QUEEN ASTRID OF BELGIUM KILLED

PRACTICAL PLAN FOR NEEDS OF DAY OFFERED BY LIBERALS

Feasible Not Visionary Platform Required Says Tom Reid in Speech Here

Asks People to Consider Coldly What Seems to Be Best Program—Pays Tribute to Olof Hanson and Tells of His Good Work.

"The Liberal party does not come before the electorate at this time promising a panacea or cure of all ills but we do present for your consideration a practical plan which we believe is best designed to meet present day conditions," declared Thomas Reid, M.P. for New Westminster in the last federal Parliament, in a practical and business-like address at a public meeting last night in the Moose Hall, opening the campaign here in support of the re-election of Olof Hanson as Member of Parliament for Skeena in the forthcoming federal election. Speaking for almost two hours, Mr. Reid discussed the Liberal party's position on major and immediate problems confronting the Dominion today such as unemployment, trade, industrial development, control of credit and investments, safeguarding of the national railways, electoral reform, public financing, international relations and social and economic reform. There were about 400 persons present at the meeting over which A. J. Prudhomme, president of the Skeena District Liberal Association, presided. Olof Hanson also spoke briefly, leaving most of the time of the meeting at the disposal of Mr. Reid for his discussion of the issues of the day.

"Before the heat of the campaign, we ask you to review the statements and utterances of all parties," said Mr. Reid, "and to decide which you consider the most effective in meeting the practical problems which face this country." With all this talk of theories and promises of setting up a heaven on earth, we ask you to remember that it is practical problems that have to be dealt with. It is to be hoped that you will choose practical men such as you have in Olof Hanson, to deal with practical affairs."

In opening Mr. Reid expressed the belief that British Columbia had lost a lot in the past due to the fact that it had in so many cases sent as members to Ottawa men who thought more of party than they did of the people who elected them. He thought British Columbia members might well follow the example of those of the Maritimes all of whom worked together, irrespective of party, in the interests of their provinces.

The speaker referred briefly to some of the things that Olof Hanson had been able to accomplish at Ottawa despite the fact that he had sat in Opposition. He had been successful in obtaining a subsidy for ships coming to this port to load logs, he had helped to get the embargo on salmon lifted, enabling fishermen to ship their fish to any market, he had fought unremittingly for the removal of the 2c. duty on fish entering the United States, he had taken a leading part in the fight for a new federal building. "It is not always the members who get the big headlines in the newspapers that do the most useful work," declared Mr. Reid. "Often the quiet and ostentatious members are the most valuable. And let me tell you that your member commands the respect of the entire membership of the House of Commons which is something to be proud of."

Liberal Politics

Opening on to his discussion of Liberal policies, Mr. Reid pointed out that the political situation today was much different than it had been in 1930. Then there were but the two major parties. Now there were four. He was pleased to see the interest that was displayed in public affairs here as evidenced by the large meeting. After all it was the people's business. If this interest had been displayed years ago, it would have been better. Mr. Reid pointed out that it was not the intention of the Liberal party to engage in a mud-slinging campaign. That was a poor substitute for the discussion of problems and policies.

Notwithstanding the charges of Mr. Stevens and others that the Liberals had stolen their platform, Mr. Reid pointed out that the Liberal party was presenting to the electorate today the platform as set forth by Mr. Mackenzie King on February 27, 1933, before the Reconstructionists were even thought of and even before the C.C.F. Regina conference. Rather had the other parties adopted Liberal policies. Nor did he blame them for adopting things that were good.

The Liberal party believed unemployment was Canada's most urgent national problem, Mr. Reid said. Its intention was to deal with present emergency conditions through a representative national commission which would co-operate with the provinces and municipalities in the administration of unemployment relief and an endeavor to provide work for the unemployed. As permanent measures the Liberal party was pledged to introduce policies which would serve to provide employment by reviving industry and trade and to introduce a national system of unemployment insurance. Mr. Reid made it clear that the Liberal party was not in favor of non-contributory unemployment insurance. If non-contributory unemployment insurance was to be given the workers in the city, what about the farmer in the country who worked his twelve and fourteen hours a day to make a living? The present system of relief camps should also be done away with and the men given useful work at decent wages and treated as humans.

