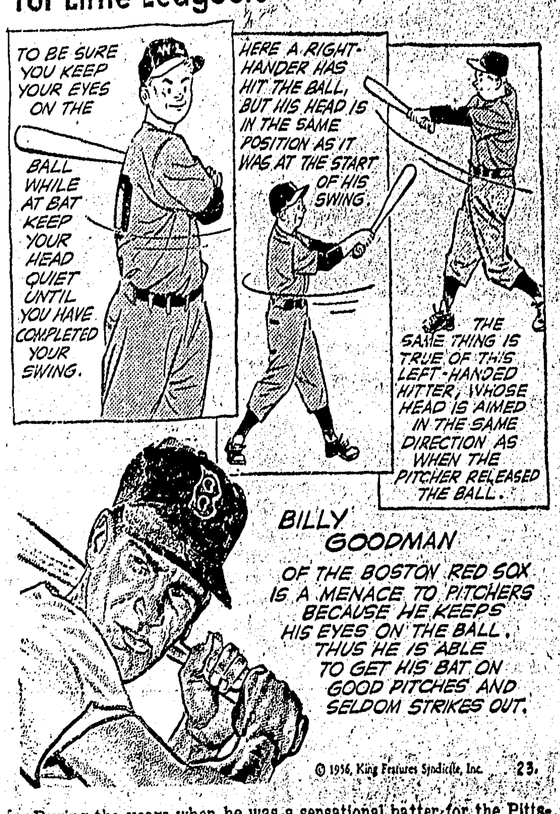
INSIDE BASEBALL for Little Leaguers

By MICKEY McCONNELL
Major League Scout and Instructor



During the years when he was a sensational batter for the Pittsburgh Pirates, Paul Waner was known as the man with the seeing-eye bat. However, it was Waner's eyes which enabled him to make his bat meet the ball with such regularity.

To keep your eyes on the ball, you can't be a "head swinger." The head shouldn't move forward until after the swing is completed. As Fresco Thompson of the Brooklyn Dodgers describes the action, Waner always kept his chin behind his bat as the bat went forward during the swing, and that is true of all good hitters. Keeping his head motionless made it possible for Waner to keep the ball in view until the bat went forward.

George Sisler and Rogers Hornsby, two of the greatest hitters and teachers of hitting, feel that one of the main factors in batting success is just to keep your eyes on the ball and then to put your bat on it. Most players who strike out frequently take their eyes off the ball. If they saw the ball as it neared the plate, they would hit it. In fact, Hornsby discovered that when he went into a slump it was because he was taking his eyes off the ball. He corrected this fault by bunting, following the ball with his eyes and sticking the bat out to meet it as a player would stick out his hand to catch the ball.

Labor Squabble Sees "Met" Cancel 1956-57 Opera Season

NEW YORK (AP)—The Metropolitan opera, famed old queen of American musical companies, cancelled the 1956-57 season Tuesday night because of a labor squabble.

Opera lovers hoped for a change of heart on both management and union sides. They remembered a similar cancellation in the summer of 1948.

The glittering opera house on Broadway faced a dark and silent winter that year because of wrangle with a musicians union. But differences were patched up after the cancellation and the curtain rose for the season three weeks later.

The cancellation ordered Tuesday night came in an argument over dual jobs held by Robert Herman, 31-year-old son of former Brooklyn Dodger baseball player Babe Herman.

Young Herman is an assistant stage director and also an assistant to the artistic director. He is a union member in the first job but not in the second. He served as secretary to the management in long negotiations with the American Guild of Musical Artists earlier this year. The union threatened then to prefer charges against Herman for acting on behalf of management.

The Met replied that it would cancel the 1956-57 season if the union had not signed by Tuesday night both a contract and an agreement to drop charges against Herman.

Tuesday night the union, representing 200 singers and dancers among the Met's 500 employees, said it made a last minute proposal to sign the contract and continue talks on the Herman issue later. But the company said no.
