Laundry Washed Clothes Are Not Rubbed

YOU know how you douse your dainty lingerie up and down in a bowl of sudsy water . . that's the way your clothes are washed in a modern laundry. They are not rubbed or scrubbed but are gently swished back and forth in warm filtered rainsoft water until the pure soap actually foams. Every particle of dirt is loosened without unduly lessening the tensile strength of the fabric.. Then come many rinses of rainsoft water so that your laundry washed clothes not only look and feel clean but are scientifically clean.

The Endless Chain

The nervous system is like an endless chain. From the brain every act of the body, conscious or unconscious, is directed. Out of the brain, through the spine, to organ or limb, goes a command, together with the vital energy—the motive power—necessary to performance.

Back from limb or organ, over a sensory nerve, comes word that the command has been obeyed, or that its performance is impossible. The latter is usually a pain wave, and comes always when a spinal bone is pressing upon the nerve concerned. Its message is—"See your Chiropractor!"

By my chiropractic health method I correct diseases of the eyes, ears, nose, throat, lungs, heart, stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels and lower organs.

ADDRESS ON HEREDITY BY MISS HARRISON AT LADIES' AID MEETING

There was a large attendance of ladies at the Presbyterian Church Hall yesterday afternoon to hear an interesting address by Miss Jean Harrison, R.N. lady superintendent of the Prince Rupert General Hospital, on the subject of "Heredity." The speaker handled her subject in a splendid manner and the information she imparted was much appreciated.

Mrs. T. McClymont, president of the Ladies' Aid, presided and those contributing to the musical program included Mrs. F. W. Allen, Mrs. H. C. Fraser, Mrs. H. N. Brocklesby and Mrs. Morris Blott.

Mrs. W. Anderson had charge of the tea table and Mrs. J. R. Frizell, Mrs. Samuel Massey, and Mrs. D. McLeod, poured. Serviteurs were Mrs. McRobbie, Mrs. J. Watson, Mrs. L. W. Patmore, Mrs. D. Jabour, Mrs. W. L. Sandison, Mrs. J. L. Lee, Mrs. H. M. Foote, Mrs. B. Dalgarno and Miss Kathleen Stork. Mrs. J. G. Steen acted as cashier.

An entertainment and Camp Fire will be held tonight at 8 p.m. in the Elks' Hall, in aid of the 3rd P.R. Troop Boy Scouts. Interesting program Mayor McMordie will be in the chair.

MEN WHO ARE PRINCIPALS THE BIG LEGAL BATTLE

Canadian Corps." From then on the Canadians delivered blow after blow at the Germans, at Arras in the latter days of August, 1918, the Canal du Nord in September, Cambrai, captured by the Canadians early in October, and so on to Valenciennes and Mons where the war ended on November 11, 1918.

Following the war the Canadian government appointed Sir Arthur Currie to the post of Inspector General of the Forces, a position which was abolished when Sir Arthur resigned to become Principal of McGill University. This function he has filled since 1920 when he succeeded Sir Auckland Geddes, then appointed British ambassador to Washington.

W. T. R. PRESTON

"In the last two decades of the 19th century, now sunk by nearly 30 years beneath time's horizon, all Canadians who took an interest in the country's politics, a definition which included nearly everybody, knew W. T. R. Preston or knew about him." In these terms John W. Dafoe, editor of the Manitoba Free Press, introduces his review of the recently published book by Mr. Preston: "My Generation of Politics and Politicians." Mr. Preston is another of the principals in the libel action, and it is of an article written by him and published in the Port Hope Guide in June 1927 that complaint is made. Mr. Preston is in his 77th year, and those years have been replete with activity. He was born in Bytown six years before it was picked to be the capital of Canada and renamed Ottawa. He was present when the foundation stone of the Parliament Buildings was laid by the Prince of Wales in 1860 and his interest in politics begins in those pre-Confederation years of Canada. He started his political career as a speaker on behalf of the Liberal party in 1878 and it was his immediate success that determined his career.

"For the next 20 years," continues Mr. Dafoe "he was in the thick of the political battle. Then followed 15 years of service abroad in various official capacities. First, in the immigration department, and afterwards as commissioner of trade to Japan, and later to the continent of Europe."

Mr. Preston remained in England in 1911 when the government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier was defeated in Canada, and he was employed in some important capacities by the British government. With the coming of the Union government during the war, Mr. Preston returned to Canadian politics as the representative overseas of the Canadian Liberals in the war-time elections.

"He returned to Canada shortly afterwards," continues Mr. Dafoe, "was a figure of some prominence in the Liberal convention of 1919, contested a constituency unsuccessfully in 1921, was charged by the Liberal government with various important commissions with respect to freight rates on the Great Lakes and the North Atlantic, between 1921 and 1925, then retired to his old home in Port Hope to write his reminiscences."

It is however in his role of Liberal organizer that Mr. Preston is best known.

"Tens of thousands of people noted him in action," says the review, "and came to know him and his characteristics; the slight, wiry active figure, alive with combativeness, the rapid flow of words in a somewhat high-pitched acid voice, the uncompromising unqualified story of the contrast between a party wholly good or nearly so and one trembling on the brink of perdition, the refusal to give or ask quarter. Preston, the organizer, the platform debater, the pamphleteer, the planner of party strategy, was a personification of the Liberal fighting spirit, as it showed itself in the long and never-ending campaign stretching from the disaster of 1878 to the crowning mercies of 1896. He became the best known and certainly the best abused of all the Liberal champions of that time."

Mr. Preston's 77 years present a kaleidoscope in which the great political figures of the past rise up and live again.

The volume referred to is Mr. Preston's second work, the first being his "The Life and Times of Lord Strathcona."

F. W. WILSON

For the past half century F. W. Wilson has been a "country editor," in that period advancing through all the stages of a small provincial newspaper, from "printer's devil" to proprietor. Mr. Wilson, the third principal in this cause celebre, was born in Port Dover 68 years ago. He has been in the newspaper business all his life. The Port Hope Guide, whose destinies he directs, is one of the oldest newspapers in Canada, having been founded in 1831 by William Firbie. Interesting in this connection is the fact that some of the type and fixtures employed to set up the paper nearly a century ago were purchased from William Lyon Mackenzie, grandfather of the present Prime Minister, at a time when the leader of the revolt of '37 was issuing "The Patriot" in Toronto.

Some earlier experiences of newspaper work were obtained by Mr. Wilson in Hamilton, Ont., but at the age of 17 he settled in Port Hope and with his father engaged in producing the Port Hope Guide.

"I had all the ups and downs of the country newspaper," said Mr. Wilson, "principally the downs."

Mr. Wilson has made frequent trips to Europe, but in general has not wandered far afield from Port Hope. He is nine years younger than Mr. Preston, with whom he is co-defendant in the suit.

Union steamer Cardena, Capt. A. Johnstone, arrived in port at 11:30 this morning from the south and left afternoon for the Naas River whence she will return to sail from here at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning on her return to Vancouver and waypoints.
