Lindsay Averts Wings' Loss

Sports Trail

By Whitney Martin

NEW YORK (AP)— Ewart Potgieter outweighed Jeff Dyer by about a bantamweight in their 10-round bout at Holyoke this week and from all reports either he or the bantamweight should have stayed in the dressing room.

There was just too much of the South African for his own good as he dropped the decision to his diminutive — 211 pounds rival. At seven feet, two inches and 332 pounds, Potty got in his own way, couldn't hit a lick, and generally showed ineptness.

Which was not expected. The out-size fighters never have been able to cope. They are slow and awkward and muscle bound, and they present such a vast target they can't be missed.

We know that Primo Carnera piled up an impressive record of knockouts, but it developed most of them had a distinct aroma, and when he went against Joe Louis and Max Baer he was exposed as a fellow who most certainly would be a loser in a talent contest.

NOT FAR

The tallest fighter ever to perform, as noted in Nat Fletcher's Ring Record book, was seven-foot-two-inch Henry Johnson of Ottawa, who fought around the turn of the century. He weighed only 225, so must have been on the beanpole order.

Johnson never got very far, and neither did Ben Moroz, a New York heavyweight just a half-inch shorter than Johnson. Moroz weighed 302.

The extremely tall fighters are at a disadvantage in that they have to punch down, losing leverage in so doing, and a shorter, crouching opponent can get in there and wham away at the expansive midsection without much fear of reprisal.

Sub For Sawchuk Masterful in Goal

By CHARLES BABIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

When the present National Hockey League season was just starting, Jack Adams, outspoken and crafty general manager of Detroit Red Wings, told Ted Lindsay he was not showing enough interest in his job.

The irate all-star left winger gave up the captaincy of the Wings, and it looked as though he was finally on the downgrade after 12 great years.

However—as no doubt was Adams' original intention — Lindsay is presently in the midst of another spectacular season.

Thursday night Lindsay scored his 21st goal late in the third period to give Wings a 2-2 tie with the Bruins at Boston.

The goal—a converted Gordie Howe drive—kept Lindsay in second place in the NHL scoring derby, one point up on Howe.

MAY BE BEST YET

With the schedule just more than half played, Lindsay may beat his own best goal-scoring season. He had 33 in 1947-48. At his present rate, he'll score around 40.

Young Norm Defelice, brought up from Hershey of the American League to substitute for Terry Sawchuk, played a masterful game. He stopped 34 shots after a nervous start.

Larry Regan, Boston's 26-year-old rookie centre, put Bruins in front 2-1 midway through the third period on a great exhibition. He jumped over one Wing at centre ice, scooted around defenceman Marcel Pronovost and shot home a 15-footer while skating at top speed.

Bill Dineen gave Detroit a 1-0 lead in the first period, but Jerry Toppazzini, with his first goal in 13 games, made it 1-1 in the second.

Howe and Lindsay each gained a point on Jean Beliveau of Canadiens, who has a seven-point lead.

Jones Favored For Tonight

CLEVELAND (AP)— Ralph (Tiger) Jones, rated No. 3 among middleweight contenders, is looking beyond tonight's fight at Cleveland Public Music Hall toward a possible chance at the title some time this year.

Jones, who lost to Gene Fullmer in a close fight last April, will be facing Hardy Smallwood of Brooklyn in tonight's 10-round televised bout.

Jones wants another crack at Fullmer, who took the middleweight championship from Sugar Ray Robinson. Tiger says he gave Fullmer "just about all he was able to handle" last April.

Jones, from Yonkers, N.Y., is a heavy favorite to whip Smallwood.

Door Open For Return Of Sawchuk

BOSTON (CP)—Terry Sawchuk insists he has quit hockey for good but Boston Bruins are leaving the door ajar for the nerve-shattered goalie to return.

Sawchuk, tense and bitter, left here Thursday night by train for his home in Milford, a Detroit suburb, stating tersely:

"I've quit and I'm going to stay quit."

And while he is under suspension following his failure to attend a practice, general manager Lynn Patrick says Sawchuk still may return.

Asked whether the door still is open, Patrick replied:

"Yes, if Terry comes back to us and says he has made a mistake and is sorry, we'll take him back. He is human and so are we."

Lions, Alouettes Disturbed Over Football Relationships

By AL VICKERY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP)—At least two clubs were reported unhappy with the relationship between Canadian and U.S. pro football today as the Canadian Football Council gathered for a closed session.

British Columbia Lions, maintaining that while "our teams are forbidden to raid American pros, the National Football League lets its teams raid American talent playing or signed in Canada," were reported in favor of repealing the no-raiding pact.

Montreal officials were disturbed over the signing of tackle Don Owens of Southern Mississippi by Pittsburgh Steelers after he had first agreed to play for Alouettes in 1957.

The relations of the Big Four and WIFU leagues with the NFL were on the agenda for the session which was called to prepare material for discussion at later separate meetings of the two leagues.

Other matters were the cut-off dates for imports; an overall waiver rule, and the Canadian college draft.

The CFC was scheduled to adjourn at noon to hand over to the two leagues a long list of questions for discussion at their sessions today and Saturday. Then the CFC will hold its annual meeting Sunday.

There was no indication whether the CFC would go as far as to end the no-raiding agreement with the U.S. pro league. Last year the CFC decided to honor NFL player contracts but recent signings by NFL clubs of players reported under contract to Canadian teams have strained relations.

Cutoff dates for imports may produce some argument. Two western teams—Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Saskatchewan Roughriders—will fight for a ruling that regulations passed on by the CFC should be binding and not changed in mid-season as was done last year.
