High Standard Adjudication For Festival

Next year's music and drama festival in Prince Rupert will receive a high standard of adjudication in the music division, according to a letter received by the Music and Drama Festival Association.

Adjudicator Mrs. Mary Wood wrote in her letter read at the monthly meeting of the association:

"The Canadian Federation of Music Festivals is endeavoring to establish some sort of uniform marks—I am not a high marker, for my standard is high, and I believe in having to measure up. According to the advised scale, 75 represents a good average performance, 80 to 85—above average; 85 to 90—extremely good; 90—excellent (much above usual.)

"I frequently mark in the late 60's and early 70's—where, for instance, one gets fair accuracy, but not much musicality. Most experienced adjudicators are able to see behind what is actually heard, as regards technique, musicianship, etc. This is always taken into account where championship classes, trophy or bursary classes are concerned. I feel people have a right to know what a mark stands for. Of course, adjudicators differ considerably as to marks, but where one is interested in raising standards there is only one thing to do—keep marks down, unless the music really comes off."

Mrs. Wood expressed keen interest in the Prince Rupert Festival syllabus, and congratulated the syllabus committee.

A music library will be set up in the Association, available for reference to music teachers intending entering pupils in the festival.

Despite care in preparing the syllabus, and proof reading afterwards, Mrs. E. W. Becker, president, reported some errors. The name of the scholarships awards committee chairman, Mrs. W. S. Kergin, had been omitted. In Class 57, the composer's name should read "Kuhlau." And it was decided that the elocution classes should be chosen, preferably from Canadian authors, but not limited to Canadian authors.

The syllabus of the Saskatoon Christmas Carol Festival, held in 1951, was discussed by the meeting, with the feeling that a similar carol festival might perhaps be successfully instituted here. This might well be a popular project for 1953, said members.

NAVY NEWS...

Plans are well under way by now for Christmas at Chatham. First on the calendar of events is the Pre-Christmas Party to be held in the Naval Canteen on Dec. 6. All the wardroom officers have been making extensive preparations for some time.

Then is the ship's company dance to be held on Dec. 12. The entire proceeds of this dance are being applied to the children's Christmas tree on Christmas Sunday afternoon, so a large turn-out is hoped for.

Christmas in the Navy is one of the most colorful times of the year, afloat or ashore—and Christmas day sees the youngest man of the ship's company donning the Captain's uniform, and taking command for a day. Recruiting Officer Fred Huber is busy looking over all his files to see who is going to qualify this year.

Cards are already starting to come in to the base from the ships in Korea, and this week saw greetings from HMCS Nootka and HMCS Haida. We wish all our shipmates on active service the merriest kind of a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

Last week-end's fog and poor flying weather cancelled the departure of Lieutenant Commander T. A. Johnstone, commanding officer of Chatham, for Ottawa and the annual commanding officers' conference.

Last week a gunnery course got under way at Chatham for the first time in a good many months. AB Bill Heminger is taking fledgling gunners through their paces.

Communicators are busily engaged in mounting, demounting, rigging and rerigging the new radio equipment. Within a short time Chatham should be regularly on the air working the Pacific Coast Radio Net. The antenna is up which means all sorts of queer noises can be expected from the third floor of the main building to the mystification of the uninitiated.

NEW VEGETABLE

STELLENBOSCH, South Africa (CP)—The sweet lupin is being cultivated as a vegetable at the agricultural college here. The flower is said to be rich in protein and the seeds, growing in pods like peas, have a sweet flavor. The plant, which grows in sandy soil, was used as a food in Germany during the last war.

BLACKWOOD on Bridge

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

Even Mr. Champion Falls Into Bidding Booby Trap

Based on the bidding, Mr. Champion tried a commendable line of play for his six diamond contract. Unfortunately for him, however, one of the bids he depended upon for his analysis of the hand was Miss Brash's two spade call. As you see, she had little excuse for entering the auction at all. Basing your play on her bidding is like building a house on quicksand.

The king of clubs was opened and when he saw the dummy, Mr. Champion laid out his partner in a few choice phrases for bidding four hearts. He had counted on some high card strength in the heart suit. Even so, he noted, there was a chance for 12 tricks if Miss Brash held just two hearts, including an honor.

He won the first trick with dummy's ace of clubs and promptly led another club, ruffing it with the ace of diamonds. He picked up the outstanding diamonds in two leads. Now he led the ace and another heart. Mr. Abel almost played the king, which would have enabled Mr. Champion to make his contract easily. Finally, however, he played low and Miss Brash was in with the queen.

Mr. Champion softened a little. The heart distribution he had hoped for was actually a fact. He went so far as to manage a friendly glance at Mr. Muzzy. Undoubtedly he had Miss Brash in a bad spot. She was out of both red suits. If she returned a club he would ruff in his hand and discard the five of spades from the board. If she returned a spade away from her king, he would let it ride to the queen in dummy.

It was difficult, of course, for Miss Brash to lead away from the king of spades as she did not hold that card. She led a low spade, Mr. Champion ducked, and Mr. Abel took the setting trick with his lone king.

Again Mr. Champion's mood changed — this time for the worse. "How can I win against people who don't even know how to bid?" he snapped.

"Who wants you to win?" inquired Miss Brash sweetly.

Korean Ship Docks in U.S.

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)— The first Korean merchant ship ever to dock in the United States was in port here Wednesday, discharging a cargo of scrap steel.

The vessel, the 10,000-ton Korea, came in under tow Tuesday night after encountering motor trouble for a large part of the trip across the Pacific.

Liquor Brief

places where malt or spirituous liquors are sold.

"Fourth, the government continue to own and control all outlets where spirituous liquors may be sold.

"Fifth, the granting of any license to sell malt or spirituous liquors continue to be handled by either a judicial body or a committee of all parties represented in the Legislature.

"Sixth, the time of opening and closing of beer parlors and liquor stores remain as at present, and places where liquor is to be sold by the glass be made to conform with these hours.

"Seventh, any municipality should have the right to local option provision to decide whether or not it favors having beer of liquor outlets within its bounds, and that local option be extended to include the residential areas in cities and towns.

"Eighth, the government should institute and maintain an extensive educational program that will acquaint the public with the evil effects of intoxicating liquors if taken in excess and the disastrous effective relation this has on matters such as broken homes, divorce, fatalities."