Trade Essential

Regarding trade, any party which ignored or tried to minimize its importance was trying to fool the public, declared the speaker. The nation which went out to trade freely had always given the most to its people and had enjoyed the greatest measure of prosperity. Nations which had surrounded themselves with tariff walls had always had been most backward with their people in virtual slavery. And despite what might be said, there were many quarters in which trade could still be developed by Canada. The speaker recalled how Premier Bennett had turned down a trade deal with Russia whereby one million head of cattle could have been sold annually. What would that have meant to the farmer? It would have had the effect of increasing prices to the producer without necessarily raising the cost for the consumer. It would have meant work for thousands of men on railways and elsewhere. Russia, however, had talked of selling oil and anthracite coal to Canada. Mr. Bennett could not offend the oil barons.

Mr. Reid gave figures to show how Canada's trade had fallen off from $2,600,000,000 in 1930 to $800,000,000 in 1933, the lowest figure since 1903. The pulp and paper industry was among those which had fallen off. Bennett policies had stifled trade and the loss of trade had caused men to be laid off with resultant reduction in purchasing power. By the raising of tariffs money had been taken from the pockets of the people and placed into those of the manufacturers by means of increased prices.

The Liberal party believed that trade was the basis of industrial and commercial development and that Canada needed trade. It would promote trade with all nations and negotiate trade agreements with any countries willing to trade with Canada on a reciprocal basis. It would abolish extravagant increases in the tariff, abolish all unwarranted extra taxes on imports such as exchange and dumping duties, end the making and altering of tariffs by executive action, continue the Liberal policy of British preference by percentage reduction in existing

Beautiful Consort of King Leopold Victim Of Car Crash Today

Monarch Was at Wheel of Automobile When it Swerved As He Turned To Admire Scenery During Visit To Switzerland

KUSSNACHT, Switzerland, August 29 (Canadian Press)—Astrid, 29-year old Queen of the Belgians, was killed today when an automobile her husband, King Leopold, was driving swerved off a country road and struck a tree. She died within five minutes in her King's arms and with his lips on hers. The King was injured, suffering severe cuts and bruises besides heavy shock, but his condition is not dangerous.

Attendants said that the King turned his head for an instant, apparently to admire the scenery, when the car swerved. The King and Queen were thrown out, Astrid's skull being fractured when she was thrown against a tree. After leaving the road, the auto, travelling 50 miles an hour, plunged into a lake.

Country Grief-Stricken

BRUSSELS, August 29 (Canadian Press)—Belgium was plunged into the deepest grief for the second time in two years with the death of Queen Astrid. All businesses, theatres and the bourse closed on receipt of the news.

On February 17, 1934, King Albert was killed while mountain-climbing.

Queen Astrid, a member of the Sweedish Royal Family, was married to King Leopold in November, 1926. She was known as one of Europe's most beautiful princesses. Their married life was characterizd by the same devotion which was so striking a feature of the lives of King Leopold's parents. Their first child, Princess Josephine Charlotte, was born in October, 1927; their second and heir, Crown Prince Baudoin, in September, 1930, and their third, Prince Albert, in June, 1934.

FIGHT FOR THIS PORT

Tom Reid Tells Gyro Club How New Westminster Has Been Freeing Itself From Vancouver Shackles

Coast Development

General Economic Affairs Discussed in Course of Talk On Silver Question

"Keep up the fight for your port," exhorted Tom Reid, M.P. for New Westminster in the last Parliament at Ottawa, in addressing the Prince Rupert Gyro Club at luncheon yesterday. "Prince Rupert reminds me of my own home town of New Westminster Both are cities upon a hill. Both have seemingly been in the shadow of Vancouver in its ambition to control the destiny of British Columbia. But let me tell you that New Westminster has now become a very serious competitor of Vancouver as a port. Prince Rupert, too, as the Pacific Coast develops, is bound to become a port of importance. Cities set on a hill, they cannot be hidden."

