)—A 60-year-old grandmother lay injured and helpless for five days and nights in the wreckage of a car concealed in a weeded gully beside a busy highway.

In hospital doctors described her condition as "remarkably good" in view of her experience —"a case for the medical books."

The woman, Mrs. Glen McKnight, suffered severe shock, a broken left hip, a broken left arm and several fractured ribs. Her only food had been a few pieces of fudge and her only drink a little rain water and a bottle of boric acid.

Her 120 hours of prayer and pain ended Tuesday when a highway grader operator spotted the wrecked auto from his high cab and summoned help.

Mrs. McNight was driving from St. Joseph, Mo., to Bronson, Ia., last Thursday when she apparently lost control of her car on a curve. The car plunged down a 40-foot embarkment and overturned against a culvert.

Her injuries and a seat cushion wedged on top of her prevented Mrs. McNight from reaching the light switch or horn to attract attention of the hundreds of passing motorists.

FOUND

Then Tuesday Jack Krascel "just happened to look back for some reason" and saw the almost hidden car.

When he reached it, Kraschel said, Mrs. McKnight exclaimed: "Thank God! I am sure glad He sent someone to find me."

Kraschel said "she grabbed my hand and held on to it tight and then asked me for water . . . She told me she had 'not suffered a bit.' She is really some woman."

niques to Arab problems; and finally, the fanatics who want to get the British and Americans out of the country altogether."

In outlining strategic areas of the Middle East to the Rotary Club, Mrs. Higham expressed the opinion that the British had lost out in their Iranian oil negotiations due to poor public relations work. She laughingly claimed a right to pick out weak spots in British policy as she is a British citizen by marriage.

"They should have stated their case better and earlier," she said. "Having pioneered oil development in Iran, the British have done more for that industry and its workers in the whole Persian Gulf area than any other country. They have the best labor conditions there and at great expense ensure that their employees have ample fresh water, food and good housing. They also took special pains to train Iranian workers. However, they did nothing to emphasize all this."

Observing that Russia presents a constant threat along strategic trade routes of the Middle East, Mrs. Higham said that for the British and Americans it has necessitated a costly alliance with the Greeks and Turks. Much has been given already, and more is being demanded.

At the close of the Women's Canadian Club meeting Mrs. F. E. Anfield, who was in the chair, was congratulated by Mrs. Shelford Dalton on behalf of the club on being elected to the executive of the National Association of Canadian Clubs. This is the first time that Prince Rupert has been so honored.

Harry Black was chairman at the Rotary luncheon, where Mrs. Higham was introduced by A. Bruce Brown.

BLACKWOOD on Bridge

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

Your Cards in Partner's Suit Govern Bid Shading

I have said that normally you need an average hand in high cards to respond to your partner's bid of one in a suit with a bid of two in a lower ranking suit. What about Mr. Champion's response of two hearts in today's hand, then? He was a queen short of an average hand.

He realized his slight deficiency in high cards. He also realized, however, that his spade holding more than made up for the absence of a queen in his hand.

He could have bid four spades, of course. There's nothing wrong with that call on the North hand. But it might do the partnership out of a slam. If the two hands were a perfect fit, Miss Brash would not have to hold a huge hand to have a good play for six-odd.

Mr. Champion's bidding was all right. If you want to question any of the bidding you might consider Miss Brash's four spade call, her third bid on a hand of absolutely minimum proportions. But be careful, because she made four spades.

The holding of an average hand in high cards, then, is only a general yardstick to an opening one bid. Exceptions branch out on either side. And the best way to remember these exceptions is this. The stronger you are in partner's suit, the more you are justified in shading the requirements.

When you are very short in partner's suit (holding a singleton or void) it is wise to tighten up the requirements a little

Mrs. Keen got the defense off on the right track by opening a trump, but even this good opening couldn't beat the contract.

Miss Brash simply crossruffed diamonds and hearts. She lost three club tricks at the end, but made a total of eight trump tricks, the five in her own hand and three diamond ruffs on the board. These, with the two red aces were enough for the game.
