52,000 Homeless In Italy

ROVIGO, Italy (Reuters) — The rain-swollen River Po burst its dikes Thursday forcing 52,000 inhabitants of two delta islands to flee for their lives.

First it swirled over Ariano Island south of Venice, driving out the island's 32,000 people. Almost the entire island was reported flooded.

As rescue workers struggled to erect a wall to save part of the island from being submerged, the waters turned on Porto Tolle Island and its 20,000 population.

Rescue workers switched to the second island to buttress its river walls with sandbags. As pressure increased on the walls, an emergency order for immediate evacuation of Porto Tolle was issued.

GREAT COMPOSER

Franz Schubert, one of the most prolific of all musical composers, wrote more than 600 works.

Riders Sign Canadian Trio

REGINA (CP)—Three Canadians, two of them newcomers from the East, have signed tryout contracts with Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Western Interprovincial Football Union, team manager Dean Griffing announced today.

They are end Russell Weir and backfielder Don Langley from an intermediate team in Verdun, Que., and holdover fullback Vic Marks, a Winnipegger who played with Fort William intermediate Redskins before joining the Riders last year.

A two-way end, Weir, 22, is a six-foot-two 200-pounder. Langley, 22, plays quarterback and half-back. He stands six-feet-one and weighs 190 pounds.

Marks, 22, showed lots of promise in his rookie season a year ago. The hard-plugging fullback stands five foot 10 and weighs 205 pounds.

Selwyn Lloyd Given Divorce

LONDON (Reuters) — Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd today was granted a decree nisi in London divorce court on the grounds of adultery by his wife, Elizabeth.

The case was undefended. Lloyd was granted costs against the co-respondent, Martin Lubbock, as well as custody of his four-year-old daughter, Joanna Elizabeth.

The Lloyds were married in March, 1951. Before their marriage, Mrs. Lloyd, formerly Elizabeth Marshall, was Lloyd's secretary for two years.

Church Orchestra

THAXTED, England (CP)— The vicar of this Essex community runs his own orchestra. Rev. J. Putterill, who plays organ, violin, cello, piano, guitar and accordian, also teaches the village school children to play instruments so they can take their place in the orchestra.

Sports Trail

By Whitney Martin

NEW YORK (AP)—First Stan Musial's shoes went into the hall of fame museum for some obscure reason, making him the first player in history to enter the baseball shrine feet first.

Then the bat with which he hit five home runs in a doubleheader with the Giants one May day in 1954 was sent to Cooperstown, N.Y. The amiable guy is being strip-teased into immortality, and when he finally arrives in person he'll have to sneak in after dark.

We don't know what they'll send to the museum to represent his new National League consecutive game record, set last June 12 when he played in his 823rd consecutive contest.

Musial certainly rates a bow. He refused to beg out of the lineup because of painful, if minor, injuries.

In fact, there may have been times when his condition was such it might have been better if he had stayed out of action. Still it's probably true that a Musial hitting on one leg or playing first base or the outfield wearing blinkers would be more valuable than a lot of other players in perfect health.

There probably aren't too many business men who have made it to the office 823 times in a row when all they had to do when they got there was sink into an overstuffed chair.

It's the more remarkable because Musial is built along the lines of a thoroughbred race horse, trim and slim.

He's as graceful an athlete as we ever saw.

His popularity among fans and fellow players probably is unsurpassed. Can you think of another player who would prompt the fans to take out a newspaper ad apologizing for booing him when he had a particularly bad day? St. Louis fans did it for Stan.

And we can't think of another player who ever had a signed cheque placed in front of him and told to write in his own salary. If the pen had stuttered and kept on making zeroes after the first figure Fred Saigh would have been in a tough spot.

Movie Column

... by Bob Thomas

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Notes and comment on the Hollywood scene:

Jerry Liber and Mike Stroller, the song writers for Elvis Presley, have been in friendly competition ever since they met.

Jerry, the eager, aggressive member of the team, is always reporting an unusual experience that has happened to him, only to have Mike top him.

When Mike went to Europe with his new bride, Jerry took a trip to Mexico for some deep-sea fishing. His boat ran out of gas and he was adrift for days under dangerous circumstances.

After the rescue, Jerry could hardly wait to tell Mike the story. "This time he can't top me," declared Jerry, and he went to New York to await Mike's return.

"I've got a sea story that'll curl your ears," Jerry told his partner eagerly.

"Wait a minute," Mike said, and he told of his own voyage—the last for the Andrea Doria.

"Now what was your story?" Mike asked.

"Oh, forget it!" Jerry snapped.

One of the ringsiders at Lena Horne's triumphant opening at the Coconut Grove was Sam Goldwyn. Since he and his wife seldom make the niteries, you can bet he has Lena in mind for Porgy and Bess. And why not? She acts up a storm on the night club floor, putting more believability into each chorus than most younger singers can manage in a whole evening.

How's this for casting: Harry Belafonte, Porgy; Lena Horne, Bess; Sammy Davis Jr., Sporting Life?

A bright girl is Maria Schell, the lovely import who's playing Grushenka in The Brothers You-Know-Who. She gave this analysis of an interview: "You put together two total strangers and expect them to start talking about things they wouldn't even discuss if they were friends"...

A peek at the new products... "Love in the Afternoon" is gay, saucy fun with more real laughs than a film has had in years, like most of today's films it is too long, but it is still a delight... "Island in the Sun" tries to cover too much ground and ends up without dealing adequately with anything. Still the character relationships are intriguing and the West Indian scenery is a delight... "A Face in the Crowd" goes too far overboard in showing the meanness of humans, especially an egomania TV star. It is over-acted, over-directed and over-drawn ... the Broadway characters of "Sweet Smell of Success" are also mean, but they don't go as far overboard. The hard-bitten acting of Tony Curtis and Burt Lancaster packs a real punch... Whatever happened to movies about nice people?