The Pacific Coast also had the East to fight against, Mr. Reid declared. The East realized the growing importance of the Pacific Coast. Last year the Pacific Coast shipped more grain to Great Britain than the entire Atlantic Coast and this despite the handicap of distance and the Panama Canal dues.

Mr. Reid referred to the St. Lawrence waterway project If the St. Lawrence waterway was maed free to American shipping so should Panama Canal be made free to Canadian ships. The East could be expected to resist this move but the railways could not consistently oppose it for it would make more traffic for them in hauling commodities to the Pacific Coast As it was now, with the majority of the grain transferred to steamers at the head of Lake Superior, there was only a short rail haul for grain from the prairies.

It had been suggested, said Mr. Reid, that he might speak on Social Credit. He would, however, rather wait and see how it worked out in Alberta. Suffice it to observe that Mr. Douglas, the originator of the idea, when contracting to put it over in Alberta, had demanded that he be paid in Dominion notes and not in any Alberta certificates.

The Silver Question.

Discussing the subject of money and leading up to the question of silver, Mr. Reid pointed out that, first of all, money must have the confidence of the people. Once confidence was lost, currency was valueless. Gold and silver were valuable because the people had con-

DAILY EDITION Thursday, August 29, 1935

A VERY GOOD BEGINNING

A very good meeting was held last night in the interests of Olof Hanson. While it augured well for the return of the member that no questions were asked in regard to the candidate's record in the House of Commons which was favorably commented on by the chief speaker, it also augured well for the campaign which is now in progress. No personalities were indulged in, the only criticisms being of the public actions of leaders of the parties and of parties generally. It was a gentlemanly meeting, void of fireworks, attended by people who were anxious to learn. And those present learned a good deal about policies of the past, present and future.

Tom Reid is a good speaker and the Scottish accent adds zest to the discourse. He is not what is generally called a "finished speaker" nor is he an orator but he manages to convey clearly the ideas he has in his mind, which is the acid test for any speaker.

QUINTUPLET ATTRACTION

The attraction of the Callander quintuplets seems to be almost as strong as ever, judged by the number of people who continue to visit them. Strangers are allowed to approach as far as the wire fence which envelops the hospital and now and then the children are held up by the nurse or attendant in order that the visitors may catch a fleeting glimpse of them. These visitors come at the rate of about ten thousand a month, they use 20,000 gallons of gasoline, pay $12,000 a month in gasoline taxes and the average distance they travel to reach the place is four hundred miles.

fidence in these commodities. Down through the centuries they had been recognized mediums of exchange.

The gold standard, Mr. Reid declared, had been foisted on the nations by the manipulations of financial interests in their endeavour to control the business affairs of the world. Still sixty percent of th people of the world pinned their faith on the white metal When silver had been debased due to this jugglery eighteen hundred million people of the world had been robbed. With the price of silver dropping from $1.29 in 1921 to 25c. two years ago, the nations on the silver standard had to pay that much more for goods. Trade was stifled, the depression came and the whole world suffered. Some of the nations endeavored to protect themselves with tariff walls but these were ineffectual as no nation could live unto itself.

The speaker referred to the vital necessity for international stabilization of currency. So long as this was not done, so long would the present economic troubles continue. Canada had had exprience of losing trade through the depreciation of currency in Japan and in Australia and in New Zealand.

Financing Public Works

Canada, with wonderful resources of both gold and silver, should make more silver dollars, the speaker declared. There had been 100,000 silver dollars minted in Canada but they were at a great premium and it was hard for the ordinary person to get one. In the first issue of 100,000 silver dollars the government had actually made a profit of $70,000 and nobody had been hurt. Did not this suggest a means of financing public works about which so much was heard?

