SPORTS

Portland added two tryouts in Norton and Cunningham. Norton is a first sacker who has been with Stockton in the California State League. Cunningham is an infielder hailing from Oakland.

Jack Killaly has a lead as the coast's winning pitcher that no other twirler will be able to touch, or, in fact, coming within hailing distance. Killaly promises to finish with a percentage considerably better than .300.

John McGraw has put his foot down on further newspaper work by the Giants. They started in to show one another up with very bad results. The players were panned for some of their mistakes in the last few games.

Jimmie McAleer ridicules the rumors of friction in the camp of the Red Sox after Monday's game. He says the story originated from the fact that Joe Wood and Buck O'Brien tried to ease the feelings of their team mates with a fake wrestling match.

"Who will be the hero of the 1912 world's series?" was the query which filled the newspapers a fortnight ago. His name was Woodmarquardbedientmurraymathewsonherzog.

It's Harold Wood, not Joe Wood. According to a writer from Fort Jervis, N. Y., Harold and Harvey, the Wood brothers, went to a circus one day. Two clowns, Joe and Pete, were the heroes of the show and the Wood chaps immediately appropriated the two names, with parental consent.

SINGLE ERROR COST FORTUNE

When Snodgrass Missed Engle's Fly He Lost $29,000 for His Club. The $29,000 error. That's what Snodgrass' miff of Glyde Engle's fly in the tenth inning of the final world's series game will be called.

The $29,000 error. That's what Snodgrass' miff of Glyde Engle's fly in the tenth inning of the final world's series game will be called. It will rank with Schmidt's passed ball in Chicago in 1907, and Mathewson's failure to pass Baker in 1911.

Snodgrass' error decided the game in favor of Boston after the Giants had apparently scored a victory. Engle went to second when Snodgrass dropped his high skier. The next man, Hooper, lined to centre, Yerkes walked, Speaker's single scored Engle and Lewis walked.

Snodgrass' failure to hold Engle's fly took $29,544.44 out of New York's pocket and presented the sum to the Red Sox. The money represented the difference between the winner's and loser's end.

The error actually cost over $29,000 that we know of, but think of the many thousands of speculative dollars that were lost when Snodgrass' hands became nervous. At least $100,000 was wagered on New York, and possibly a great deal more.

Snodgrass personally lost $1,500 as the result of his miff, as his share of the winning club's money would have meant that much more to him.
