She is a victim of leukemia, a rare incurable disease resulting from a scarcity of red blood cells. At St. Luke's hospital in Memphis, Tenn., she touches the hearts of the internes. Special Powers Act of British Columbia Will Not Be Vetoed in East

Prime Minister of Canada Says He Does Not Intend to Play Into Pattullo's Hands—Declines to Believe That Federal Treasury Has Been Looted

OTTAWA, April 10: (CP)—Investigation of federal relief expenditures by the public accounts committee of the House of Commons was promised last night by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett. Demand for a probe by a special committee came from Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Liberal Leader of the Opposition, who declared that the Dominion treasury had been looted by the provinces and municipalities through lack of systematic audits.

A detailed audit of federal relief expenditures would disclose "one of the most shocking stories this country has ever heard," said the Opposition Leader.

"If there is anything wrong," exclaimed the Prime Minister, "the wrong rests at the door of the auditor general and not of this government."

Not to Veto S. P. A.

The Premier said earlier in the day that he would keep an eye on the Special Powers Act of British Columbia and the proposed industrial board of Alberta to guarantee that the constitutional powers of the Dominion were not upset. At the same time, the Special Powers Act of British Columbia would not be vetoed by the Dominion. Disallowance would be playing into the hands of the Pattullo government, the attorney-general of which had practically invited the federal government to disallow the act in order that he might have a grievance."

Notwithstanding the fact that errors had been disclosed, Premier Bennett declined to believe that there had been looting of the public treasury as charged by Mr. King. Certificates were not false. Wherever errors had been found they had been corrected and, if other over-payments had been made by the federal government, the money could be easily recovered as the names of the provinces stood behind every certificate.