Canada, and British Columbia particularly, stood to gain great development from the use of gold and silver This country should fight continuously for a restoration of a fixed parity between silver and gold. There were all too few silver advocates in the House of Commons.

President S. J. Jabour presided over the luncheon and tendered the thanks of the club to Mr. Reid for a highly illuminating discourse. Guests, in addition to Mr. Reid, were Olof Hanson, A.J. Prudhomme, Arthur Brooksbank and B. E. Bailey of Prince Rupert and J. M. Cave of Vancouver. There was a large attendance of members of the club.

NORTHLAND GAME HUNT

specimens of wood buffalo now becoming extinct.

After 10 days in the barrens, the party will proceed to Great Bear Lake where grizzly will be shot. Flying north of Fort Simpson the rare black-tailed sheep will be sought. Returning by the Liard river, through northern British Columbia, elk will be the prize of the flying hunters and scientists. The party will return to Edmonton late in September after covering territory which normally takes three years to traverse by overland methods.

This is Mr. Snyder's 32nd expedition into the northwest for big game. He has been leading parties out of here since 1901.

R. E. Outerbridge, who has been located at Port Simpson during the summer as a medical student at the hospital, left by last evening's train on his return to Toronto.

Milton Gonzales, who arrived in the city recently from Vancouver to re-engage in law practice here, expects to be joined in about a month by Mrs. Gonzales. They were married recently in Vancouver.

CARDINALS GO STRONG

Take Strangle-Hold On Leadership Of National League Over New York Giants

PHILADELPHIA, August 29. (CP)—The St. Louis Cardinals took a stranglehold of two-and-a-half games on the National League leadership yesterday by winning a double-header from the Phillies here while the faltering New York Giants, playing at home, lost two games to the Pittsburgh Pirates. The Giants are still in second place but with only half a game margin over the Chicago Cubs who were splitting a double bill with the Braves at Boston.

In the American League the Detroit Tigers continued their monotonous winning streak at home by shutting the Philadelphia Athletics out with a slugging bee. The New York Yankees reduced the lead of the Cochrane crew to nine full games, however, by winning both ends of a double-header from the White Sox at Chicago. Cleveland Indians took a pair of close decisions from the slipping Boston Red Sox to replace the White Sox in third place.

Yesterday's Big League scores:

National League

Chicago 1-5; Boston 2-2.
Cincinnati 2; Brooklyn 4.
St. Louis 5-13; Philadelphia 1-5.
Pittsburgh 6-9; New York 1-5.

American League

Philadelphia nil; Detroit 11.
Boston 0-1; Cleveland 2-3.
Ney York 9-5; Chicago 1-2.
Washington 10-1; St. Louis 2-2

JR ELKS WON GAME

Defeated Grotto To Draw First Blood In Softball Series

The Junior Elks last night drew first blood in the softball championship series when they took the Grotto into camp by a score of 6-1.

The Elks played good ball all the way through and were not in trouble at any time, allowing their opponents but one run in the first half of the eighth inning, but at the same time the game provided plenty of thrills.

Batteries were:

Grotto—Yaeger and Gurvich.

Junior Elks—Lindsay and Morgan.

Umpires: Lambie and Stone.

The next game will be played tonight and, with the Grotto out to even things up, it should be pretty interesting.

FEASIBLE NOT VISIONARY PLATFORM REQUIRED SAYS REID

tariffs rather than by percentage increase against foreign countries and grant British imports a real preference.

Internal Trade.

The Liberal party would seek to end artificial price control and agreements in restraint of trade. Price fixing by agreements restricted and hampered trade internally. They intended to abolish secret price agreements. Up to a short time ago, Mr. Stevens had had nothing to say about such matters as these.

