EMPIRE'S ONE MILLION DEADIN MEMORY OF THE BRITISH

General Sir Nevil Macready, K.C.B. (inset), unveiled the above tablet to the 1,000,000 dead of the British Empire, in the Church of Notre Dame, at St. Omer, Pas de Calais, France. The inscription on the tablet reads To The Glory Of God And To The Memory Of One Million Dead Who Fell In The Great War 1914-1918 And Of Whom The Greater Part Rest In France," and it is repeated below in French. A similar tablet has been placed in Westminster Abbey.

PROGRESS MADE PEACE RIVER

Next Year's Acreage Expected to Be Fifty Percent Higher Than Last

The movement of settlers into the Peace River district this summer has been such that it is predicted next year's crop is likely to comprise 50 percent more acreage than that of the past season, and to give a total grain yield of 29,000,000 bushels. That is more than two thirds the total amount of wheat grown in the whole province of Alberta in the year preceding the outbreak of the war. Quite evidently the 54 new elevators which were built this year along the lines of the E. D. and B. C. railways were built in the knowledge of an assured increase in production which will tax their capacity and justify the investment.

Another sidelight on the rapidity with which development is taking place in the northwestern area is the fact that the second live stock train for the fall shipping season rolled into the city a few days ago; and these consignments are said to be only the beginnings of a stock movement as notable in its way as the volume of wheat exported from the same territory. Very plainly the Peace River region is making good the claims that have been made for it, and is developing at a pace that may not be appreciated even by the people in Edmonton. That is hardly the kind of territory the Canadian National Railways will want to shut itself out of.—Edmonton Bulletin.

Fashion Fancies

THIS COAT FEATURES A NEW MODE

Here is an interestingly new coat fashion fact for you. Many of the sports coats use two furs for trimming.

For instance, as in the illustrated model, the lining may be of leopard, while the collar, which reaches to the hem on both sides, and the cuffs are of black lynx.

Kashmir, a deservedly popular fabric, is the material used for this coat.

LUNCHEON AT THE CLUB

Dry and mellow—like a rare old wine

SOMEWHERE in the memory of every epicure hovers a taste which never will be forgot . . . a glass of Moët & Chandon sipped in the moonlight as the Mediterranean lapped the rocks below . . . a glass of nut-brown ale before the fire of an English wayside inn after a hard day's tramp over downs and moors . . . the steaming, spicy fragrance of hot posset drunk on a snowy Christmas Eve.

A Ginger Ale of Unforgettable Distinction

And somewhere within the memory of every epicure hovers another taste, never to be forgot, always to be long remembered . . . a clear, crystal glass through which the light strikes and divides into a thousand glistening rainbows . . . bubbles rising . . . an intriguing aroma . . . a mellow, subtle taste, not too dry and yet not too sweet . . . a tingle of goodness on the tongue. . . . You have drunk the beverage. "Canada Dry," the champagne of ginger ales!

A Real Ginger Ale Made from Real Jamaica Ginger

"Canada Dry" has rightly won its place among things epicurean. It is made with something of the care and skill expended on the making of a rare old wine. Pure Jamaica ginger is used. Its other ingredients are selected and blended with the utmost care. The proportions in which part of the ingredients are mixed is a carefully guarded secret. Its delightful sparkle is the result of an exact and carefully determined degree of carbonation.

And as a result you have a drink of distinction. Serve it with dinner tonight. Give it to your friends! Order it when you dine out. How delightfully it mixes with other beverages!
