SEEING TRADE WEST INDIES AND CANADA

ST. JOHN, March 12. — "The trade possibilities for Canada in the West Indies seem to be wonderful indeed, but it is something that will have to be gone after aggressively by Canadian business men," stated J. K. Sherrard of Montreal, Quebec, ex-president of the Canadian Manufacturers Association, on his arrival here this afternon on board the R.M.S. Lady Hawkins.

It is necessary that Canada should seek to buy more from the West Indies, Mr. Sherrard stated, and in this way increase their buying power of Canadian products.

In the development of this trade Mr. Sherrard declared that the new service provided by the Canadian National Steamships under the terms of the treaty should help materially, as the new ships are particularly fine vessels and well suited to the trade.

MRS. HOOVER AT WHITE HOUSE

First Lady of United States Will Carry on Much as Usual at Executive Mansion

WASHINGTON, D. C., Mar. 7: —Mrs. Herbert Hoover brings to the White House a homelike informality such as Washington has rarely seen. For her, the White House will be not only the executive mansion but another home, and she plans to open its doors to her friends just as she has all the other homes with which she has ringed the world.

Those who know her best expect no change in the easy informality with which she always has received them. To her door behind the historic white columns of the White House, they say, will still come the long line of world travelers, scientists, engineers, explorers and statesmen who always have found their way to her hearth wherever she and her engineer husband have lived.

As wife of the president, she will of course conform to the rules requiring secret service attendance on all her outings, and the formal state dinners and receptions required in the White House entertaining probably will show little change. Mrs. Coolidge's custom of receiving on a fixed date all the formal out-of-town callers who wish to pay their respects she will probably also continue.

Mrs. Hoover has learned through her long life of wide travel that people of all countries have much in common, and that the bonds of friendship can overstep the differences of languages and ways. Statesmen, scientists, business men and students of all the leading peoples of the world have found a welcome in her home, and through them she has learned to know the little intimate customs of each nation, from the Chinese way of sending tiny lemon trees at Christmas, to the French way of celebrating New Year's.

Dr. George A. C. Roberts of Queen Charlotte City has been appointed a justice of the peace and coroner.