The Liberal party would endeavour to further the development of primary industries — agriculture, lumbering, mining and fisheries — by effecting reductions in the costs of production of basic products and by obtaining wider markets therefor by encouraging export trade and by state assistance in the marketing of natural products. There would also be reform of the marketing act. Local boards would not be permitted to prohibit producers from selling their products without compensation or means of redress. Further, there should be a plebiscite before any industry was taken under the act.

The Liberal party believed that something had to be done in regard to control of currency and credit. Credit was a public matter of direct concern to the average citizen. The Liberal party stood for the immediate establishment of a properly constituted national central bank to perform functions of rediscount and the control of currency issue considered in terms of public need with regard to domestic, special and industrial requirements of the Canadian people, and also to deal with problems of international commerce and exchange. Why, asked Mr. Reid, had the C.C.F. members lined up with the Bennett government in the House of Commons and voted for the private central bank? Why had they not voted with the Liberals for a publicly controlled central bank. Mr. Woodsworth had never answered this question. "Actions speak louder than words," observed the speaker. Under the present central bank no member of parliament had any say and even the government had been deprived of its authority.

The Liberal party also promised to prevent exploitation of the public through sale of watered stocks and worthless securities and believed that an investment control board should be established.

Speaking of the wheat situation, Mr. Reid stated that the Liberals were opposed to heaping up of wheat. Better would it be to give it away. The Bennett attempt to fix the world wheat price had resulted in serious loss of market in Great Britain by Canada to Australia and the Argentine. The Liberals would sell the wheat at the world price no matter how cheap

Safeguarding National Railway

The Liberal party stood for the maintenance of the integrity of the Canadian National Railways as a publicly owned and publicly controlled service, competing fairly with the privately owned Canadian Pacific. State ownership of railways would mean a nail in the coffin of trades unionism. Union men feeling inclined to vote C.C.F. might remember that.

The Liberal party believed in industrial reconstruction. It would seek to give workers and consumers a larger share in the government of industry.

The Liberal party believed that the present crisis had been made an excuse for the usurpation of rights of Parliament and the assumption of autocratic powers by the executive. Liberalism stood, as always, for the principle of a free Parliament. To this end it would repeal the legislation enacted by the present administration which deprived Parliament of its control over expenditures and taxation and invested the executive with unwarranted arbitrary powers.

The Liberal party believed that, under the excuse of the present crisis, the rights of the individual have been violated. Liberalism stood, as always, for the British principle of free speech and free Association, and to this end would repeal section 98 of the Criminal Code, and end the present practice of arbitrary deportation.

The Liberal party stood for electoral laws which would ensure a true parliamentary representation of the Canadian people and such legislation as might help to reduce the cost of election campaigns.

The Liberal party believed the aim of every government should be the balancing of its budget.

It would seek reduction of principal and interest on the public debt, reduction in taxation and increased revenues through the encouragement of trade.

It would substitute stability for uncertainty in the administrations of customs laws.

Mr. Reid pointed out how the government of the past five years had increased the number of returned men getting pensions but had actually reduced the amount in the aggregate that all were receiving. The Liberal party believed in holding sacred the bonds that had been entered into between 1914 and 1918. There was much that must be done to better the lot of the returned men. For one thing, a reduction of the pension age would have to be considered.

Before closing Mr. Reid briefly discussed the question of bi-metallism. He advocated that millions not thousands of silver dollars be issued so that a decent price might be given the silver mines

Mr. Hanson

Mr. Hanson, in his brief speech, stated that he had learned much during the past five years as a member. He felt that he was more fit now to represent the people than he had been before. This was a vast riding with a variety of interests and problems. It took time to learn the proper way to approach these problems at Ottawa. He hoped at a later date to have an opportunity of a more extensive discussion of questions of more local importance. He asked the people to at least elect a good worker.

Before the close of the meeting Arthur Shelford of Wistaria asked Mr. Reid how he planned to increase the price the rancher received for his cattle without increasing the price to the beef consumer. Mr. Reid replied that his plan was to increase foreign markets which would strengthen the price to the producer without necessarily increasing the retail price which was already out of proportion.

