Greer Garson may win Oscar for "Sunrise at Campobello"

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "I became an actress because living one life wasn't enough for me. Now I'm living more than one life, and acting is only one of them."

This was how Greer Garson described the current state of her career. It is a career that has been marked by brilliance, but the movie portion of it has been inactive until this year.

She broke a five-year absence from the screen ot portray Mrs. Franklin D. Rossevelt in "Sunrise at Campobello," a role that may well win her a nomination for her second Academy Award (first: "Mrs. Miniver," 1942).

She explained her absence:

"When I was at MGM, it was like home to me. I had only my mother then, and the people at the studio were family."

Greer grew unhappy with the quality of films she was given and left the family homestead. She had married Texan Buddy Fogelson and now there were new interests in her busy life. They lived much of the summer on their New Mexico ranch along the Santa Fe Trail, spent part of the time in Dallas, where he oversees his business holdings.

"So the acting part of my life didn't take the same importance that it had before," she remarked.

The actress admitted that she also faced a problem in her desire to "get out of crinolines and bustles," in which MGM had catalogued her. She had fallen into it by accident.

"When Mr. Louis B. Mayer saw me on the stage in London, I was playing the last of a series of rather dashing females," she said. "But the first role they gave me was as Dear Mrs. Chips and from then on, I was stuck."

Radio ham hunts news of daughter

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A London amateur radio operator is trying to contact another 'ham' in Ethiopia to get news of his missionary daughter.

Mrs. Peter Klassen, daughter of Lloyd Alford, is stationed with her husband at Lake Bishoftu, about 30 miles from Addis Ababa, capital of the country where Emperor Haile Selassie has been deposed by his son, Prince Asfa Wassan. Several persons were reported killed in street fighting in the capital Thursday.

Mr. Klassen, a Winnipeg man and his wife have been in Ethiopia since 1953, apart from a trip home in 1958.

READY FOR SNOW

HALIFAX (CP)— The new Halifax International Airport is bracing its feet for a big winter job—snow removal. The $18,000,000 airport, opened in September, has 24 snow-removal units standing by. More than 350,000 square yards of runway must be cleared with plows, blowers and mechanical brooms.

NEW CITY HALL

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)— The Common Council will consider the possibility of constructing a central civic administration building. It would include, if possible, a new city hall and quarters for the police and fire departments.

Gambler wins on one number

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A dapper German, who calls himself the roulette king of Europe, won acquittal on an income tax charge by convincing a judge he's a scientist, not a gambler.

There was just one reaseon his "sure-fire" system for winning at roulette misfired, Benno Eitel Winkel-Liechenstein said Thursday:

American roulette wheels have one more digit than those he's used to.

So investors lost $17,000 trying his "theory of confirmed law of computation of mathematical probabalities" in Los Vegas.

The court ruled the 37-year-old defendant was correct in considering the venture as an investment that failed.

The internal revenue service had charged him with making a false statement and contended the money paid him by investors was money he earned but failed to report on his visa.

Patient with swollen ankles found swallowed metal items

CHICAGO (AP)—Surgeons who made a medical checkup on a mental patient because he was suffering from swollen ankles recovered 258 objects from his stomach.

Their report, published today in the journal of the American Medical Association, listed these among items recovered:

Twenty-six keys, 39 nail files, three sets of rosary beads, 16 religious medals, one bracelet, one necklace, three metal chains, one beer can opener, one knife blade, four nail clippers, three pairs of tweezers and 88 assorted coins.

An "amorphous mass of, eroded metal slugs" weighing more than three pounds also was removed by surgery.

The man was a patient in the Brooklyn, N.Y., state hospital.

Despite the large amount of iron material oxidizing in the man's stomach he was suffering a moderate anemia, a condition sometimes due to iron deficiency.
