BLACKWOOD on Bridge

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

Spade Lead Nailed Abel to the Table

From the time Mr. Abel opened the king of spades he was squeezed, although nobody at the table knew it until several tricks later.

A king is usually a second round winner. But, owing to the peculiar distribution of the diamonds, Mr. Abel's kind of diamonds was reduced to the fifth card in the suit. In other words Mr. Champion could finesse diamonds three times and then lay down the ace, before the king would become a winner.

In addition, Mr. Abel would have to hold the ace of spades to prevent dummy's jack from winning.

This is how the play developed. After winning with the king of spades, Mr. Abel shifted to the deuce of diamonds. The jack was played from dummy and Mr. Dale ruffed. The 10 of clubs was returned and Mr. Champion realized that if he permitted Mr. Abel to win this trick, another diamond would be led and ruffed, to defeat the contract.

He won with the ace of clubs, took the queen and ace of hearts, led a diamond and finessed the nine spot. He returned to his hand with a trump. He led two more trumps and Mr. Abel had got rid of all of his small spades and the king of clubs.

He was holding onto the ace of spades and three diamonds to the king. When Mr. Champion led his last trump, Mr. Abel's hand was strangled. If he threw away the ace of spades, obviously dummy's jack would be promoted to a winner.

Hopelessly, he dropped the eight of diamonds and the jack of spades was then discarded from the board. Mr. Champion now took the proven finesse in diamonds and won the last two tricks with the ace and four spot of that suit.

YOUNG LIVE-WIRE

Plan Sales Drive At Toronto Fair

LONDON (CP)—Britain's modern merchant adventurers will set out for Toronto's International Trade Fair in June with new ideas of drumming up business.

They discussed their plans at a reception given to prospective British exhibitors by R. P. Bower, commercial counsellor at Canada House.

J. S. Byam-Grounds, manufacturer of heavy machinery, said he would leave for Canada next month to look over the country's steel industry. He believes Canada offers a potential market worth thousands of pounds once Canadian steelmen see the high standard of machinery produced in the United Kingdom.

Sir Holland Goddard said he will take over an exhibit of wood-working machinery worth £10,000.

Another guest was Maurice Paynter, representing five packaging-trade organizations. Just returned from the inaugural meeting of the New Institute of Material Handling, he said he would seek to put across a plan he believed would save British industry £50,000,000 a year in more efficient handling of export goods.

Saville Row Is Hit By Textiles Slump

LONDON (CP)—Sales of men's suits reflect the current country-wide slump in the textile trade, say London clothing retailers.

"The public just isn't in a buying mood," said T. W. Hewitt, secretary of the National Federation of Merchant Tailors.

Orders held by firms in Saville Row, London's "Main Street" for men's tailoring, have seldom been so meagre.

Price cuts of five guineas or more on suits of a higher grade have evoked little response and so far, there's no hint of improvement.

"It means much unemployment and short time in the trade," said Hewitt.

AUSSIE'S TRIBUTE

NEW DELHI (CP)—The retiring Australian high commissioner to India, H. R. Gollan, said at a ceremony that he had spent 15 years of his diplomatic career in India and that nowhere else could so many years have been spent more usefully. He praised India as a stable country where democratic principles and law prevail.