TUBE REPAIR OUTFIT
Be prepared for punctures. This kit contains all needed materials for repairing inner tubes. Airtight container.

IF you've never thought much about blow-outs, just watch the papers—see how often people are killed or injured when tires blow-out. Motorists! it's fortunate that Goodrich engineers developed the new Safety Silvertown with the Life-Saver Golden Ply—an amazing invention that resists terrific internal heat and prevents blow-outs before they even start.

So . . . we feel responsible for your Tire Safety—why not let us equip your car today with Goodrich Safety Silvertowns? They cost no more than other standard tires.

The Life-Saver Golden Ply

Today's high speeds generate terrific heat inside the tire, where rubber and fabric are jointed. A blister is formed—grows bigger—until Bang—the tire blows out.

But the Golden Ply is located at this hot spot in the tire . . . resists heat . . . rubber and fabric don't separate. No blister forms. Blow-outs are prevented before they start.

● All the countless thousands who buy newspapers every day are potential customers of those who offer goods for sale to the consuming public.

Practically every merchant in Canada will lose customers in 1935 — a law of business. This loss must be replaced or his business will die. The trader who loses customers, even to the danger point, can find them again and increase his turnover by good merchandising linked with advertising in the daily newspapers.

People are reading daily newspapers as never before, not from curiosity, but from need to know today the best things offered to supply their daily wants.

Lost markets, which are only other words for lost customers, are now being regained by you or acquired by others. You owe it to yourself and to your business to keep in touch through the newspapers every day with the Canadian buying public.

ANNIVERSARY OF LOCAL FIRM

Lambie and Stone Celebrating Second Business Birthday by Putting On Big Sale.

The firm of Lambie and Stone is today celebrating its second birthday as a business firm in Prince Rupert. Two years ago today these two young men defied the depression and set out to supply the men of the city with stylish, up-to-the-minute clothing and furnishings, giving similar service to that provided by the smartest shops in the large cities.

Many people phophesied failure, but the idea of a fashionable men's wear store run along modern lines caught the public fancy at once, making its appeal particularly to the young people of the city. The going was not always smooth for the financial condition of the city was against them but they carried on successfully, building up a stock of the very latest and best of the clothes that men like to wear and women delight to see. Today after two years of constant effort they feel they have emerged triumphant as among the leading retailers of the city.

The succes of this young firm indicates what may be done even in the days of depression when the one aim is to give service and quality goods at prices that people can afford to pay. Bill Lambie and Bill Stone are receiving the congratulations of their many friends, all of whom are wishing them a long and prosperous business life. In order to reciprocate and mark the occasion as an outstanding one, the firm is putting on a sale with all the goods marked down to a point where anyone with any money at all can buy.

Dancing Party For Junior Jollies Enjoyable Affair

A delightful dancing party was staged last night in the Boston Cabaret by the Junior Chamber of Commerce in honor of the performers who took part in the Junior Jollies of 1935 at the Silver Jubilee Carnival last week. There were almost one hundred persons present and Sergeant and Mrs. G. H. Greenwood were in attendance by special invitation.

The party was in full swing until 1 a.m. and, during the evening, President T. N. LePage spoke briefly, expressing the appreciation of the chamber for the work of the Junior Jollies. Music for dancing was furnished by Charlie Balagno's Orchestra and refreshments were served.

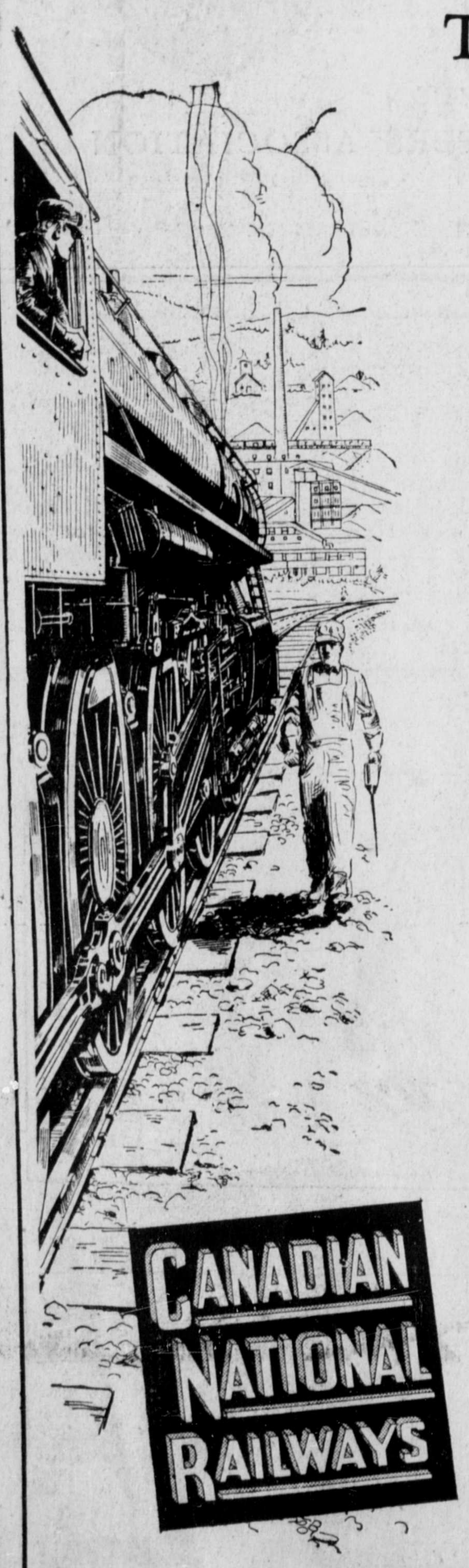
The C.N.R. is an Important Factor in CANADIAN MINING.



Mining is by no means a new industry in Canada, but when its future development is considered in the light of recent discoveries it may quite rightly be said to be only in its infancy. Much of the success which has attended mining in Canada is attributable to the fact that the railroad facilities of the C. N. R. were easily available. In the same way its future is linked with the extent and nature of the transportation services at its disposal.

Coal formed the largest single item in weight carried by the C. N. R. in 1934. In that year the system hauled as revenue bearing freight, over 8,000,000 tons. Were it possible to collect this vast amount in freight cars and make one long train, it would extend almost half way across the continent. The importance of this commodity to the factories and homes of Canada needs no stressing . . . but it is well to bear in mind that the railroad is the only land transportation medium for coal haulage where distance is a factor.

Of course other mine products enter into the freight business of the C. N. R. Altogether, over 12,000,000 tons of mine products, embracing coal, coke, ores, sand, stone, gravel, oil, salt, etc., were carried in 1934, this being a substantial increase — 22% — over the preceding year.

The mining of metals has of recent years assumed greater dimensions than before, and it may be of interest to note that of non-ferrous metals in semi-refined state, the C. N. R. carried over two hundred thousand tons in 1934, which was more than twice the quantity carried in 1933.

In many districts of Canada the C. N. R. is providing the sole railroad service available to this great industry, and its tracks enter, or are close to, some of the most promising mining areas in the Dominion. In accordance with its policy of rendering the greatest possible public service the C. N. R. is co-operating to the fullest in furthering the development of these areas.

In all these branches of railroad and allied activities the C. N. R. maintains a high standard of efficiency. Its passenger trains are speedy and comfortable . . . fares are low and there are many special excursions at reduced rates. Its freight, express and telegraph services are quick, reliable and economical and its hotels and camps, situated throughout Canada, offer the traveller, whether on business or pleasure, accommodation of the highest standards. You are invited to make a greater use of these C. N. R. facilities.

During the present Summer season the C. N. R. is providing special fares and excursions between points throughout Canada. These are exceptional travel bargains. The nearest C. N. R. Agent will be glad to give full particulars.
